Calley Is Set Free On Personal Bond

My Lai Massacre Case Figure Assured Parole

COLUMBUS, GA.(UPI) — Former Army Lt. William L. Calley Jr., assured of a parole from his 10 year sentence in the My Lai massacre, was set free today on a $1,000 personal recognizance bond.

The ruling today meant that Calley has served his last day in custody for the massacre at My Lai. He refused comment on the proceedings because, his attorneys explained, the overturning of his conviction is still under appeal by the Army in the 5th Circuit Court of Appeal.

Since Ellliott had upheld Calley's claim of detrimental pretrial publicity, Calley's lawyers said Calley now did not want to add further to any publicity in the cased by commenting.

The Army said it would pursue the Calley case in the appeals court to clear up "important legal issues" that have been raised.

In freeing Calley today, Judge Elliott noted that history was repeating itself, and chided Army attorneys for their stands in the appeals court after he first ordered Calley freed last February.

He said the Army professed at the time to be amazed at the court's action. Noting Calley has now been granted a parole, Elliott said: "That's, to me, an interesting thought, because it's directly contrary to what the Army has been telling the Circuit Court of Appeals. The Army's been telling the circuit court (of appeals) that my freeing Mr. Calley from Leavenworth would wreck the Army, destroy the nation."

Calley's attorneys said he would live in Columbus and "seek gainful employment,' but refused to say whether he had a specific job lined up.

He was not required to spend what apparently was to be his last night in Army custody in the post stockade, but went instead to his rented quarters on post, where his personal effects have remained during his stay in prison at Ft. Leavenworth.

"We expect, we're hopeful, that he will be released on his own recognizance, without any restraints," Kenneth Henson, Calley's Columbus attorney, said yesterday.

The Army has announced that because Calley has been scheduled for parole soon, it will not ask that any bail be required for his release while await ng a possible retrial.

An Army statement yesterday revealed for the first time that Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway had signed an order Oct. 30 granting Calley parole on Nov. 19. That is the earliest date Calley could be eligible for parole —on completion of onethird of his 10-year sentence.

Calley's bond hearing was scheduled at 11 a.m. (EDT) before U.S. District Judge J. Robert Elliott, the man who ordered a new trial for him on grounds that pre-trial publicity of the massacre made a fair court-martial impossible in 1971.

J. Houston Gordon of Covington, Tenn., another Calley attorney, said "we have been informed that the Army is not going to request any restriction" on Calley while awaiting a possible new trial.

"We've been optimistic ever since we hit the civilian court system," he said. "Now, we have a judge who agrees with us and we think we're going to have a lot more."

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals granted Calley's bail petition yesterday.

In an unusual session of 14 judges, the appellate court turned down the Army's request to keep Calley imprisoned at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., while Elliott's new trial order is reviewed.

Ten of the judges voted for release on bail "on reasonable terms and conditions." The other four dissented.

Calley was released from barracks confinement Thursday and assigned to the local parole unit outside the post.

Sausalito Stymied In Ferry Rift

Sausalito officials who want to limit the number of ferry passengers who arrive in their city may have had the legal rug pulled out from under them.

The Golden Gate Bridge District — which operates the ferry — announced yesterday it now owns the lease for the property on which its temporary Sausalito ferry landing is located.

An attorney for the bridge district told district directors that ownership will strengthen the district's legal position if the city makes good on its threat to challenge the district's right to use the property.

The city has protested the bridge district's plans to bring its new, larger ferries to Sausalito, saying the small town cannot handle more tourists.

Unless the district agrees to limit the number of passengers carried on the bigger vessels, the city has threatened to contest the district's legal right to use the ferry landing.

Recently the bridge district went to court to try to get the lease on the landing property from Herbert Madden who has a long-term lease on most of the Sauslito sandspit. This week, a San Francisco Superior Court approved transfer of the lease to the bridge district, according to attorney Thomas M. Jenkins.

"We acted only because they (Sausalito officials) questioned our right to use the property," said David Miller, a lawyer in Jenkins' office. "We have to do what we feel is necessary to assure that ferryboat service will continue to the public."

But Miller added that the Quake Forecasting System May Encounter Roadblocks

By JEFF GREER

Earthquake experts soon will be able to predict when, where and how hard the earth will shake, a federal scientist revealed yesterday.

But Dr. Charles Bufe warned that those who can pinpoint the locations of future quakes may run straight into a wall of political and economic interests.

Before it was possible to predict temblors accurately, there was little question of the desirability of such forecasting, Bufe told a group of diaster officials in Mill Valley yesterday.

"Now, we're being told, 'no, you don't want to predict quakes because because of the economic consequences."

Bufe is project chief in the office of earthquake research for the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park. He spoke to more than 100 federal, state and local disaster officials at a meeting of emergency service organizations from 16 northern California counties and nearly 100 cities.

Bufe, a geophysicist, said research being conducted both in the United States and in Russia leads scientist to believe that if enough money is spent to scatter sensitive detection instruments in quake-prone areas, temblors may be accurately predicted.

And the larger the future quake, the more advance warning will be available, he said.

He gingerly skirted the exact political and economic repercussions, but federal pamphlets he passed out to the disaster official were more explicit. They said communities pinpointed as quake targets at specific dates may be severely affected in terms of property values, investment in industry and population.

Bufe said, however, that knowing six months in advance of a major quake would allow certain percautions in already developed areas such as the Bay Area:

"The water behind earth fill dams could be lowered" to prevent tragedies; "transportation systems could be geared up" to get around potential damage areas, freeway construction timetables could be speeded up or postponed and emergency vehicles could be kept in safer places.

He illustrated with photos showing the problems which could have been avoided if the San Fernando Valley earthquake of 1971 had been predicted.

"I don't think anyone would advocate mass evacuations, but some slide-prone or flood-prone areas could be cleared," he suggested.

The Geological Survey currently is planting instruments in the quake-prone Bear Valley area on the San Andreas Fault 120 miles south of San Francisco, he revealed.

He added that the instruments already have predicted one quake in the U.S. — one in New England.

How is it possible to tell when "the big one" is on the way?

Bufe said scientists have discovered that shock waves generated by the tiny, frequent

Pet Chasers Have New Refrain For Dog Owners

By BARBARA HOSMER

"Where, oh where has my little dog gone . . .?" runs the dog owner's anxious refrain.

A new San Rafael-based pet tracing firm intends to find out.

The United States Pet Registration service currently is setting up a nationwide pet finding operating from its headquarters at 1724 Lincoln Avenue.

Owners who worry that Fido or Tiger may stray or be stolen may find the service valuable.

It works this way: A pet owner takes his show champion or mongrel, tabby or Persian to a local tattooing station, usually a veterinarian, dog groomer or kennel. There the animal has an 8-digit code number painlessly tattoed inside its left hind leg — with indelible ink. "It takes about five minutes," said Kee Allan of Mill Valley, the pet registration firm's director.

The owner fills out a form which contains his name, address and telephone number, along with the pet's code number. The form will be fed into a computer in Sacramento.

"You have a pink slip for other property — it's like getting a pink slip for your pet," said Mrs. Allan, who embarked on the venture three months ago with her husband, Stanley and some partners.

The service provides special protection against animal nappers. The pet receives a tag stating that he has been registered with the U.S. Pet Registration Service and the owner gets a decal reading, "All pets in this car are protected by tattoo and registration."

The person who finds strayed animals can read the tag, call the registration service and re-

Quiet Couple Arrested In Bombing Plot

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A quiet couple who grew Christmas trees were arrested yesterday in a $1 million extortion bomb plot against the Bonneville Power Administration.

The suspects, David W. Heesch, 34, and his wife, Sheila, will be arraigned Monday on charges involving the recent bombing of 11 BPA power transmission towers serving Portland.

Julius Mattson, special agent in charge of the FBI's office here, indicated no other arrests were expected in the case.

Agents apprehended the Heesch couple in southeast Portland while they were in a car with one of their two young children.

The arrest warrants charged Heesch with writing the BPA and the FBI demanding $1 million in exchange for a promise to cease bombings. He was accused of threatening a blackout of Portland. His wife, also 34, was charged with aiding in the extortion attempt.

Sporatic Coal Walkouts Beginning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sporadic mine walkouts in Appalachia apparently foreshadowed a nationwide coal miners' strike to come Tuesday while bargaining teams wrestled over contract terms here during the weekend.

Just before talks recessed last night, the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, operators of 1,200 union mines producing about 75 per cent of the nation's coal, delivered up another revised economic package, which the union promised to study.

Meanwhile, walkouts were already occurring at mines owned by the Southern Ohio Coal Co. and at others in eastern Ohio and in West Virginia, although BCOA's contract with the United Mine Workers of America does not expire until 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

UMW President Arnold Miller said he did not know about premature walkouts. Local union and company officials said the Southern Ohio miners jumped the gun.

A nationwide strike Tuesday is likely, because even if agreement were reached immediately, union ratification would take some 10 days.

Asked if Miller could "sell" the company's proposals, BCOA chief negotiator Guy Farmer said: "I don't think it's a very difficult package to sell the way it's turning out."

Miller said at a separate meeting with newsmen: "Mr. Farmer is not as familiar with our membership as I am. I'll be able to make a better assessment than anyone else when it's time to make an assessment."

Both agreed the talks were progressing. Miller said: "I don't think I'll be satisfied until we settle." Farmer said, "I think things are moving at a fairly good pace — it's not a rapid pace." He said talks were reaching the point that "everything you do is somewhat painful."

The Interior Department said electric utilities consume about 35 million tons per month of coal and were down to an average of 80 days' supplies. The department said its data indicates that within 30 days after a coal strike begins Nov. 12, 73 power stations producing about 5 per cent of the country's electric power will run out of coal.

The Interior Department said coke stocks are "extremely low, averaging about one week's supply" and coke plants cannot be shut down without "serious damage to ovens."

Coal provides about 46 per cent of the nation's electrical energy, about 15 per cent of the fuel requirement for industrial and manufacturing plants and about $2 billion in export sales.

Auto Layoffs To Hit 62,000

DETROIT (UPI) — Indefinite layoffs in the auto industry will climb to over 62,000 by Monday, with thousands more idled for short periods, as automakers continue cutting output of slow-selling small cars.

The new round of layoffs, announced yesterday, come in the wake of the poorest new model introduction in 10 years. It will raise the Ford Motor Company's indefinite layoffs to 8,400, General Motors' to 36,000 and Chrysler's to 17,800.

COLLISION AT SEA

Smoke billows from a Japanese tanker packed with oil and liquified gas after it slammed into a Liberian freighter today in Tokyo bay, trapping dozens of crewmen in exploding flames. After five and a half hours, firemen had managed to control the blaze on the Liberian vessel, but a Maritime spokesman said he feared all 27 of the 29-man crew of the Japanese ship were trapped and killed by the flames.

Inter-American States Wrestle With Compromise Over Cuba

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — Foreign ministers today worked on a compromise agreement to end a decade of Cuban isolation and bring Fidel Castro's regime back into the inter-American community without spliting the Organization of American States.

The meeting of the OAS members was called by Columbia, Costa Rica and Venezuela to lift the economic and diplomatic sanctions imposed on Castro's Communist government in 1964.

At least 13 member states agreed to lift the embargo, saying the sanctions are a leftover of the cold war and obsolete in an era of detente among major powers.

"The results that produced the blockade of Cuba can plainly be seen by all, and nobody, not even the greatest optimists on the subject, could say those results have benefitted the members of the continental community in any way at all," Ecuadorian President Rodriguez Lara said.

Lara opened the five-day conference last night.

Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay have accused the Castro regime of continued interference in the internal affairs of their governments.

They are the only three nations that have announced their oppostiion to lifting the Cuban isolation.

Five other nations, including the United States, are caught in the middle between rightist Latin American countries and nations urging an end to the blockade.

Diplomats said the five will probably refrain from voting but will honor the decision of the member states.

That leaves the OAS one vote short of the 14 needed to lift the sanctions.

However, Latin American diplomats who favored ending the isolation of the island were hopeful they could pick up an additional vote in four days of intense behind-the scenes bargaining.

Diplomats said a compromise resolution might be passed calling for the embargo to be lifted and reaffirming in strongest terms the principle of non-intervention by any hemispheric nation in the affairs of another.

Brazil, one of the doubtful votes, was believed to regard such a resolution as acceptable enough to become the 14th vote.

Earlier, leftist university students burned U.S. flags and shouted pro-Cuba slogans in a demonstration outside Ecuador's legaslative palace, a modern seven-story structure in downtown Quito.

The OAS adopted the InterAmerican Mutual Assistance Treaty in 1964 to isolate Cuba after Venezuela accused the Havana government of shipping arms to leftist guerrilla groups.

Peace Seen Answer To Food Crisis

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI told World Food Conference delegates today countries can avoid mass starvatio by exploiting unexplored lads and seas and promoting world peace.

He said birth control was "inadmissible" and not the answer to hunger.

"The threat of hunger and malnutrition are not an inevitable destiny," the Pope said.

To avoid global hunger, the Pope said, "I beg you ... no more war, war never again. And we say to you no more hunger, hunger never again."

He said in the crisis caused by droughts, floods, frosts and runaway fuel and fertilizer prices "nature is not unfaithful to man. Its productive capacity on land and in the seas, remains immense and is still largely unexploited."

The Pope told the 3,000 delegates and observers that birth control was no solution to world hunger.

"It is inadmissible for nations with the world's natural resources to try to resolve the hunger problem by forbidding the poor to be born," the Pope said.

"Mankind has means capable of making the resources of the universe yield their full potential. Will those whopossess these means remain as though struck by paralysis when confronted with the absurdity of a situation in which the wealth of some can tolerate the enduring poverty of so many?"

Earlier, the delegates listened in disbelief when Philippines Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo suggested they be locked up until they figure out how to stop famine.

'Gemstone' May Be In Crucial Tape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six weeks into the Watergate trial, the prosecution has hit somewhat of a snag in the form of a single word: "Gemstone."

The word, the code name for the Watergate bugging operation, may or may not be in a crucial White House tape that prosecutors are planning to play Monday as they get into the real heart of their conspiracy case.

The man most affected by whether the word is there is H.R. Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff who is among the five one-time aides to Richard M. Nixon standing trial for the cover-up plot.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica heard a lot of argument about the word yesterday, but adjourned the trial at noon without indicating what he plans to do about it.

He did, however, readily grant a motion by lawyers for defendant John D. Ehrlichman to send a team of doctors to examine Nixon in California and report whether he is indeed sick enough to be excused from testifying.

The judge said he hoped to name three "outstanding men" in the fields of cardiovascular disease and internal medicine next week to make the examination.

Sirica's action drew a chilly "no comment" from Nixon's personal physican, Dr. John Lungren, who on Thursday reported his patient is too weak from near-fatal complications following surgery for recurrent blood clotting to be questioned for at least two to three months.

Japanese To Reshuffle Top Officials

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka will reshuffle his top cabinet officials before President Ford visits Japan later this month, a close associate of the prime minister said today.

Political sources said Tanaka was attempting to end a political crisis in the country before Ford arrives for a five-day visit Nov. 18.

Susaburo Shiina, vice president of the ruling Liberal Democratic party, told newsmen after a meeting with the prime minister that he thought Tanaka would change key party and cabinent posts prior to Ford's trip.

Tanaka returned today from a 12-day tour which took him to New Zealand, Australia and Burma. He quickly joined a series of meetings with party leaders who briefed him on political developments during his absence.

Among those who conferred with Tanaka were Liberal Democratic party Secretary General Tomisaburo Hashimoto and Eiichi Nishimura, director general of the National Land Agency who had been acting prime Minister.

Japan's political crisis was touched off last month when a monthly magazine published a detailed study of Tanaka's personal assets and how he reportedly made them while in power.

Since then, opposition parties and party rivals have called on Tanaka to explain the matter or step down as prime minister.

Sources said Tanaka would meet with Finance Minister Masayoshi Ohira and Minister of International Trade and Industry Yasuhiro Nakasone during the weekend. The two cabinet ministers are strong supporters of Tanaka and possible successsors if he steps down.

The soarces said Tanaka also may meet with his rivals, former Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda and former Vice Premier Takeo Miki, to seek their cooperation, if necessary, to stabilize the situation.

Fukuda and Miki demand the resignation of Tanaka and are opposed to any cabinet reshuffle which enabled Tanaka to stay in power, the sources said.

Court Upholds Liddy Conviction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals yesterday unanimously upheld the bugging and burglary conviction of Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy.

Liddy, who is free on bail, was convicted last year in the bugging and burglary which occurred June 17, 1972, at the Watergate headquarters of the Democratic National Committee.

Grid Club Plans To Allow Women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the last all-male bastions of Washington newspapermen, the Gridiron Club, has voted to open its doors to women.

Members of the exclusive 89-year old group broke with tradition yesterday and changed the club's constitution to permit women to be admitted as members. The vote was 39-4.

Gold Spurts

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The price of gold spurted to a record $184.50 an ounce on the London money market yesterday, prompting speculation that some Arab nations are buying vast amounts of the precious metal as a hedge against a possible depression.

Some experts also attributed the soaring price to the likelihood many Americans will want to buy gold after Jan. 1, when it becomes legal for them to do so.

Citizen Slain

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

A gunman shot and killed an Israeli civilian today in the largest city on the occupied West Bank of Jordan, the Tel Aviv military command said. It was the first apparent Arab guerrilla attack in the territory in six weeks.

Military sources said he was shot in the back of his head at close range while walking with his wife and daughter through the city's Casbah market quarter at noon.

In Amman, the Jordinian parliament today approved amendments to the constitution as a first step toward King Hussein's reorganization of his kingdom in line with his renunciation of Jordan's claim to the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

Rushed To Rig

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnam has rushed a flotilla of warships to an American-owned offshore drilling rig being monitored by Chinese trawlers, government military sources said today.

The sources said three Communist ships, believed to be disguised surveillance craft, have circled the rig, operated by the Pecten Vietnam Co., since Oct. 31.

Sisco

Athens attorney George Alfantakis said yesterday that U.S. Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco pledged to Greek armed forces commander Gen. Gregorios Bonanos on July 21 that U.S. pressure would force Turkey to withdraw its troops.

"Stop your fleet and air force and I promise you that we will oblige the Turks to pull back to Turkey," Alfantakis quoted Sisco as saying.

Among the eight officers charged is former junta strongman and military police chief Brig. Dimitrios Ioannides.

They Flip Out — In The Classroom

By LEW CODDINGTON

It's all part of a class in judo introduced at Redwood High School this semester. The course is taught by physical education teacher Dennis Untermann; some 27 students are enrolled.

FLOORED — Vicki Julian (right), a sophomore at Redwood High School, flips classmate Barbara Brady. Many of the girls enrolled in the martial arts class are there to learn to defend themselves.

It was instituted after a survey last year showed that self-defense, particularly judo, was high on the list of student desires.

Students learn the Japanese terminology and customs as well as the holds, throws and moves of the ancient martial art.

"It's a great class," says Bianchini, a junior. "It's the only one I really look forward to. It's fun."

"It's interesting," says Miss Peterson, a junior, "but I didn't think we'd be flipping people as much as we are."

There are more girls (15) than boys (12) in the class. "The main reason girls are taking it is to learn self-defense," says Miss Gale, a junior who transferred out of another class to get into judo. "We want to know what to do if we're attacked, so we don't just panic."

According to Untermann, students take the course for a variety of reasons, ranging from simple desire to fulfill a physical education requirement to an enthusiasm for material arts kindled by such things as Kung Fu.

A typical class begins with a series of warmup exercises, emphasizing stretching and bending. Each "judoka" (person practicing judo) wears a "gi" (loose-fitting, robelike white uniform).

Next comes a quick review of earlier material, including "ukemi," a relaxed falling technique. Twenty-seven bodies thud to the mat simultaneously.

Next, Untermann steps to the center, chooses a student partner, and demonstrates the latest "nagewaza" (throwing technique). Students practice in pairs, flipping each other.

Untermann himself is relatively new at judo, having learned a few years ago from College of Marin physical edication teacher Jim McGowan, whom he still consults for advice.

He has no belt, but intends to try for one soon. A man of many interests, he has coached championship teams in wrestling and water polo and also teaches a night course in gardening at College of Marin.

"Students get a whale of a good workout in this class without even being very aware of it," he says.

"Physical education in the futute is going to include many more courses like this — courses which have carryover value in later life. Redwood has classes in cycling and angling, and I'm starting one on mountaineering in the spring.

"We will still carry on with the regular athletic programs which many students live and die for, but we're also trying to be diversified enough to reach every student in the school."

GOING DOWN — "Ukemi," a relaxed falling technique basic to judo, is practiced by students in a class taught by physical education teacher Dennis Untermann. The class is new this fall.

Arts, Crafts Sale Planned

The Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club will sponsor its second annual homemade arts and crafts sale next Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the organization's clubhouse, 203 Marin Avenue.

Sale hours are: Friday, 6 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Sunday, Nov. 24, noon to 4 p.m.

Kitty Adams' Music Box Puppets will perform at 11 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m. Saturday and at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Deny Request

Developer's Charge Denied By Flahive

The mayor of Corte Madera has denied a charge by developer Ernest W. Hahn that the town showed "bad faith" in dealing with him.

Writing in response to a letter from Hahn threatening Corte Madera with a lawsuit, Mayor Robert J. Flahive said the town had not entered into any kind of binding agreement with Hahn which could be the basis of a suit.

Hahn wishes to build a regional shopping center on 45 acres east of Highway 101, but repeatedly has been stymied. He fired off a sharply-worded letter received Wednesday by the town.

In it, the developer said Corte Madera led him on for more than two years with "a sham and a ruse," then tried to "destroy" the project by informing the Army Corps of Engineers the town opposed a crucial fill permit.

Hahn said the situation leaves him "no other alternative but . . . but to seek and pursue all legal remedies available."

Flahive replied, "We do not feel that any action taken by the present town council or by our predecessors . . .was taken in bad faith or with intent to mislead."

The council has not taken final action on the project, according to the mayor. "We have expressed our willingness to consider any and all proposals you might offer, "he wrote to Hahn." You have mentioned a smaller center in several discussions. At this point we have seen no alternate proposals from you . . .we are willing to meet and discuss alternate plans."

Flahive wrote that the council's Oct. 22 letter to the Army Corps of Engineers opposing the fill permit was "a reaffirmation" of its Jan. 21 decision to suspend the permit.

Hahn wants to put 500,000 cubic yards of dry fill on 28 acres of the 45-acre site. The town first granted a permit.

But then three councilmen who favored the center were recalled and replaced by three who oppose it. The new council suspendedthe fill permit Jan. 21.

Final decision on the permit rests with the Army Corps of Engineers.

Psychic Session Due Nov. 17

A psychic festival, sponsored by the Golden Age Metaphysical Council, will be held from 1 to 8 p.m., Nov. 17, at the United Methodist Church at Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue, Mill Valley.

Readings will be given in numerology, astrology, palmistry, phenology, handwriting and other psychic fields. Those attending should bring their birth charts.

A $3 donation will be asked for each reading.

ICC Authorizes Railroad Purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized the Union Pacific Railroad to acquire the financially ailing Rock Island line through merger yesterday but ordered certain restrictions on the acquisition.

The order was the culmination of 11 years of hearings and deliberations on the controversial merger, described as the most complex case in the ICC's 87-year history.

The commission said Union Pacific could acquire Rock Island by merger if it agreed to sell certain Rock Island properties to three other railroads.

The commission said Union Pacific must sell all Rock Island properties south of Kansas City to the Southern Pacific and Sante Fe railroads.

In addition, Union Pacific must sell the Rock Island line from Denver and Colorado Springs, Colo., to Omaha, Neb., to the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad.

The commission also ordered that the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad be included in the Santa Fe system and set other requirements designed to protect competing railroads in the Midwest.

The Rock Island operates nearly 8,000 miles of track in 14 states. It has been financially ailing for several years and an ICC law judge found in 1971 that the huge railroad was near bankruptcy.

The case decided by the commission Friday began in 1963 when the Chicago and North Western Railroad asked ICC approval to purchase shares of the Rock Island line. Union Pacific countered that application in 1964 by requesting ICC approval of a merger.

Regulation Of Blue Shield Sought

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Blue Shield recipients would save up to $1 million a year if the giant firm were placed under tough state regulation, the state insurance commissioner said Friday.

Commissioner Gleeson Payne told a Capitol news conference that Blue Shield, which serves 1.3 million subscribers in the state, should be listed as an insurance company subject to regulation by his department.

Had the firm, which also administers MediCal, MediCare and other government health plans, been under state control as an insurance company, last year alone it would have had to pay about $3 million in taxes, Payne's staff said.

And Blue Shield recipients likely would pay between "half a million and a million" less each year if the law were changed, Payne said. He added that it was very difficult to make a firm savings estimate.

Presently recipients have nowhere except the courts to turn with their complaints against Blue Shield because the state attorney general has "no teeth" to regulate the giant firm, Payne said.

"These people might as well see the chaplain as far as getting relief is concerned," Payne said in a critical blast at Blue Shield's current operations.

Payne, who is retiring in January, added that his insurance department should have the power to regulate Blue Shield rates and to force some disclosure of its solvency status. He added all other states do regulate Blue Shield.

It's Tough To Get Smokers To Quit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mary Millsap, member of the American Association of Industrial Nurses, says "half the job in trying to help people stop smoking is in convincing them that you really care that they are hurting their health."

"Industrial nurses, because they are workers every day on the job, are more strategically placed than most other health workers to help the smoker who wants to quit," she added.

Melodrama, Madrigal Society To Give Woman's Club Program

The Men's Melodrama and Madrigal Society, a newly formed husband's auxiliary of the Sausalito Woman's Club, will give a program beginning at 8:30 p.m. next Saturday at the clubhouse.

Two short melodramas billed as "Dramatic Portrayals of Social Injustice," plus olio acts by the entire company, will be featured. Peter Arnott is director. Thomas Gildersleeve, Raymond Roy, Daniel O'Connor, Donald Leson, Paul Lempio, Clifford Raisbeck, Frank Carillo, Ray Gergus, Douglas Fancher and Jack Weber are cast members. Dr. Harold Rosenblum and Ted Baker will supply the music.

The performance is open to members and their guests. Light refreshments will be served at the end of the show.

TAMAL REBEKAH Lodge 393 of San Rafael will have a hot dish and salad luncheon Tuesday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Odd Fellows Temple in San Rafael.

Chairmen are Anna Keelen and Lillian von Bima.

Needlework, baked goods and plants will also be on sale at the public event.

NEW MEMBERS of Delta Kappa Gamma, Epsilon Chapter, will be initiated at a meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Gladys Mortenson in Greenbrae.

A business meeting will follow the initation.

Delta Kappa Gamma is an international honorary society for women educators.

ANN MARSHALL Davis of Greenbrae will review the book, "The Woman He Loved," by Ralph G. Martin, Thursday at the noon meeting of the United Presbyterian Women of the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael. The meeting, preceded by a luncheon, will be held at the church.

BAY AREA jeweler Jack Nutting will speak at the fall luncheon at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley at 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

Nutting will bring samples of his original jewelry for the members to model and display cases to exhibit his work. Trained as an architect, Nutting learned jewelry making at night school. In 1957 his hobby became a fulltime vocation. He works in gold, silver and precious jewels at his shop on Union Street in San Francisco. His work has been exhibited in the Bay Area and in New York.

Faydelle Starkey is program chairman, and Honor Grant, luncheon chairman. Clare Farrell, Wenonah Gilbert, Ruth Gustafson, Marie Stone, Betty Waldeck, Helen Jones, Janet Uphan and Pat Savelli are luncheon assistants.

AN INITIATION and election meeting of Mill Valley Bethel 119, International Order of Job's Daughters will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Masonic Temple in Mill Valley.

Claire Jolley is chairman; Liza Smith is hostess chairman; Joni Adams, Kristie Wilson and Kathy Zellers are assistants.

Widows of past members will be honored.

Reservations chairmen are William J. Fereira and William R. Constable.

FRANCELLA T. HALL
Youth for Understanding

Youth Unit Headed By Mrs. Hall

Francella T. Hall of Tiburon is the new president of the Youth for Understanding Auxiliary.

Auxiliary members raise scholarship funds to send American high school students to foreign countries for one year of study and to bring foreign students to this country. First in its series of monthly meetings will be held Nov. 18 in the Halls' home. Fenton Kovic, California representative of Youth for Understanding, will explain the program.

Mrs. Hall is a native of Yakima, Wash. She is a graduate of St. Joseph's Academy for Girls in Washington and Seattle University. She and her husband, Dr. Walter B. Hall, chairman of the periodontology department at the University of the Pacific School of Dentistry in San Francisco, have lived in Marin three years. They are parents of Walter Scott, 9, and Gregory, 6 years old. They have lived in Marin three years.

Mrs. Hall is past president of the Pobble Auxiliary and the Vine Village Guild. She is treasurer of the Women's Auxiliary to the San Francisco Dental Society, a board member of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary and the Women's Auxiliary to the Marin Dental Society and a member of the League of Women' Voters, PEO, University of the Pacific Faculty Wives, San Francisco Opera Guild and Marin Society of Artists.

Her hobbies are hiking, swimming, playing the piano and singing with her family and art. Much of her time is spent painting, and she will have an art show this month at Luisa's Palate restaurant in Mill Valley.

Jumble Sale Set Nov. 25

Hard at work preparing items to sell at the Jumble Sale from 2 to 3:15 p.m. Monday (Nov. 25) are children who attend the pre-kindergarten session at the Tamalpais Nursery School in the Methodist Church Complex in Mill Valley.

The sale will be held at the school. The children have rooted and planted houseplants, dried and packaged fragrant herbs, and prepared lavender sachets for the event. They will also sell tickets for see-saw rides. While parents and staff members will be on hand, the children will do the selling themselves.

The pre-schoolers hope to raise sufficient funds to purchase a hand-crank ice cream freezer and a portable electric oven for the school. The parents organization is arranging tables of bric a brac to add to the merchandise displayed. Jane Miller is chairman.

Senior Luncheon In Terra Linda

Terra Linda Senior Citizens will have a Thanksgiving luncheon Nov. 19 at 11:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn in Terra Linda.

Reservations chairman is Irene Froehlich of San Rafael. Cost of the lunch is $1.50.

REACH AND STRETCH — Kristi La Bianca of Mill Valley leads a rehearsal of children who will appear tomorrow in "Rainbow of Love," a benefit performance for a children's theater seminar program she hopes to start in January. (Photo by Alfred Arn)

Theater Seminar Is Developed For Younsters In Marin County

By JOAN LISETOR

Kristi La Bianca is concerned that areas of development are denied children because of a lack of money.

The Mill Valley woman, founder of the Rainbow Players of Marin, wants to remedy that situation in her area, theater. She has developed a theater seminar program for children to follow a format much like the adult group.

"Our emphasis is as an educational facility, not a theater troupe. Our productions are a culmination of lessons. After you have learned you have to do it. You just can't let all that talent stay bottled up," Mrs. La Bianca said.

The players have presented "Little Mary Sunshine" and "The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd" to enthusiastic audiences and raving critics since their formation in March of 1973.

The working formula will be available to children, fourth grade and up, when classes begin on Jan. 7. The program will be called Rainbow Players Children's Auxiliary and will run for 12 weeks. The first six weeks will be intense instruction, meeting twice a week with field trips on two Saturdays to the opera, television stations or other theater related activites. The next four weeks will be rehearsals, followed by two weeks of production.

"WHEN WE switch from classes the emphasis will not change, just the focus," Mrs. La Bianca said.

"Focus is always on the individual and his change. Our number one concern is what is that individual getting out of it."

To finance the pilot program, the Rainbow Players are presenting a show tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building. The 76 members of the cast and crew are donating their time, and entertainer Jon Hendricks will premiere music for the show, "Rainbow of Love."

It is hoped the show will raise $5,000, the cost of running the program for six months. The program will involve 60 children, four staff members and enough volunteers to keep a 10 to 1 ratio.

"I expect cooperation, not money from the parents," Mrs. La Bianca said.

She has not yet found a location for the classes.

FOR THE concert she has "rounded up 16 neighborhood type kids" and in a few weeks of rehearsals turned them into a dance troupe. Most of the children have never performed on the stage before, yet they respond to her direction and enthusiasm.

Information on registering for classes may be obtained by writing to Rainbow Players, 316 Miller Avenue in Mill Valley.

Holly Fair Will Blend Nostalgia, Tradition

A blend of nostalgia and tradition will greet visitors to the 21st annual Holly Fair Nov. 15 and 16 at the San Geronimo Community Church.

The fair will be open from 4 to 10 p.m. both days.

"Patchwork and Country Charm" is the theme of this year's event and gift booths will be stocked with such items as food delicacies, handmade Christmas decorations, plants in decorated pots, handicrafts, white elephant items and an antique silent auction.

A dinner of turkey or ham will be served Friday night from 5:30 to 8 p.m. and Saturday Doris Toews will prepare German pastries.

Games for both children and adults will be available including a handmade bell ringer built by Eldon Halseth.

Girl Scout Troup 269 will perform in the play, the "Three Sillies" at 7 and 8 p.m. Friday.

Betsy Irving is chairman of the fair assisted by Mary Wick. Kitchen committee members are Breen Hofmann, Bill and Sally Tachouet, Harry Irving, Audrey Mathis, Al and Ginny Schultz, Charlie Alvarez, Jan Chadwick and Gertrude Lindsey.

The church is located across from the San Geronimo Golf Course Club house on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and the Nicasio turnoff.

Admission is free. Saturday's dinner is $2 for children under 12 and $3.50 for adults.

Society Seeks Survey Volunteers

The Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society wants volunteers for the historic survey in Belvedere and Tiburon. Sponsored locally by the society, the survey will be part of a state-wide project to identify and catalog historic landmarks and sites.

Information is available from Connie Powell and Louise Teather. First meeting of local volunteers is scheduled for next Thursday at 10 a.m. at Old St. Hilary's in Tiburon.

Men Asked To Listen To Women

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Listen to the feminine voices, fellows. Don't tune us out. When you turn the deaf ear, you're just multiplying everyone's problems of today's living.

Elizabeth Janeway, lecturer and author, puts matters this way: "The greatest barrier that women have to overcome is that men don't listen to us."

Mrs. Janeway suggested that men not only heed but also "listen with the possibility in mind that some of what women say may not only be serious but even sensible.

"FOR THE FIRST time in history perhaps, it is women's experience which is changing faster and more radically than that of men.

"In itself that bears witness to the profundity of the changes and it might alert men to the value of looking at them.

"Certainly it will not be easy to overcome men's fears of the effects of changes in women's role and image, but these fears are grounded in mythology that is less and less in tune with social actuality."

MRS. JANEWAY, whose husband is Eliot, the economist, discussed her views on what's happening in the equality of the sexes movement during an interview. They're also the subject of her new book, "Between Myth and Mythology: Women Awakening" (William Morrow).

"We're awakening," she said. "We're getting there. Some of us are moving faster than others.

"Look at the women moving in politics. They're no longer there as a token. Women are assessing what needs to be done and they're doing it."

SHE BELIEVES women "would profit by a study of power and its workings . . . they need to see how such political action differs from private tussles over domination in the personal sphere."

She calls it "significant" too that women are pushing into the craft unions. Sex stereotyping is losing the game.

"The women's movement is a response to reality. We live in a world of action, activity. Look at the changes in the family structure, the scientific and medical advances where child planning is possible, our life span is longer."

MRS. JANEWAY, who writes novels and nonfiction, is a graduate and trustee of Barnard College in New York. She is a frequent speaker before professional and management groups.

She said that in the last three years of traveling about the country she had noticed changes in male audience reaction to equal rights issues.

"The men are more interested. There's less wariness," she said, "although some are confused. They ask, 'What do you want'? but they ask with an honest interest.

"THE YOUNG MEN are reexamining their roles. They tell me they want changes too . . . they don't want to be at the graindstone all their lives. They're seeking self-growth, fulfillment. The want to be full human beings too."

THE LAST WORD

Even The Thrift Shops Are Feeling The Economic Crunch

By KAREN PETERSON

Loretta Springer has seen "a lot of winter slumps" during her 12 years with first the Salvation Army and now the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, but this year may be one of the worst.

And unfortunately, she adds, it's the holiday season — a time when charitable organizations pack up food and toys for the needy.

She's not optimistic. Last Christmas "not one turkey was donated" and canned goods donations dropped considerably. It's going to be that way again this year. "People can't afford to give things away when they don't have them," said the general manager of the society's two Marin thrift shops.

Slumps go in two directions, she said: people stop donating but continue to buy or people quit buying and donations keep coming in. "All of a sudden the bottom dropped out," she said, "They're not buying or donating."

In the past, an economic slump meant more people would seek out thrift shops for goods. Not today, she said, "Money is very, very tight." Shoppers have dwindled almost 50 per cent, she added.

One of the first indications came during the baseball world series games. Every year, she said, the television sets in the stores are sold out before the games begin. This year not one set was sold despite a 25 per cent series discount.

People are not buying the antiques, nice furniture or other so-called luxury items, she added. Only clothing sales remain constant.

Donation-wise, Mrs. Springer is visibly disappointed. "A lot of the merchandise is not resellable. . .it's just junk. That's pretty sick," she said.

"We're called the highest priced thrift store in Marin County," she said, "but our purpose is to make as much money as possible to give to those who don't have any."

The thrift stores were once located in lower income neighborhoods; now they open in middle class areas to attract people who have "more money to help the poor."

The needy are not only aided by money and food but also with jobs. Some of those employed, she said, include the handicapped, ex-prisoners from San Quentin and people with alcohol or drug problems . . . "people who have trouble getting help elsewhere."

The thrift shops must collect a certain amount of money each month, said Mrs. Springer. If they can't, the employees will be the first to suffer. In Marin the two shops — one in Fairfax and one in San Rafael — employ about 20 county residents.

Because of the way money is now and the unemployment situation, people are hanging on to their merchandise longer," she noted, "I sure hope it doesn't go on."

Toymakers To Display On Nov. 23

Marin toymakers will display their toys at a day long Toy Faire sponsored by the Marin Young Women's Christian Association on Saturday Nov. 23, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 1618 Mission Avenue in San Rafael.

Antique toys, doll houses, imported toys and books will also be shown and sold.

YWCA educational director Chris Goodwin said Y instructors will be on hand to show how to make holiday gifts and decorations.

Day long entertainment is planned and will include vaudeville, mime troupe and dance acts, she said.

A nursery will be provided for young children. "They will be having a glue-in to keep them involved while Santa shops," according to the fair announcement.

Admission is free. Free coffee and cake will be served to all Y members.

Gas Is Cheapest For Clothes Dryer

Here's a money-saving tip from Consumers Union, which publishes the magazine Consumer Reports.

It ran tests on both electric and gas clothes dryers, and found the gas version to average about 10 cents cheaper per load to operate. That's because gas generally is still cheaper than electricity, even though the initial investment in a gas-powered model may be more.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Men In Her Family Wrecking Her Chances With Boyfriends

RAP:

I'm known as the "Girl with Four Brothers and a Mean Father."

You can guess I don't get many dates. I'm 16, but my Dad doesn't trust any guy, so I can go out only when he's not home and my Mom covers for me.

But then I have my brothers to contend with and they're almost as bad. They check out guys like they were inspecting a car. Someday they'll kick an ankle mistaking it for a tire.

Would you please tell me how I can persuade the men in my family that some fellas are safe, and every male isn't trying to make a girl on the first date?

Meanwhile, I'll keep on sneaking out (with Mom's help) and meeting my dates somewhere else so they won't have to pass the brother inspection line or Dad's big fat "No!!!" — WHY ME?

W.M.:

What's needed in your family is a female-male confrontation. I get exasperated with women who accept a man's dominance, then teach their daughters it's better to sneak than fight.

If your mother knows her husband is wrong, why doesn't she say so? — HELEN

W.:

Maybe she knows from experience she'd just start a war she couldn't stop. Two against five are pretty bad odds.

Why not first try getting some of your brothers on your side? Then the confrontation will have more chance for success. — SUE

DEAR HELEN:

I understand you and your family are water skiers, so maybe you'll let me say something terribly needed about water safety.

This fall my brother and a friend were boating on our river. Two jet speed boats were racing with no regard for others. They swamped my brother's boat, throwing the two fellows into the water.

His friend hit the propeller and mutilated the left side of his face. A doctor on shore gave him first-aid before the ambulance arrived. He then spent three hours in plastic surgery.

My brother was in shock, his boat going wild in circles, and was finally rescued by a man who stopped the motor by a lasso and threw him a life belt.

The boats that caused the accident never returned to help! — SISTER

DEAR SISTER:

Let's hope the drivers of the two speedboats were finally apprehended! Water safety rules should be enforced as rigidly as any other traffic violation, but sadly enough boat patrols are often where the accidents aren't. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

Which is best — live-together, or marriage? The controversy boils, but I say marriage is living together. No matter which route you choose, it takes desire and will power to make it work. To coin an old down-on-the-farm phrase, you've got to pull together like a team of horses: one can't gee while the other haws. Love is a bed of roses (remember roses have thorns). Life is a bowl of cherries (you remove the pits).

People do change and grow, but not necessarily away from each other. Growing up together is what it takes! It's not a piece of paper that binds two people together, nor the children. It's both people's state of mind, and it really does take two! — MARRIED SEVEN YEARS

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer — c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Sandal's Were Clue To Wearer's Status

Early Egyptian sandals were very decorative, depending on the caste of the wearer, according to The Sole Leather Council. A long peaked toe was worn by the pharoah; those below him in status wore shorter peaks; bare feet were the mark of the slave.

The inner soles of the sandal were painted with pictures of enemies, symbolizing the wearer's ability to "tread upon" his adversaries.

WASHABLE WOOL

Remember the last time you washed a wool sweater — and shrank it to a third of its normal size? The Wool Bureau, Inc., has announced a new label — a 100 per cent wool sweater that can be machine washed and dried. The label is "superwash," a wool bureau certification mark denoting machine washability. Above, a washable tweed.

Women's Survey Is Under Way

The Marin County Status of Women Commission is conducting a survey of affirmative action programs in Marin. Surveys have been sent to local businesses questioning whether the firm has an affirmative action program and asking for an occupation breakdown by sex and race in categories of officials, managers and administrators; professionals; sales; technicians; office and clerical; craftsmen; operatives; service workers, and laborers. The survey also asks for annual wages for males and females and divides them into categories by race.

The survey is to be completed by Nov. 20, according to Human Relations Department staff person, Sheila McEvoy.

Workshop Will Study Women In Management

A workshop on "The Emerging Woman In Management" is scheduled Tuesday through Thursday (Nov. 12-14) in San Francisco under sponsorship of the Center for Designed Change in Mill Valley.

The workshop is for women who hold managerial positions or have the potential for such positions.

Emphasis will be placed on development of leadership and communication skills, how women function in competition with each other and other men, improving self image, overcoming fears of management roles, fundamentals of teamwork and decision making.

Further information about the workshop is available at the center of Mill Valley, run by Marion and Dick Vittitow.

Overeaters Workshops Due

New sessions of Overeaters' Workshops will begin Friday morning at the Marin Young Women's Christian Association in San Rafael and Nov. 18, at the Unitarian Fellowship of Marin.

Interested persons may register at the YWCA or by writing to Box 4223, San Rafael, 94903.

The workshops are conducted by Sandy Hunter of Berkeley and Nina Voitoff of San Rafael. Both are trained therapists, with master's degrees in social welfare and years of individual, family and group therapy experience.

QUEEN — Kerry Press, a 17-year-old senior, will reign over homecoming activities this weekend at San Marin High School in Novato. Her election was announced at today's San Marin-Sir Francis Drake High School football game. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Press of Novato and was chosen from a field of nine candidates. Chosen as the queen's attendants were Ginger Gaddy, 17, and Sue Puccinelli, 17.

PETS

lay the animal's tattoo number. The service will check its computer readout and call the pet owner anywhere in the U.S., Mrs. Allan explained.

When report of a stray comes into their office, the Allans can put it on the computer and receive the owner's name and address in minutes, she said. Already they have returned a Pekinese missing from a recent San Rafael dog show to its owner in San Jose.

Other pet registration services have come and gone in local areas, Mrs. Allan said.

"But we're different because we will be national with a nationwide Watts line connected with out computer in Sacramento."

The service is setting up regional offices, first in California, Arizona and the East Coast on a franchise basis. Eventually the Allans plan to cover the U.S. with them, so that if Fido leaps from the car while passing through Omaha, his owners may learn his whereabouts when they reach home in San Rafael. It's up to the owner to recover the animal, though.

The service requires the cooperation of local humane societies, Mrs. Allan said, so that if they pick up an animal with a registered tattoo number, they will call the pet registration service to trace the owner.

She stressed that the service might save a humane society money. "Statistics show that $500 million is spent every year in destroying animals."

Total cost of tattooing and registration is $17.50, with an additional yearly renewal fee of $5.

Mrs. Allan cautioned that tattooing alone does little good. Unless the number is registered, there is no way to trace an animal, and a Social Security number or American Kennel Club number aren't useful, Mrs. Allan said.

"The police do not accept an AKC number as proof of ownership, and the social security office isn't in the pet-tracing business," she noted.

So far the Allans have tattooed and registered several dog show champions, a few pooches priceless to their owners, some cats and a pet black rabbit.

Mill Valley residents who once raised Afghan Hounds, the Allans are familiar with the lost dog problem.

"We also showed dogs briefly and we know those problems first hand," Mrs. Allan said.

The Allans researched their registration idea for two years before they opened an office in Berkeley last July. They moved both the national and regional office to San Rafael last October to be closer to their home.

"So far the response has been fantastic. In the Bay Area there are now about 60 tattooing stations," Mrs. Allan said.

QUAKES

quakes along active faults travel more slowly when a large quake is about the occur.

The slowdown may begin even years before a really large temblor, he added.

Bufe outlined three steps in the prediction timetable. Before any official predictions are passed on to civil defense, they will be screened by a panel and will be pretty well documented," Bufe said.

Next, news of predicted small quakes in Bear Valley will be released to the public "to develop a track record" for accuracy comparable to federal weather forecasts, he said.

Finally, the system should become capable of predicting major Bay Area temblors on the San Andreas, Hayward or Calaveras falults. "I hope we won't have any damaging quakes" before the system if operable, Bufe added.

The scientist revealed federal plans to experiment with faults in sparsely settled, isolated regions of Nevada to "stop and start" earthquakes. He said the tests hopefully someday will lead to a method for preventing massive quakes by causing many small ones too tiny to do any damage. A series of minor tremors would relieve strain on the huge blocks of the earth's crust that slide along the faults, according to the scientist.

The experiment will involve pumping underground water out of the ends of fault regions to "lock them up" and prevent movement. the central sections of the faults then will be lubricated with water forced into the crust through deep wells, and this may create literally thousands of little slippages rather than one big one.

If the test works, applying it to California "will cost many millions of dollars," Bufe said. "But if we can trigger creep (movement without serious temblors) we won't have to worry about the economic and psychological hazards" of major jolts, he added.

Robert L. Vickers, director of the state Office of Emergency Services, said his office has been "bombarded" with questions about evacuation and economic consequences of both earthquake damage and earthquake prediction since federal, state and local officials stepped up Bay Area earthquake studies in recent years.

San Rafael Woman Is Hit, Robbed

A 67-year-old San Rafael woman was beaten up and robbed in her garage Thursday as she returned from shopping, according to San Rafael police.

Bertha Mathilda Blanz of 209 Belle Avenue, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut left cheek and multiple bruises of the head.

She told police that she was getting out of her car — which was parked in her garage — shortly after noon when a man rushed up to her. He hit her repeatedly in the face and head, took her purse containing $150 in cash and her checkbook, then fled.

Neighbors who saw the man run to his car described him as black, 23 to 28 years old, about five feet, seven inches tall, 150 to 160 pounds and wearing a brown leather coat, blue pants and a brown hat with a small brim. He drove away in a 1969 green Plymouth, according to police reports.

SWEETENING THE SUGAR SHORTAGE

Tony and Bruno Albini, owners of California Bakery at 919 Fourth Street in San Rafael, are making an offer which coffee-and-doughnut freaks may find hard to refuse. The Albinis have been buying sugar in the supermarkets for the last several months. For some reaseon — which has them mystified — the sweet stuff on the store shelves costs from $10 to $13 less per hundred pounds than the $53 their wholesaler now charges. When markets began limiting sugar purchases to one bag per customers, the bakery owners decided to ask their customers for help. Since the sign went up yesterday three customers have accepted their offer. But they expect a lot more takers once word gets around. (Photo by Bob Hax)

Kissinger Wings For Washington

MADRID (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger headed for Washington today after a brief stopover in Spain and worked on a briefing for President Ford on the results his 18-day, 27,000-mile diplomatic oddysey.

U.S. officials said Kissinger is expected to deliver his briefing to President Ford tomorrow at Camp David.

The officials said the marathon tour may stimulate secret Middle East peace talks and help spur efforts at U.S.-Soviet arms reductions.

Kissinger flew to Torrejon U.S. air force base outside Madrid on his homeward journey from the Middle East after an overnight stop in Tunis.

He met for an hour at the base with Spanish Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina, but the subject was not revealed.

Officials acompanying Kissinger said the most important part of the trip may turn out to be the Moscow visit of Oct. 23-27 because there is a "50-50 chance" that it laid the basis for a new U.S.-Soviet strategic arms agreement.

On the Middle East, U.S. officials said they were still hopeful of a settlement, although they acknowledged the sitituation remains extremely delicate and complicated after the hard-line decisions of the Arab summit conference last week in Rabat, Morocco.

Tiny Tim's Needs Home

Tiny Tim's Christmas, an annual Marin program which provides toys and food to needy families, is in need of a home, according to Robert Collins, coordinator.

In past years, the program has used empty stores, a bank and a carpet warehouse to store and sort goods as they are received.

Collins, who has coordinated the program for five years, said he so far has been unable to find a location — preferably in central Marin — to begin operations.

"We need a location right now, preferably yesterday," he said. The building would be vacated by mid-January.

Collins said that a modest rent can be paid and added that even a large house would do.

Anyone who knows of such a building may contact him by calling Community Action Marin.

Novato Man Held After Shotgun Blast

A Novato man who fired a shotgun blast at his neighbor's home during a family quarrel last night was being held today in Marin County Jail.

Truman Larry McBeth, 36, of 161 West Kelly Drive, was arrested on suspicion of discharging a shtogun into an occupied building.

Police said McBeth fired a 12-gauge shotgun at a neighbor's house after his wife ran to the nearby home following a quarrel.

The blast — at about 10 p.m. — shattered a glass door, according to officers, who said the gun's pellets barely missed a neighbor in the house.

Bail for McBeth had not been set and he was to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

OBITUARIES

Inventor W.L. Koch Dies At 67

William L. Koch, 67, of San Francisco, a retired director of H. Koch and Sons, Corte Madera manufacturing company died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a long illness.

He was the son of Herman Koch, founder of the firm which began as a luggage manufacturing business in San Francisco in 1909, then went into fiberglass moulding when it moved to Corte Madera in 1954.

Koch, an inventor, created many of the firm's products and some of its machinery for the firm.

He became a director in 1958 when the firm became a corporation and retired seven years ago after it merged with Gulf and Western Industries of Houston, Tex.

Koch was a charter member of the Golden Gate Yacht Club, a member of the Elks Club and a former member of the Coast Guard Auxiliary. He was a native of New York City and had been a resident of the Bay Area for 50 years.

Surviving are his wife, Rose Koch, of San Francisco; a son, Maurice J. Koch of Sleepy Hollow; a brother, Harold M. Koch of Kent Woodlands; three sisters, Rebecca Abel of San Rafael, Helena Z. Salkin of Oregon and Estelle Marenstein of San Francisco; and three grandchildren.

Funeral will be at noon tomorrow at Sinai Memorial Chapel, San Francisco. The family prefers that memorial contributions be to the American Cancer Society or a favorite charity.

JUNE DORWARD

A memorial service for June W. Dorward of Tiburon will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday at Albert Brown Mortuary, 3476 Piedmont Avenue, Oakland.

Mrs. Dorward died Wednesday in Deer Lodge, Mont. She was 70.

She was born in Hannibal, Mo. and grew up in Deer Lodge. She had lived in the Bay Area for the past 40 years. She and her husband, David C. Dorward, who survives her, lived in Kentfield for nine years prior to moving to Tiburon, 10 years ago.

Mrs. Dorward operated a floral arranging business out of her home. Her husband is in the exporting business in San Francisco.

Mrs. Dorward was a member of the San Francisco and Marin garden clubs.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, David J. Dorward of Sun Valley, Idaho; a sister, Mrs. Dwight Rettenhouse of Deer Lodge, Mont. and three grandchildren.

Inurnment will be in the Chapel of the Chimes, Oakland.

district "wants to deal with the city over the table and discuss issues rather than take positions in the courttoom."

The attorney yesterday told Golden Gate Bridge District directors that the court decision transferred the lease for $79,500. The lease has 28 years to run. The disputed property is part of lands leased by Madden years ago from the state. The state subsequently turned all the lands over to the city, but the city will not get possession of them until the lease expires in 2002.

"In our opinion," Miller said, "we have acquired the right to use that property for 28 years."

Golden Gate Bridge District directors also:

SUBSIDY — Received a report from attorney Jenkins that elimination of midday and weekend service on the Sausalito ferry would increase the subsidy per passenger from 41 cents to $3.27.

MT. TAM — Protested Marin Municipal Water District's $300-a-month rental for the bridge district's radio antenna atop Mount Tamalpais, but approved the agreement unanimously. The bridge district's staff said there was no other site available with the elevation needed to serve the $834,000 radio system planned for district buses and ferries.

DOYLE DRIVE — Called a meeting of the "committee of the whole" at 10 a.m. Thursday in toll plaza offices to review proposals to improve the San Francisco approach to the bridge. The narrow roadway has been the scene of numerous head-on accidents. A permanent median barrier is planned by the state, but construction has been stymied by disputes over how many lanes to build.

DISCOUNTS — Referred to the transportation committee a request that transit fares be discounted for the blind and handicapped and persons over 62 years of age.

TRIAL — Appropriated $40,000 to cover unbudgeted attorney fees for a six-week trial just concluded. Harbor Tours brought the court case, arguing the district exceeded its legal authority in building an expanded ferry transit system.

PINS — Approved giving service pins to district employees. The cost this year will be about $5,100, averaging $30 for each pin to be awarded 169 of the district's 705 employees. Annual cost of the program will be about $500 in future years, the staff estimated, and the average cost of pins will go to about $50 apiece.

BUS GUIDES — Accepted a low bid of $14,351 by Product Agency Lt. of Ltd. of San Rafael to print 100,000 60-page guides to all of the district's transit routes. The guide, with maps showing color-keyed routes, will be issued twice a year. They will be in addition to the present route schedules that are separate for each area.

FARES — Received staff report that the district has received a petition signed by 135 bus commuters urging that the 25-cent discount on transit tickets be reinstituted. It was eliminated July 1.

MOUNT TAMALPAIS CEMETERY Marin's Peaceful Place of final rest

Mount Tamalpais Cemetery is a true haven of beauty, a lovely site of green lawns and rolling hills guarded by handsome trees.
The beauty of this setting is guarded, too, by an ever-growing endowment fund which guarantees the care of this property in the years ahead.
Perhaps—like many Marin families—you will want to consider the advantages of making final arrangements at Mount Tamalpais now. This thoughtfulness can spare loved ones difficult decisions in time of sorrow. We invite your visit, or suggest that you write for our brochure which explains our facilities.

2 Touchdown Passes For Praszker

Tam QB Keys Shutout Win Over San Rafael

BY DAVID DEL GRANDE

Tamalpais High School quarterback Ken Praszker threw just three passes last night in the football game against San Rafael. But when he did throw, he made it count.

Praszker fired 48 and 24-yard touchdown strikes to wide receiver Arthur McIntosh early in the third quarter, giving Tam a 14-0 upset victory before 1,000 lively fans at Paul Miller Field. Tam's win leaves both teams with 2-2-1 records in the Marin County Athletic League this year.

The Indian defense, which was saved as San Rafael receivers dropped two passes in the end zone in the first half, crushed the Bulldogs in the second half. Ignited by the Indians' two early scores in the third period, the Tam defense held San Rafael to minus one yard total offense in the decisive second half. During this span, Bulldog quarterback Dave Steele completed just one of 13 passes, while having three intercepted, two by McIntosh.

In the scoreless first half, San Rafael looked strong. The Bulldog offense penetrated Tam's 30-yard line three times, including one march to the three. But all three times, Tam forced Steele incompletions in clutch situations to end the threats.

Following San Rafael's kickoff to open the second half, Tam made its move. Running back Kevin Murphy and quarterback Praszker, who rushed for 71 and 43 yards respectively on the night, drove Tam to the Bulldog 48 with runs of five and 14 yards. From there, a Praszker pass intended for receiver Rick Lapora was deflected into McIntosh's clutches for a 48-yard touchdown.

The Praszker-McIntosh combination clicked again six plays later following McIntosh's first interception. This time, Praszker lofted a 24-yard pass into the end zone. McIntosh used his 6-foot-2 frame to outreach the Bulldog defender for the touchdown.

From then on, Tam's defense took over and preserved the hsutout, the Indians' second in their last three games. The shutout was the first against San Rafael this season.

Ali Is 'Serious' About Challenge

Frazier, Foreman In 1 Night

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali arrived in his native city yesterday with a "serious" challenge to fight George Foreman and Joe Frazier the same night in defense of his title.

"I'm going to fight again in six months, and I want Foreman and Frazier the same night—Foreman first because he'll go fastest," Ali told a crowd welcoming him back to Kentucky and the city in which he grew up.

The dapper-looking champ, clad in a black silk suit and blue shirt, said he was "serious" about his proposal to take on two opponents in one night. "I'm not jiving," Ali said.

MUHAMMAD ALI
Goes home

"How many of you would like to see me whip two in one night?" Ali asked as the crowd of about 10,000 roared approval.

He arrived here yesterday afternoon to an enthusiastic welcome by about 300 well-wishers, including his mother, Mrs. Odessa Clay, and Sen. Walter "Dee" Huddleston, DKy.

Ali arrived more than an hour late by private twin-engine jet, accompanied by his brother, Rahaman, and his wife, Belinda.

Others on hand to greet the champ in his homecoming included Jefferson County, Ky., Judge Todd Hollenbach with a four-page poetic tribute he had composed for Ali and Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane, who said the city planned to honor Ali by changing the name of a downtown street, Armory Place, to Muhammad Ali Place.

"Then everybody when they walk on that street will know that Louisville indeed is the home of the greatest," the mayor said.

During a world-televised post-fight interview after he knocked out Foreman at Zaire, Africa, Ali proclaimed Louisville "the greatest city in the world."

"One billion people heard me call Louisville the greatest place in the world, and it is the greatest because I'm from here, mainly," he said.

Ali, or Cassius Clay as he was known when he grew up in this city's west end section, remained here overnight after attending ceremonies in conjunction with Central High School's Homecoming celebration and a rally at the new riverfront Belevedere Plaza.

Ali attended Central High along with former heavyweight champion Jimmy Ellis, a product of the same neighborhood in which Ali grew up.

Today, he was to be honored at halftime of the University of Kentucky's Homecoming football game with Vanderbilt in Lexington before returning here tonight to attend an American Basketball Association game between the Kentucky Colonels and New York Nets. A third of the proceeds from the basketball game will go towards the creation of a Muhammad Ali boxing school in this city.

Mt. Tam, Redwood Undefeated

Powerful Mount Tamalpais School scored with five minutes left in the game yesterday to defeat Marin Academy, 3-2 at Mill Valley in the final game of the regular soccer season for both teams.

The see-saw battle was tied at 2 by half-time and remained that way until Brett Larson got the winning goal on a 30-yard shot from the left side.

The Marin County Athletic League also finished its season yesterday. Redwood ended undefeated by beating second place Terra Linda, 4-2, and San Marin earned a third place tie with a 3-2 win over Novato.

Tam lost to Drake, 5-2, and San Rafael defeated Marin Catholic, 3-2 in other games.

Mount Tam, already the Bay Counties League champion, finished with a perfect, 8-0 league record and a 16-2 overall mark that included 11 shutouts. Marin Academy finished fourth in the BCL at 3-5 behind Lick Wilmerding of San Francisco, (4-4) and College Prep of Oakland (3-5).

Marin Academy took a 1-0 lead in the early going on a goal by Mark Dayton. Kit Schweitzer also scored for Marin, with Chris Feder and John Way supplying Mt. Tam's first half scoring.

Redwood got two goals from left wing Don Seitz and one each from Manny Natsios and David Del Grande to record its second win of the year over Terra Linda.

Tom Abelew, Jim Arthurs and Chip Whitehead all scored for San Marin as the Mustangs ended the season tied with Tam.

Two goals each by Hugo De La Roca and Tom Larsen and one by Ken Turnbull enabled Drake to beat Tam and end the season at .500.

San Rafael got a pair of goals from John Obana and one from Hoss Parnow to tie Novato for sixth place.

Standings — Redwood, 14-0; Terra Linda, 8-3-3; Tamalpais, 7-5-2; San Marin, 7-5-2; Drake, 5-5-4; Novato, 3-9-2; San Rafael, 3-9-2; Marin Catholic, 1-12-1.

HEADING THE BALL — Marin Academy's George Dodge (white shirt) headed the ball after Chris Feder of Mount Tamalpais missed it in first half action yesterday in Mill Valley. Feder scored the first goal for Mt. Tam.

Benefit Dryland Ski Session Tomorrow

The 3HO North (Healthy, Happy, Holy Organization) will present a benefit dryland ski conditioning session tomorrow at Marin Academy.

The session, which begins at 10 a.m., will last at least until 2 p.m. Proceeds from the $10 fees benefit 3HO, a non-profit group organized to teach Kundalini Yoga. Hari Bachan Singh, a certified ski instructor, will teach.

MARIN BOOTERS TRIUMPH

Pirinjian Scores All 6 Goals

All-American Misak Pirinjian scored all six goals yesterday as College of Marin routed Los Medanos of Pittsburg, 6-1, in a Camino Norte Conference soccer game at Kentfield.

The Tars, seventh-ranked among California community college teams, passed superbly behind the playmaking of Mark Schlobohm to run their record to 13-6-1 overall and 4-1 in conference play. They are in second place, half a game behind Canada of Redwood City.

Pirinjian's scoring burst might have been expected; in Marin's other game against Los Medanos this year, the star center halfback also scored six goals in a 10-1 rout.

"It was a super team effort, even though Misak did all the scoring," said Tars coach Vic Petreshene. "It was a good passing game for us, and our fullbacks played quite consistently."

Lowly Bethel Waxed, 50-0

BRANDT, Ohio (UPI) — The fans yawned and went home and the Bethel Local High School football team went into hiding.

Burdened with perhaps the worst football team in the country, Bethel ended its 10- game season last night without a win and without a point—while letting opponents amass 545 points.

The final humiliating shutout, 50-0, came from DeGraff Riverside, a school which may as well be an understudy for Bethel.

Nomadic Lee To Philadelphia

Combined AP & UPI

PHILADELPHIA — Clyde Lee, the Atlantic Hawks' forward traded to the Philadelphia 76ers yesterday for forward Tom Van Arsdale, is slated to join the sixers tomorrow in Seattle.

The sixers traded veteran Van Arsdale and a third round draft choice next year for the 30-year-old Lee.

Lee, 6-10, averaged 6.2 points and eight rebounds for the Hawks this season. He came to them from Golden State at the start of the year as payment for the rights to veteran center Zelmo Beaty, who had jumped from the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association. Lee averaged 5.9 points per game last season for Golden State, who made him their first round draft choice in 1966.

Tennis

EDINBURGH, Scotland — Julie Heldman of the United States yesterday defeated Columbia's Isabella Fernandez, 6-4, 6-2, and moved into the finals of the Dewar Cup Tennis Tournament.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden yesterday crushed seventh-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain, 6-1, 6-1, to advance to the semifinasl of the $100,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament along with Arthur Ashe, Guillermo Villas and Tom Okker, seeded two, three and four respectively.

Baseball

OSAKA, Japan — John Milner and Ed Kranepool hit solo home runs today to pace the New York Mets to a 6-4 victory over combined Yomiuri Giants-Nankai Hawks team in intermittent rain before 30,000 at Osaka Stadium. It was the Mets' fourth win against five losses and two ties in their 18-game goodwill series.

Boxing

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Robert (Pappy) Gault, a former U.S. Olympic boxing coach, yesterday was found innocent of charges of accepting a bribe to arrange furloughs for an inmate at Lorton Reformatory while he was recreation specialist there. A jury of eight men and four women deliberated three hours before returning the verdict in U.S. District Court.

Novato Hornets In Grid Finale

The Novato High School Hornets can put the icing on the cake tonight when they close out their regular football season against the Terra Linda Trojans at San Rafael's Paul Miller Field.

The cake is the Marin County Athletic League championship, which the Hornets won last week. They beat San Marin, 19-0 while Terra Linda, the only other team with a shot at the title, lost to Tamalpais, 18-15. The icing is an undefeated season, which a victory over the Trojans tonight would achieve.

Novato is 7-0-1 overall, 5-0 in the MCAL coming into the game. They have done it with a defense that has four shutouts to its credit, and a quarterback who acts as if other defenses don't exist.

Terra Linda is 2-2 in the MCAL, 3-5 overall. Had they won last week, however, the Trojans would still have a chance to tie Novato for the championship. As it is they can gain second place in the final standings if they beat Novato and then San Marin next week, and if San Rafael obliges by dropping one of its last two games.

In order to stop Novato, however, the Trojans must accomplish what San Rafael, San Marin and two other MCAL teams failed to do — stop the passing of Mike Moroski. In the last two games he has completed 30 of 42 passes without an interception for 401 yards and two touchdowns.

His primary target is split end Steve Hoog, who leads the MCAL in scoring and receiving. He caught 16 for 137 yards and a touchdown against San Marin.

Obviously, pass coverage has failed miserably against Moroski and Hoog, and Terra Linda coach Don Lucas is realistic about the Trojans' chances in that department.

"You're not going to stop him (Moroski). He's one of the best passers we've ever had in this league. We'll just try to contain him."

Terra Linda's defensive line has blocked five punts this year, but Lucas doesn't think that will mean much regarding a pass rush. "They're going to score, so we're going to have to move the ball."

Will 49ers Set Club Mark For Losses?

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — A seventh consecutive loss by San Francisco would set a club record for futility but the 49ers hope that Norm Snead has recovered enough to lead them to an upset win over Dallas.

Coach Dick Nolan said that Snead apparently has shaken off the knee sprain that bothered him all week after he hit 11-of-17 passes to lead a gallant but losing comeback against Los Angeles Monday night.

Should Snead not be able to play, Nolan will probably go with Tom Owen. But a fifth 49er quarterback in nine National Football League games could also enter the scene.

Steve Spurrier, still considered the 49ers' No. 1 quarterback by Nolan, has been throwing the ball well all week and might see his first action since suffering a shoulder separation in the final preseason game.

The 49ers have problems elsewhere, too.

Offensive guards John Watson and Woody Peoples are expected to miss the game although Watson says he has been feeling better after suffering a muscle pull and might be ready for action.

Backup guard Bob Penchion was supposed to be out with a foot injury, but he is also expected to be ready so that he might split time with Watson at one spot while Randy Beisler goes at the other.

But the 49er running attack suffered noticeably without the guards at full strength last Monday and doesn't figure to do much better against the tough Dallas defenders.

That leaves it up to the passers, but the problem is that Dallas might be able to get a tough rush going with the 49er guards not at full strength.

The Dallas record of 4-4 is a strange one since the Cowboys have lost three and won one in the last few seconds and thus could be anything from 7-1 to 3-5.

But the Cowboys, with Roger Staubach throwing and Calvin Hill leading a bruising ground attack, still have dreams of a wild card playoff spot and need the win worse than the 2-6 Niners, who might be loose after being knocked out of contention in the heartbreaker against the Rams last Monday.

Bowler Sets Good Example

Dick Leesman set a good example for other Marin County bowlers to follow this week.

The San Rafael man bowled a 225-278-235—738 series Tuesday night in the 905 Classic at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael. This was the top league score turned in for the week.

SOME 40 TEAMS are expected to compete today and tomorrow in the eighth annual Marin County Bowling Association's Mixed Team Tournament at Country Club.

Squad times are 6:30 and 9 p.m. today and 4, 6:30 and 9 p.m. tomorrow. Teams, composed of two men and two women each, will bowl three games with total pins and handicap scoring.

Robles Gains Unpopular Win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rudy Robles of Los Angeles took an extremely unpopular middleweight verdict from David Love of San Diego last night in a 10-round bout that brought boxing back to Kezar Pavilion after eight years.

Robles weighed 161 and Love 157.

About 3,000 fans turned out for the first venture by promoters Luis Curiel and Pete Alvarez, who hope to present boxing cards there at least once a month.

Warriors Can Use Forwards

OAKLAND (AP) — Their six-game winning string ended, the Golden State Warriors meet the New York Knicks here tonight for the first time this National Basketball Association season feeling a bit of a pinch for manpower at the forward position.

The loss of Clyde Lee to Atlanta left Golden State in the market for another forward to go with Rick Barry, Derrek Dickey and rookie Keith Wilkes, but general manager Dick Vertlieb has been unable to make a trade.

Dickey injured his leg and was unavailable for Thursday's loss to Seattle, and was still doubtful for tonight, leaving only unproven rookie Frank Kendrick in reserve unless center Clifford Ray is again moved to a corner as was done against the Sonics.

The Knicks, 6-4, moved into a first-place tie with Buffalo in the Atlanta division last night by beating Los Angeles 117-105, with Bill Bradley scoring 32 points and making his first 10 shots. The Warriors, topping the Pacific Division with a 7-3 record, were idle yesterday.

San Rafael Wins In Water Polo

San Rafael High School moved to within a game of league leading Terra Linda yesterday with a 27-0 victory over Tamalpais in Marin County Athletic League water polo.

Sig Baerthel scored six goals and Jeff Kamler five as San Rafael ran its record to 7-2. Terra Linda, (8-1), won a non-league game yesterday, beating Del Balle of Moraga, 12-8. Mike Barton, Tom Olund, Ed Martinez and Tom Enright all contributed two goals to the victory.

In yesterday's other MCAL game, Redwood trounced San Marin, 22-6 behind 10 goals by Dave Russell.

Standings — Terra Linda, 8-1; San Rafael, 7-2; Redwood, 6-3; Drake, 4-4; San Marin, 1-7; Tamalpais, 0-9.

Five In A Row

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Don Hutson of the Green Bay Packers led the National Football League in pass receiving five straight seasons, six out of eight and eight out of 10.

FAVORED RAIDERS

Lions Need Victory More

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Detroit Lions need it more than Oakland but the Raiders are 11-point favorites to extend their victory string to eight games tomorrow.

The Lions have a 4-4 record thus far, but records can be deceptive. Bill Munson took over for injured Greg Landry at quaaterback and Detroit now rides a four-game win streak, best in the National Football Conference and good for second place behind Minnesota. The Lions have started dreaming of a wild card playoff spot.

Detroit beat New Orleans 19-14 last week after decisions over San Francisco (17-13), Minnesota (20-16) and Green Bay (19-17).

The Raiders widened their American Football Conference West lead to 3½ games over Denver Sunday by defeating the Broncos 28-17.

Only Buffalo has bested Oakland—a 21-20 season opener. Raider quarterback Ken Stabler has gone on to complete 93-of-182 passes for 1,365 yards and 15 touchdowns.

His chief target has been Cliff Branch, a fleet wide receiver who has caught 34 aerials for 628 yards and six TDs.

Detroit's tight defense, which only once has allowed more than 20 points this season, will try to end Stabler's string of 88 unintercepted passing attempts.

On offense, the Lions have a formidable passer of their own in Munson, who has completed 125-of-222 for 1,456 yards and seven touchdowns.

Wide receivers Ron Jessie and Larry Walton, each with 25 receptions, will test one of the best defensive teams in football. Oakland has 19 pass interceptions.

The game is a sellout for the Oakland Coliseum but it will not be televised because CBS will transmit the San Francisco 49ers-Cowboys contest from Dallas.

Fine Punt Returner

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Mike Fuller of Auburn tied the National Collegiate Athletic Association record when he returned two punts for touchdowns against Chattanooga. It also set a Southeastern Conference record.

Seals To Have Tough Weekend In Road Games

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The California Golden Seals will try to win tonight and survive tomorrow.

They open a weekend of National Hockey League road action here tonight against Pittsburgh and the Californians are still seeking their first road victory.

Tomorrow, they call on Philadelphia in the teams' first meeting since the notorious penalty-filled brawl at Oakland two weeks ago.

The Seals routed Philadelphia 4-1 in a game that produced a record 232 minutes in penalties. Two of the Flyers, Don Saleski and Bob Kelly, tomorrow will be coming off a six-game suspension as a result of the lengthy fight that left Seals defenseman Mike Christie with 14 stitches on three cuts around the eyes.

MURRAY OLDERMAN

A Double 100 Running Attack

THE TIPOFF:

Chuck Fairbanks, the coach of the astounding New England Patriots, still has one more significant change in mind for his revamped club. Chuck thinks the club's logo — the one on the helmet with a Colonial soldier centering the ball — is tacky and would like to find a new design.

Q. Have there ever been two 100-yard rushers on the same team in the same game? — Craig Miller, Santa Paula, Calif.

Sure, many times. Just as one example — in a game against the mighty Miami Dolphins last year, O. J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills rushed for 120 yards and his fullback buddy, Jim Braxton, carried for 119.

Q. I think that Allie Reynolds should be in the Baseball Hall of Fame. From 1950 through 1953, he dominated the pitching scene with his clutch pitching. He was practically invincible. — Monroe Miron, Elizabeth, N.J.

So what's the question? The Chief was one helluva pitcher but he suffers from the fact he didn't reach the majors full time until he was 28 years old and didn't win 200 games in his career. In last year's voting, besides Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford, who were elected, 11 players received more votes than Reynolds. It'd be pretty tough, for instance, to pick him over Robin Roberts, who won 286 games.

Q. When defensive pass interference is called, does the intended receiver get credit for a reception and the passer credit for a completed pass? — Lee Klima, Walnut Creek, Calif.

No, on the very logical assumption that you shouldn't get credit for something you didn't actually complete. Those are penalty calls.

Q. We are living in a time of inflation and high costs. Do you think they are wasting balls at ball games? Who pays for them? — Oliver Taylor, Cleveland, O.

In these inflated times, every NFL home team must have 12 inflated balls ready for the referee to test before each game. It's figured a team will use from 300 to 400 footballs a year for all purposes (practice and game). Don't feel sorry for them. They get most of them free (as baseball teams do, too) from the manufacturer as an advertising writeoff. On a volume basis, footballs cost the pros $17 each when they buy them.

Q. They said the zone defense took the long bomb out of football but this year I notice that many receivers such as Mel Gray of the St. Louis Cardinals are getting loose for long touchdown passes. What's the explanation? Are they playing less zone? — R. T., Springfield, Mo.

No, they're playing more zone if anything with the trend to three-man lines. But the pro teams are opening up their attacks a little more because the changes in the kicking rules (kickoff from the 35-yard line, etc.) are giving them better field position and allowing them to gamble a little more with their passing game. Also, football is a cyclical game and teams are learning to live with the zones and find their zones and find their soft spots. There's still no defense against a perfect pass. I have a feeling that three-man lines reduce the rush and let the passer look over his field better.

Q. Since the pro football players lost their strike this summer, can we expect things to be quiet on the labor front in sports over the next few years? — Drew Cummings, Lodi, N.J.

If you ask me, it's just the lull before the storm. The NFL players are performing this year without a labor-management contract just as they did in 1970, and are currently weighing their options for the post-season battle, such as affiliating with another labor group. Matter of fact, the players don't even concede yet they lost the strike. Look for future eruptions.

PARTING SHOT:

The NFL way of rating passers, devised a year ago to solve a perplexing problem, is just as ridiculous as previous systems and just as misleading in telling you who the most effective flinger is. Example, Billy Kilmer was No. 1 in the NFC before he was benched for Sonny Jurgensen. First radical step they should take is to give a passer credit only for the yardage to the point the receiver catches the ball.

NBA Win Is Doubly Satisfying

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Beating the world champion Boston Celtics on their home court would, for most folks, be sweet enough.

For the Detroit Pistons, however, yesterday's one-point victory over the National Basketball Association champs was doubly satisfying—it enabled them to move into first place in the NBA's western division.

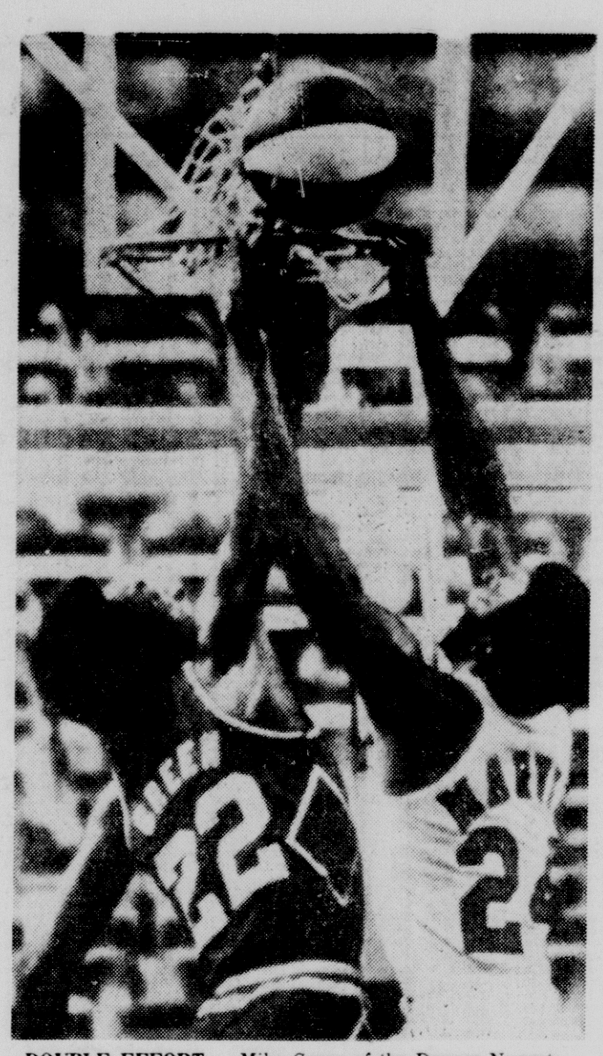
With veteran guard Dave Bing leading the way with 30 points, the Pistons took advantage of the Celtics depleted front court (still minus Dave Cowens) and eked out a 105-104 win to move a half-game ahead of KC-Omaha in the west.

Elsewhere in NBA action, Philadelphia drubbed Portland 105-89, Phoenix edged New Orleans 105-102 and the New York Knicks downed Los Angeles 117-105. In the ABA, the New York Nets downed Memphis 104-102 and St. Louis beat Denver 132-121.

Detroit led 78-69 going into the final period and had to hold off a late Boston surge led by John Havlicek's eight points. Big Bob Lanier had a field day with the Cowens-less Boston front court, pouring in 27 points and picking up 20 rebounds. Havlicek, whose six points in the final two minutes pulled the Celtics to within the eventual 105-104 final, topped all scorers with 36 points.

76ers 105, Blazers 89

Steve Mix scored a gamehigh 36 points and the 76ers reeled off 22 straight points to open up a 52-30 lead with a minute remaining in the first half.



DOUBLE EFFORT — Mike Green of the Denver Nuggets went up through the basket to block a layup attempt by Marvin Barnes of the Spirits of St. Louis during an American Basketball Association game last night in St. Louis. Green was called for goal tending. (UPI Telephoto)

Suns 105, Jazz 102

Charlie Scott sank a seven-foot jump shot in the final seven seconds to give Phoenix the victory and deal the winless Jazz their 11th straight NBA loss.

Spirits 132, Nuggets 121

Goo Kennedy came off the bench to spark the Spirits with a career-high 24 points, including 10 in the third quarter.

Knicks 117, Lakers 105

Bill Bradley had a seasonhigh 32 points to lead the Knicks past Los Angeles.

Nets 104, Sounds 102

Julius Erving sank two free throws with five seconds left to assure the Nets of the victory.

TO OUST NHL LEADER

No Plot Against Campbell

MONTREAL (UPI) — Clarence Campbell, saying his 28-year presidency of the National Hockey League was never challenged, denied reports yesterday there was a plot by some team owners last June to oust him.

A column in the Toronto Globe and Mail said several dissident team owners tried to force Campbell out of office and have him replaced by Montreal Canadiens' General Manager Sam Pollock.

Campbell, in a brief statement released by his office yesterday, said his "position as president was never really challenged."

Pollock told newsmen the allegations were "rubbish, absurd." He said, "I think Mr. Campbell is doing an excellent job and I have no interest in his position."

The newspaper column by Dick Beddoes said Ed Snider, chairman of the Philadelphia Flyers, and others attempted the corporate coup at the NHL Board of Governors meeting last June.

It quoted Toronto Maple Leafs' President Harold Ballard as saying that he foiled the scheme with the backing of Bruce Norris of the Detroit Red Wings and Bill Wirtz of the Chicago Black Hawks.

"They tried to squeeze him (Campbell) out before I raised a hell of a holler," Ballard was quoted as saying.

Snider, contacted in Philadelphia, said, "It's an outright lie and Harold Ballard is a liar and that's all I have to say about it."

The Globe columnist said Ballard's disclosure of the plot was sparked by comments by Flyers' Captain Bobby Clarke.

Overexuberance Is Costly For Analy In Grid Defeat

By DIANE FISHER

SEBASTOPOL — Overexuberant Tim Doherty burst from the Analy sidelines and tackled Gaucho Dan Lutz, to give Casa Grande High School an automatic touchdown here last night. The Gauchos downed the Tigers, 15-8, in Sonoma County League football.

"Where did that guy come from?" shouted an amazed Casa Grande fan.

In the fourth quarter, Lutz, the game's leading rusher with 174 yards, broke loose from Casa Grande's 29 yard line and began racing down field. With Analy defenders trailing behind, it looked like Lutz would go all the way.

But Doherty decided to help his teammates and jumped into the action with a flying tackle that ended Lutz's run and Analy's chances. Until then, the Gauchos led, 9-8.

Casa Grande scored in the first quarter when Jim Bricker dashed five yards on a quarterback sneak around left end. In the second period, Gaucho Larry Thomas booted a 17-yard field goal to make the score 9-0 at the half.

Analy's Joe Negri intercepted a Bricker pass in the third quarter and Tom Tosti barreled four yards for the Tiger touchdown. Tosti then ran for the two-point conversion.

Goalie Condition Is Satisfactory

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Minnesota North Stars' goaltender Fern Rivard remained in satisfactory condition today at Pennsylvania Hospital with contusions of the spine.

A hospital spokeswoman said Rivard, who was injured in Thursday night's game with the Philadelphia Flyers, probably would be hospitalized for about a week. He was kept overnight Thursday in the intensive care unit, but was released from the unit early Friday.

"He was paralyzed (in both legs) when he came in," said Dr. Frederick Simeone, chief of neurosurgery at the hospital, "but he has recovered a good deal. He has regained all his strength in his right leg and the sensation is returning to his left leg."

PERIOD PIECES

Clothed in colorful costumes and using replicas of ancient instruments, the Amici Musicae of Berkeley will present a concert of Medieval Renaissance music Nov. 22 at 8 p.m. at the Tamalpais in Greenbrae. Featured will be a variety of works, from 13th century cantatas to 16th century pieces by Sandrin, Susato and Josquin Des Prez. The program is part of the College of Marin's concert and lecture series. General admission is $2.

Queried Doctors, Residents Back Hospital Relocation

Many Southern Sonoma physicians and residents of Cotati and Rohnert Park favor construction of a hospital that is more centrally located than Petaluma's Hillcrest.

That was the main finding this week in a survey conducted by the Petaluma Hospital District. Officials of the district are trying to decide whether to expand the crowded, 57-bed Hillcrest or build a new facility elsewhere.

Although most members of the district board favor a new facility in a new location, they ordered the surveys to find out what doctors and district taxpayers think.

The hospital question was the main issue in the hospital board election last Tuesday. Winners were incumbent board President Frederick A. Groverman, a Cotati veterinarian, and Carole S. Barlas, a Petaluma health educator who both favor relocation.

Hillcrest administrator Charles E. Cowen said the option of expanding or moving was placed before the 65 physicians officially listed on the Hillcrest staff roster.

Cowen said 41 doctors responded to the questionnaire. Of these, he said 32, or 78 per cent, said they favored a new hospital located more centrally in the district, which extends from the Marin County line north to the outskirts of Santa Rosa. Four doctors, or 10 per cent, want to see Hillcrest expanded and five, 12 per cent, either indicated no preference or suggested other alternatives.

The Cotati and Rohnert Park residents were surveyed by sending questionnaires to all municipal water customers in both cities. Of 4,542 forms sent out, Cowden said 858, 19 per cent, were returned.

A total of 305, or 38 per cent, said they would use Hillcrest if it were enlarged and 150 (24 per cent) said they would support a bond issue to pay for such expansion.

However, Cowen said 524 respondents, about 70 per cent, said they would use Hillcrest if it were relocated to a more central location near Highway 101. And 501 (67 per cent) said they would support a bond election to pay for a new hospital.

Most Cotati and Rohnert Park residents responding to the survey said they do not use Hillcrest, even though their taxes support it. (for most residents of both cities, Santa Rosa hospitals are nearer than the Petaluma facility).

When asked where they went for care if hospitalized in the last five years, only 147 (23 per cent) answered Petaluma.

A total of 265 (42 per cent) said Santa Rosa and 216 (34 per cent) said they had gone elsewhere.

Supervisors To Consider Lucas Plan

A master plan which proposes 472 new dwellings for the Luiz and Grady ranches in upper Lucas Valley will be considered Tuesday by Marin County supervisors.

The county planning commission has recommended approval on condition that 65 of the new dwellings be reserved for moderate-income families.

The master plan calls for 40 single-family homes, 296 townhouse dwellings and 136 apartment units on the two ranches, which total 1,615 acres. The ranches are on the north side of Lucas Valley Road below Big Rock.

All but 244 acres would remain in open space. Community facilities would include a village center, recreation club, fire station and pedestrian and bicycle paths.

Supervisors, meeting at 10 a.m. at Civic Center, also will consider formation of a county services area in the Marin Country Club area of South Novato.

Residents of the area have proposed the service area as a means of raising revenue for open space purchases.

Prime Rate Cut Again By Bank

NEW YORK (UPI) — First National City Bank yesterday lowered its prime interest rate for business loans to 10½ per cent despite an increase in loan demand and a reduction in the nation's money supply.

Nevertheless, First National, the nation's second largest bank and a pace-setter on interest rates, said it dropped its prime rate one quarter percentage point effective Tuesday. It was the sixth straight week of prime reduction.

Decision On Belveron Minipark Sent To Tiburon City Council

The Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission has tossed into the lap of the city council a decision on whether to spend $34,000 — nearly four times more than expected — to landscape the Belveron mini-park.

The figure was the lowest of four bids for the work opened and reviewed Thursday by the parks and recreation commission. The council will consider the matter Tuesday.

The park is located off Tiburon Boulevard in the Belveron Gardens subdivision.

Of $9,000 budgeted by the city for the park last spring, about $4,300 already has been spent on consultant's fees and playground apparatus, according to administrative aide Stan Lichlyter.

The increased cost has been attributed to drainage problems and higher costs for labor and materials.

In other business Thursday, the parks and recreation commission asked city engineer Stanley M. Bala to draw plans for refurbishing two lanes in Old Tiburon which have become familiar paths for children and pedestrians. One of them, Esperanza Lane, runs from Esperanza to Mar West streets. The other, Moitoza Lane, connects the Hill Haven area with Old Tiburon.

The Parks and Recreation Commission also:

TENNIS COURTS — Decided that members of the city staff who don't live in Tiburon can't use the city tennis courts at Del Mar School.

PARK NAME — Asked residents to submit possible names for a new two-acre park near the Hilarita housing project.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Commissioner Angelo Capozzi who quit after two years of service because of business pressures.

PLAYING FIELDS — Decided to ask the city council to consider providing more sports playing fields in the city to accommodate a booming interest in soccer among adults and children.

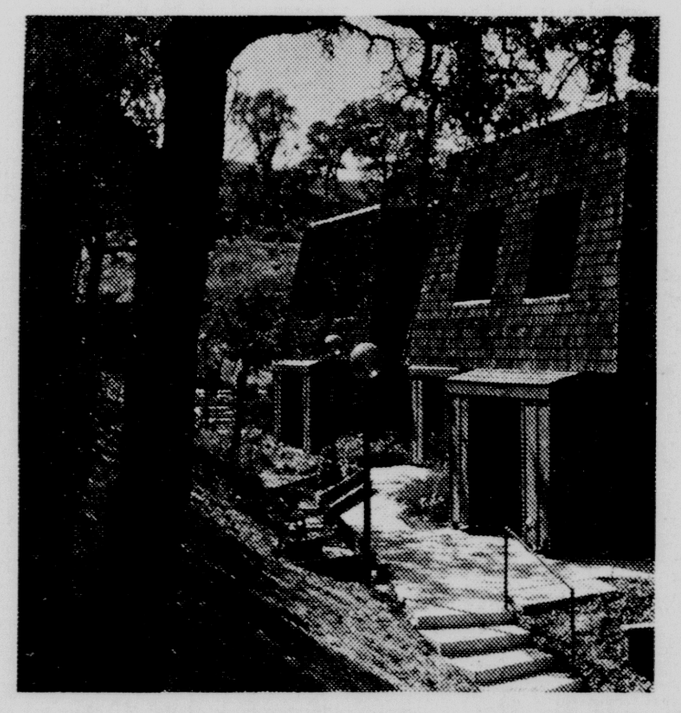
BETWEEN THE EMPORIUM AND SEARS

A Grand and Sensible Opening.



$31,500
For the money, it's the biggest town house in Marin.

It's true. Western Oaks is opening a new unit of two-story, two-bedroom, 1024 square foot town houses for only $31,500. Possible because construction began before building costs started to sky-rocket. 1975 buyers won't be so lucky.

Western Oaks has all of the qualities that makes a Marin home coveted. A lovely country setting. Superb vistas of the surrounding hills and oaks through sliding glass doors in each town house. And a handsome clubhouse and pool, almost completed, atop a high knoll with a view clear to Black Point Forest.

Western Oaks financing cost is 9¼% and our closing costs are only $375. With a down payment of $3150, your monthly payment on the loan is $233. Plus $25 for the homeowner's fee and insurance and $60 for taxes.

Live in Marin—sensibly. Our newly decorated model is now ready and full of fresh ideas for your own home. It's open daily except Tuesday noon to 5. Weekends 11 to 6. Just seconds off the freeway in Novato. Take 101 to the Rowland exit, then west to Redwood Blvd.

BALLAD TO THE HOUSE...

. . . that has given joy. The family arrived with many possessions which were carefully placed in 3 ample bedrooms and a grand living/dining room. Hearts rejoice as they reviewed the magnificent surroundings. From the virgin soil they created a garden of private illusions with towering trees, luxuriant plantings, charming winding paths. Many seasons have passed and the time has come for a new family to enjoy the use, warmth & beauty of this gracious home. You're invited to visit . . . we know you will stay. $89,500.

Recreation Program Initiated

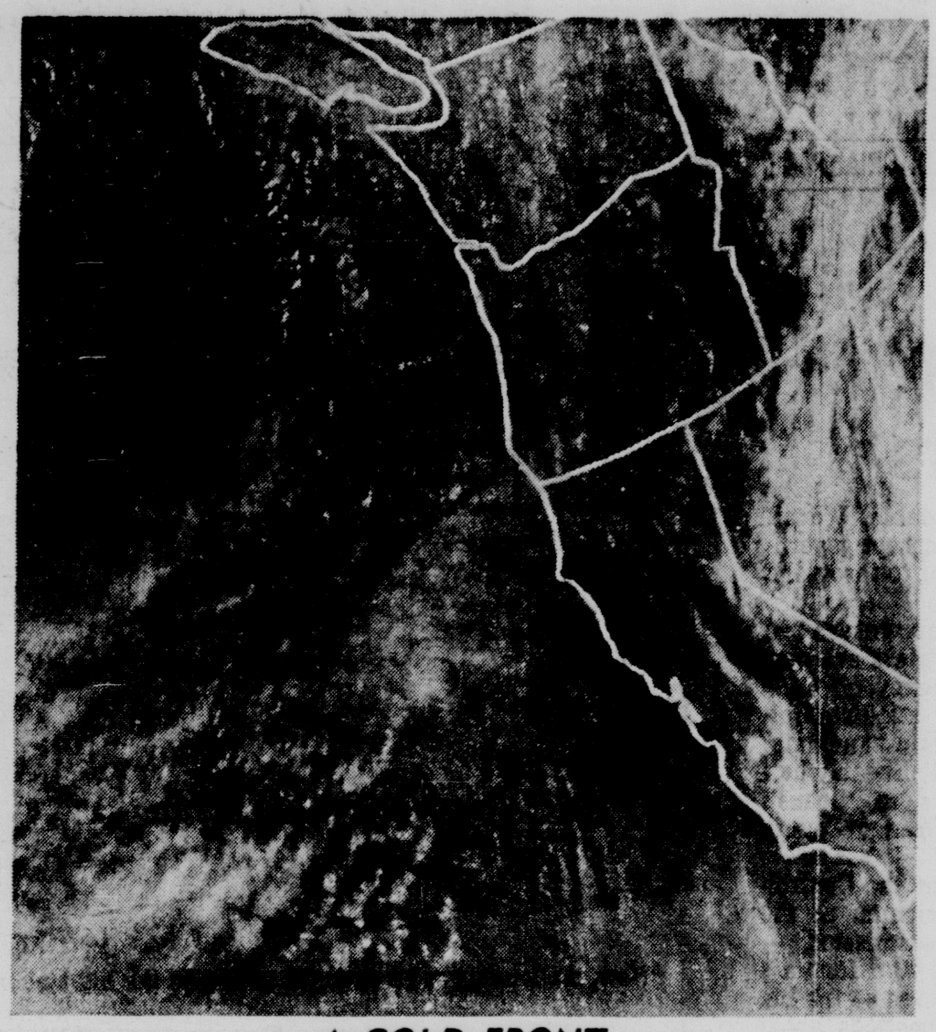
An after-school recreational program will start Tuesday at Lagunitas School.

Activities will be Monday through Friday from 3 to 4 p.m. and will include table games, basketball, baton, track and field and jazz dancing, according to Supt. Harry Roche.

Lagunitas School District trustees on Wednesday chose Jean Berensmeier to head the recreation program.

In other business, the board announced that the terms of trustees Glen E. Twitchell and Wilma McVey will be up for election next March 4.

The school board also paid $1,200 to the state for additional science materials.



A COLD FRONT

Consumers Losing Inflation Battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers are losing ground in the battle against food inflation and the percentage of a worker's take-home pay needed to buy the groceries is rising.

Agriculture Department economists said yesterday food spending increased at an annual rate of $6.5 billion from July through September, to a new seasonally adjusted annual rate of $167.3 billion.

This means food cost an average 16.9 per cent of after-tax income in the third quarter, compared with 16.6 per cent from April-June and 16.2 per cent a year ago.

The economists also predicted higher food prices for the rest of 1974 and through at least the first half of 1975.

The Agriculture Department's Crop Reporting Board issued a monthly report showing further cuts in weather damaged corn and soybean crops —the key raw materials for meat, milk and poultry supplies.

A food situation summary report said per capita food consumption is rising nearly 2 per cent above 1973, the largest yearly gain since 1959. The increase was attributed to greater consumption of red meat, poultry and a 13.5 per cent drop in the volume of farm exports.

But the report added that gloomier times are ahead. With the exception of beef, production of most other meats, poultry and other livestock products will decrease next year because of the sharply reduced corn crop and record livestock feed costs.

At the end of 1974, the experts pointed out, total U.S. stock levels of all crop and livestock food commodities are expected to be at their lowest level in 16 years.

Rep. Lawrence Couglin, RPa., said he will introduce legislation to create a special joint congressional committee to investigate soaring food prices —particularly sugar — when Congress recovenes Nov. 18.

Couglin also urged President Ford take action to halt skyrocketing sugar prices by eliminating tariffs on sugar imports.

Several consumer groups charged that the government's proposed changes in the beef grading system will result in lower quality meat at higher prices.

The groups said that the changes would upgrade certain lower cuts of meat and "the public would be ripped off buying a lesser grade of beef for more money."

Rusty Grenade Was Still Live

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — A teacher yesterday took away a rusty grenade students were passing around in a Hancock Place High School history class.

St. Louis County police said only rust kept it from going off.

The teacher, James Ownbey, took the grenade from a 14-year-old student, who said he thought it was a "dud."

Ownbey called police and Detective Charles Vogt, a member of the bomb and arson squad, took the grenade to a quarry where it was detonated.

Police said the pin and handle were missing, and rust prevented the "striker" from igniting the fuse.

The student said he found the grenade on the Mississippi River bank at Jefferson Barracks about two weeks ago when the river was extremely low.

Educators Brace For Protesters

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Law enforcement agencies braced today for more demonstrations after the Kanawha County Board of Education voted to return a series of controversial textbooks to the classrooms.

"We're sitting on a tight wire. We're hoping everything will be peaceful," said a dispatcher for the sheriff's office.

Preacher-led parent groups pledged renewed protests against books ordered back into schools yesterday by the embattled Board of Education. A rally and parade were planned today.

The board, under pressure for 10 weeks to get rid of the books, decided to send 95 per cent of them back to the county schools and the rest into school libraries. The books had been stacked in a warehouse for a month.

More than 325 books in language arts programs for all school grades have been involved in the controversy, which set off shootings, dynamite attacks on school property, mine strikes and other troubles in this shaken coal mining region.

The Revs. Marvin Horan, Avis Hill and Ezra Graley issued a statement saying they "completely and flatly refuse" the board's decision.

"We can't allow our children to be undermined by the contents of these books," Horan said. He said a major boycott of the county's schools was being organized for next week.

Earlier protests have left thousands of classroom seats vacant. Some children have not been to classes since schools opened Sept. 3 because of books their parents have labeled everything from communistic to the "work of the devil."

Surrounded by TV lights on a stage draped with blue and gold curtains in the Charleston Civic Center, the board made its decision at a meeting by saying, "Lord, we need Your help."

The vote to return the books was 4-1.

Dies On Way To Hospital

A 26-year-old man summoned a cab to take him from downtown San Rafael to Marin General Hospital yesterday, but died before arriving at the emergency room.

He was identified as Frank Martin Hanz Jr., of San Anselmo, the Marin coroner's office said.

A coroner's spokesman said Hanz and two companions got into the cab about 4 a.m., but efforts to revive him at the hospital were futile and he was pronounced dead at 4:30.

The companions took the cab to a Mill Valley motel but did not check in and haven't been found, the coroner's office said.

His arms and legs showed what appeared to be needle marks, but coroner's office said the cause of death will not be determined until an autopsy is performed.

Singer Dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Famed singer-composer Ivory Joe Hunter, who wrote more than 2,000 songs, including "Since I Met You, Baby," died yesterday at a Memphis nursing home of lung cancer. The 63-year-old Hunter earned a gold record in 1956 as both composer and recording artist for "Since I Met You So," and "Ain't That Loving You, Baby."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Ten Commandments Can Help Forty-Ish Prepare For Sixties

Most of us will reach retirement age and then some. And if we develop an age-related illness, chances are there is a remedy for it.

While medical advances have provided us with new incentives and ways to maintain good health, we must not wait too long before utilizing them. On or prefereably before your 40th birthday, start to take better care of yourself, since health at 65 takes more than luck.

THERE ARE MANY things an average healthy person can do to live to a ripe old age. I call the following suggestions "Ten Commandments for the Elderly."

1. Eat a balanced diet, including proteins, vitamins and fluids, and less fats and calories. This regimen will help maintain healthy tissues and normal weight.

2. Maintain regular elimination of bodily waste products. Be sure to tell your doctor about any major changes in bowel or urinary habits.

3. Set aside regular relaxation periods and obtain adequate rest of both body and mind.

4. Engage in interesting and regular recreational activities.

5. ACQUIRE a sense of humor, since there is no better antidote for tension and minor irritations.

6. Avoid excessive emotional tensions and unpleasant situations, because these lead to ineffectiveness.

7. Adhere to mutual loyalty of friends and family.

8. Take pride in what you do. Nothing is more gratifying than the satisfaction gained from a job well done.

9. PARTICIPATE in community, church and social affairs.

10. Continue expansion of wisdom, knowledge and experience. Geroge T. Lock Land, author of "Grow or Die," said, "Not to grow is to die."

The 10 points are not difficult to follow as long as your mind and body are healthy.

MODERATION in all things, regular exercise and a proper balance between work, play and sleep may sound "old hat," but they have much to do with longevity.

HIVES

O. H. writes: I get red welts every time I take an aspirin. Do you think I'm allergic to the drug?

REPLY

Yes, you are. Stop taking aspirin and get one of the aspirin substitutes because you could develop a severe or even fatal allergic reaction. Have you discussed this with your physician?

DIGITALIS

M. S. writes: Will a person with a normal heart ward off heart disease if he takes digitalis?

REPLY

Digitalis is used only when the heart begins to fail or the beat becomes extremely irregular. It may disturb the efficience of a healthy organ and is not a prophylaxis against any type of heart disease.

DISAGREEABLE BOARDER

L. F. writes: Our 21-year-old daughter just won't get out of bed when I call her on work days. If I try to rouse her, she gets abusive. What do you think I should do about this?

REPLY

It's your house, isn't it? Tell her she will obey your rules or get her own apartment.

Corporate Tax Loophole Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said yesterday "a little known loophole" in the tax laws will give corporations between $6 to $9 billion in tax breaks this year.

"The effect will be to swell the coffers of corporate treasuries at a time of unprecendented profits while it plunges the federal government deeper into debt and adds to inflationary pressures," Proxmire said.

The loophole, according to Proxmire, allows a corporation, without the permission of the Internal Revenue Service, to shift its accounting treatment of inventories.

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

28 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

The Editor's Notebook

Little Consistency In Election Results

Before the results of last Tuesday's elections fade into history, one message they contained deserves to be considered.

Nationally, the results clearly constituted a landslide for the Democratic Party, presumably reflecting revulsion against the Watergate scandals and inflation-recession.

In California, registered Democrts outnumber Republicans by a wide margin.

More than 6 million Californians went to the polls this week. Democrat Edmund Brown Jr. won the governorhsip by fewer than 100,000 votes.

Despite the nation-wide Democratic landslide, despite Watergate and the adverse economic situation, Republican Hugh Flournoy had to have pulled a sizeable number of Democratic votes away from the Democratic nominee.

One message in the California election results, then, is that Democrats have less than full confidence in California's new governor-elect. (In Marin, a majority voted for Republican Flournoy, although Democrats outnumber Republican voters in the county by a substantial margin.)

That message seems to put the monkey squarely on Jerry Brown's back.

He will be watched with critical eye as he enters the governor's mansion in Sacramento.

EVERYBODY SEEMS to agree that the Watergate scandals hurt Republican candidates everywhere.

It is understandable. We all are fed up with corrupt government. We all want to throw the rascals out.

But sometimes voters do strange things. Voters are now known for consistency.

In the race for state controller, the Democratic candidate, Ken Cory, accepted nearly half a million dollars in "loans" from two rich Orange County supporters.

Considering that the Controller becomes chairman of the State Lands Commission — which oversees California's tideland oil reserves — the big "loans" raise questions about what the "lenders" may expect in return.

There was no such set of curious circumstances about the Republican candidate, Bill Bagley of Marin.

Yet, Cory polled something like 300,000 more votes than did Bagley.

IN MARIN, Republican Alan Hill, an original "Mr. Clean," was defeated by Democrat Mike Wornum, whose manipulation of airline ticket charges to the county was questioned during the campaign.

Another curious result of Tuesday's voting:

Democrats Jess Unruh and March Fong and Republican Evelle Younger each polled more votes than did Jerry Brown.

To paraphrase scripture, voters sometimes "move in mysterious ways, their wonders to perform."

—Jack Craemer

About Candidate Endorsements

In its candidate endorsements, the Independent-Journal does not "tell people how to vote." We tell our readers how we feel about the candidates, and our reasons for it. As it is part of our job to investigate candidates, we find out more about them than does the average voter, so we feel competent to recommend — but not to dictate.

Nevertheless, we naturally are always interested in how generally Marin voters agree with us, or differ from our recommendations.

A majority of Marin voters agreed with the I-J Tuesday that Houston I. Flournoy should be the next governor. But a bare majority chose Mervyn M. Dymally for lieutenant governor over John L. Harmer, whom we endorsed.

Big Marin majorities went along with us for March K. Fong for secretary of state, Alan Cranston for U.S. senator, William T. Bagley for state controller, Evelle J. Younger for attorney general, and Peter H. Behr for state senator. A smaller majority favored — as we did — John T. Kehoe for state treasurer.

However, majorities in Marin turned to John L. Burton for Congress, William M. Bennett for state board of equalization member, and Michael Wornum for assemblyman, thus disagreeing with our recommmendations.

We weren't trying to pick winners; we were endorsing those we considered the best candidates. But our "batting average" turned out to be pretty good.

We look forward to good relations with those office winners whom we didn't endorse. They recognize, as we do, that it would be a sad day for all of us if there were total agreement on any candidate. There can't be, in a democracy.

'Ecology' Loses Meaning

Ernst Haeckel, a noted popularizer of the theory of evolution in Germany, liked to coin words. Over half a century ago he coined the word "ecology" to mean the study of the interactions of plants and animals and their environment. Like geology or physiology, it was thought of as a scientific study.

Today, it is losing meaning through overuse. It is becoming a catchall label for anything good that happens outside the cities or anything that does not involve bulldozers, food additives, or chemical fertilizer.

We are likely to hear something like, "But that would ruin Marin's ecology!" Imposible. It might harm the environment, but even deserts and cities are interesting from an ecological point of view. Ecology is simply another discipline and cannot be good or bad any more than geology, history, or physics.

"If inflation shifts to recession, we'll be the last to know."

Fig Eaters

Fresh figs are a delicate and delicious treat in many Marin and Sonoma gardens. Most people like them. One friend says a squirrel eats hers. Another says the raccoons eat his. Birds love to peck big holes in them. Any animal that can get at them seems to find them tasty.

"Now, no doubt, you're eager to get on to the big stakes."

Carrier Move Would Retain Post Office

In reference to your article of Nov. 7 on the discussion of the Larkspur postal facilities at the city council meeting, reporter Newell erred in reporting the size of the Larkspur Post Office; it has 2,300 square feet, not 4,700. The latter figure is the area needed to adequately house the present operation.

Though the figures were repeated clearly several times, the Larkspur Council was also confused. Some members could not grasp the fact that, though the building would have to be abandoned at the expiration of the lease in 1976 because of space inadequacy, moving the carriers to the Corte Madera office would leave completely adequate space for the remaining services. The lease could then be renewed and the post office could remain at its present site. . .

The most newsworthy item was missed, I feel, in not reporting the reason behind Councilman Curley's "aye" vote on the first resolution. After previous objections had been answered, Mr. Curley indicated that his major objection to the move of the carriers was the fact that he and other post office boxholders could not have the "personal touch" of having their mail addressed to their street address without suffering the disadvantage of having their mail delivered at 9:30 a.m. instead of 8:30 a.m. . .

'Ingrown' District Board Not Necessarily Bad

In a Nov. 2 editorial I discovered that I am omnipotent beyond my dreams. The Independent-Journal credits me with helping persuade two well-qualified men to run for the Marin Hospital District Board. The truth is that it was difficult enough to persuade one well-qualified man to run for an elective job that is time-consuming, difficult and non-remunerative.

One might gather from the Nov. 2 editorial that I think an "ingrown" board a major problem. I do not. Ingrown boards are not necessarily ineffective. The major board problems were well delineated before the election by the four board aspirants.

The Independent-Journal is absolutely right that the hospital board "has taken too little heed of the public and paid too little attention to the over-all health care picture of Marin County." The Independent-Journal is serving a useful function by sending a top reporter regularly to board meetings. This is a new policy and a commendable policy. The hospital board needs all the input it can get from a public that has not been well informed in the past.

Losing Public Office Is Tough When Helicopter Goes With It

WASHINGTON — In every political contest there is a winner and a loser. You hear a lot from the winner, but nothing from the loser. What happens to a defeated candidate? How does he feel?

"Governor Habadasher," I said.

"Oh, you still remember me?" Habadasher smiled.

"You only lost the election Tuesday, Governor."

"People forget fast in this state, son."

"IT MUST BE TOUGH to have been a governor and then be turned out by the people. What was the first thought that came to your mind when they told you that you had lost the election?"

"I thought about all the good things I had hoped to accomplish for this state — the unfinished business that I had started; the dreams that were shattered by an electorate that didn't understand what I was trying to do."

"That's very nice, governor. But what were you really thinking?"

"Well, if you want me to level with you, the first thought that came to mind was, 'Damn, there goes my helicopter.' You know, I really got to love that helicopter. It would land right out there on the front lawn and zoom! I was above all the traffic and the stinking congestion and lousy air down there and I could get to the football game in 15 minutes. There's no feeling like it."

"NO ONE COULD fault you for thinking that. Do you blame anyone for losing the election?"

"I blame myself, only myself. Of course, I had lousy TV commercials. I mean they really stank. But every time I complained, they told me I didn't know anything about show business. And those infantile newspaper ads didn't help me any, nor did my campaign staff who seemed to be drunk every time I needed them. And I'll tell you this — I got creamed because some idiot was running for senator on the same ticket as I was and his opponent stole all my votes. Except for that, I would say it was my fault."

"That's very generous of you, governor. Your wife said after your defeat that she was happy you were getting out of politics."

"She was lying. She enjoyed being the governor's wife more than I enjoyed being governor. Boy, did she love all those servants and that chauffeured limousine and everyone playing up to her because she lived in the mansion! She may have told the press she was happy I was getting out of politics, but she hasn't talked to me since I lost the election."

"GOVERNOR, WHAT DOES the future hold for somebody like you? Where does one go after being the head of a state?"

"I'd like to get into the cabinet."

"President Ford's cabinet?"

"Why not? He blew the election for me with his pardon. The least he could do is give me a cabinet post."

"But if he gave everyone who lost the election a high post in his administration, the president would have to hold his cabinet meetings in RFK Stadium."

"That's what my wife said."

"GOVERNOR, BY AMERICAN standards, you're a loser. You have tasted the bitter fruit of defeat. Having lived through it, would you advise young people to run for public office?"

"I certainly would."

"Why?"

"Because if you win, you have a chance of getting your own helicopter. There's nothing like it, son. You're flying way up there in the clouds and when you look down, all you see are suckers jammed bumper to bumper trying to get home from the football game."

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

What this country needs right now is a car that will run on promises of better mileage.

All politicians will agree the best kind of campaign is the one run this year by House Speaker Carl Albert: Unopposed.

The big election issue of 1974 has been inflation, and the Republicans are certain they know which party inflated it.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Walk Through Art Gallery Puts Troubles In Perspective

LOS ANGELES — If the papers and the neighbors say these are times of travail and foreboding, as they do, it is instructive to remember that times have been worse.

If these are times when all our leaders seem pygmies, as has been stated with authority, it helps to compare them with the years of U.S. Grant (the president) or of Warren Harding. Or with last year, for that matter.

Politicians have been littler, the market sicker, inflation steeper, droughts drier, crops slimmer, people hungrier. We have mistrusted each other more. There have been times when we've shared our own brothers' blood.

And yet out of those trials we made our way eventually stronger and, having done that, more confident of ourselves.

THIS IS NOT Pollyanna sewing silver linings, but a man who has just done two things: (1) watched another in a long line of election campaigns and seen that out of it is certain to come a cast of new national figures who will stand far above pygmyhood, and (2) walked through an art museum.

That (2) is not as farfetched as it sounds. I not only walked but I rewalked slowly four times through one of the most provocative testimonials to American resilience ever assembled. It is a collection of American narrative painting at the Los Angeles County Art Museum, out Wilshire Boulevard among the glass boxes and nonstop traffic of commercial California.

It is pertinent that this work come together here, for the boulevard's hard-edged buildings and machines typically replaced people and their pursuits as art subjects for the country's conscious sophisticates during most of this century. When the curators sought paintings declaring life rather than empty techniques, they looked back and farther back. And American taste in painting is turning the same way.

HERE ARE REMINDERS of national trauma. Not knowing is in the faces of "The Boston People Watch From the Housetops the Firing at Bunker Hill." John Vanderlyn's "The Death of Jane McCrea" dramatizes her fate before two giant Indians, during the days when we were stretching out toward the Mississippi, and such an end was a realistic possibility. David Gilmour Blythe's "Libby Prison, 1863" drives home the gloom, squalor and lice of existence for Civil War captives.

Yet this mood is outweighed by Americans making do before, during and after these trials. The phony glory that is so forced in Soviet "Socialist realism" is nowhere suggested. The optimism comes instead from people carrying on in their own individuality and spontaneity.

Janes Clonney's "Militia Training" is not a stern scene of lock-step drilling but one of drinking and gambling. In Thomas Rossiter's "Rural Post Office," too, the genre is the fine American pastime of lollygagging. In Lilly Spencer's "Shake Hands," a strong, happy woman extends a floury hand to the viewer. George Caleb Bingham's "Jolly Flatboatmen" danced down the river, through their life was hard by our standards. So we rebounded, even while we were enduring wars, depressions, epidemics and grinding labor — and surviving scandals and elections.

And so we can, will do it again.

THERE IS GOOD REASON to discourage the old assumption that we are virtuous because we are rich in natural resources. We are finding out that natural resources do not last forever. That is ore and oil and water do not. We are learning now that other resources matter more — the ones inside us that have kept us keeping on so long.

Given the appropriate background some commentator could have looked down his nose at America in about 1828, or in 1858, or 1928, and perceived nothing but pygmies. Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, Franklin D. Roosevelt came soon after.

We do not see far, looking down our noses. We'd do better to look in our history books and at what our historians with oil paints have put on canvas. As they make clear, yesterday tells us more about tomorrow than today does.

Communists In NATO Regime? It Could Happen In Italy

For nearly 20 years, the idea that Communists could get into the government of one of the NATO countries has been deemed unthinkable.

A major priority of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency has been to see to it that no such dreadful event should ever happen. One of the great unwritten stories of our times has been the effort, so far successful, to keep the Communists out.

They were briefly in the governments of Italy and France in the early postwar years. But once NATO got going, in 1950, they have been kept out everywhere except in Iceland — which is a special case in itself.

IT IS QUITE POSSIBLE that we are about to find out what really would happen if the Communists did get into government in Italy.

Not that they would be running the government. That is out of the question. They are not the biggest party in Italy. They have never been able to run their proportion of the vote beyond about 27 per cent. It seems to stay stuck there. But they do hold that percentage of the vote as regularly as they fail to get beyond that point. And they have long been cultivating the image of being the most honest and effective political force in Italy.

They have something to offer. They have been running the city of Bologna and its surrounding region, Emilia-Romagna, since the war. They have run it efficiently and honestly. They pride themselves on being free of the traditional occupational disease of Italian politics — corruption. In local and regional government, their record has been impressive.

DO THEY REALLY want to be in a coalition government? It would have its disadvantages for them. They would have to accept continued Italian participation in both the European Common Market and in NATO — for the practical reason that to take Italy out of either or both would mean instant financial collapse. But can a Communist Party in Western Europe work in a government which remains loyal to the two institutions which are most disliked by Moscow?

At this writing, Italy does not have a government at all. Signor Fanfani, who always managed to form one before, has just failed to put together a coalition minus the Communists. There is serious doubt whether a government without them can be formed. This may be the end of the long road for the policy of keeping Communists out of the Italian government.

Since we may wake up any morning to hear of the incongruity of Communists working in a team with Roman Catholics in a government in Italy, let us consider how dangerous that would be to the general interests of the western community.

AMONG ITALIANS there is a new theory being tentatively explored. Someday, it is being said, the Communist parties of Western Europe are going to be domesticated. Perhaps, it is suggested, it may well fall to Italy to show the others how to do it.

The Italian Communist Party has often disagreed with the Moscow line and even done it openly.

Right now it is resisting the Moscow effort to isolate China from the world Communist movement.

It has yet to resume full "fraternal" relations with the present Communist leadership in Czechoslovakia. The Italians had openly condemned Moscow's repression of the Dubcek regime in that country.

And the Italian Communists have long supported the doctrine enunciated by President Tito of Yugoslavia that each Communist Party should choose "its own road to socialism."

THE KEY QUESTION is whether a party which already has departed a long way from subservience to Moscow might depart further during the process of sharing government with other and non-Marxist parties.

No one can answer the question, because the experiment has never been tried in a modern and important western industrial country.

But since it may well happen, one can at least recognize that communism today is a far more diversified political phenomenon that it was before World War II.

It once was, or seemed to be, monolithic. But now we have the Chinese rite in rivalry all over the world with the Moscow rite. Then there is the Yugoslav variety, which has become entirely indigenous and refuses the Moscow discipline.

The French and Italian Communist Parties have their proud identities. It is not certain, but is certainly possible that letting the Communists into a coalition government in Italy would further the independence of Italian communism from Moscow.

If it could happen, it would be a good thing.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

It is the pallid but awful condition of American politics that of all the silly qualities which ingratiate a candidate to his constituency there is hardly a one that cannot be dissembled by the greenest performer of soap operas, almost all are drawn from the repertoire of the conman, and some are the instruments of the buffoon. — R. Church Aid Goes To Turn-Abouts

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — By a quirk of modern history, some struggling outsiders who received some highly controversial help from the world's churches now are becoming the established insiders.

That is the ironic turn-about of the coming into governing power of the black liberation movements in three African colonies long ruled by Portugal.

Recent events have "moved quickly to vindicate" the churches' efforts, says the Rev. Dr. John Coventry Smith, of Larchmont, N.Y., a United Presbyterian leader and one of the six-member presidium of the world Council of Churches.

It was that council, embracing 263 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches, which four years ago launched its program to combat racism, including grants for basic foods and medicines for the beleaguered liberation groups.

The grants stirred sharp controversy in some church circles, both in this country and abroad, with some critics charging the churches with aiding "armed revolutionaries and terrorists."

At the time, world council officials insisted that the grants were specified strictly for humanitarian purposes — essential medicines, vaccines, food and discarded clothing for harassed groups and exiles in keen need.

The Rev. Edward A. Hawley, a former United Church of Christ missionary in the area and now of Denver, Colo., says the "supplies were desperately needed," and usually only were available across borders from the areas of conflict.

Writing in A.D., joint publication of the United Church and the United Presbyterian Church, he adds: "In fact, the recipients were gentle and tolerant men and women, many of them practicing Christians . . ."

He says justification for the churches' humanitarian aid has now come "from the oppressors themselves" in the change in the Portuguese government, largely engineered by army officers opposed to the oppressive African wars.

The world council's program initially was set up in 1970, with a grant of $200,000 to various groups seeking equal racial rights, including the liberation grants in the Portuguese territories of Mozambique, Guinea-Bissau and Angola.

Similar grants have been made each year since, the total so far amounting to about $800,000.

Bladwin Sjollema, of Geneva, Switzerland, director of the program, says about 60 per cent of the disbursements have gone for health and medical needs of people harassed for their activities in southern Africa.

Contributions have come not only from member church denominations, but also from governments of Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands and West Germany. The grants have been sharply assailed by officials of white-ruled Rhodesia and South Africa.

"Though the grants were small . . . they carried a message that resounds throughout the world," says an informational summary by the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church.

Record Fall Enrollment At Seminary

Enrollment at Golden Gate Theological Seminary in Strawberry is 335 students, a fall term record according to figures supplied by the registar's office.

Last year the Southern Baptist divinity school had 298 students. New students this year number 86, compared with 77 last year.

There are 247 fulltime students enrolled at the Strawberry campus with another 63 connected with the seminary's Los Angeles center and 25 in Seattle, Wash.

The centers in Southern California and Washington serve students who are unable to leave their church duties. Instructors at Strawberry give them instruction on a commuter basis.

The breakdown of enrollment: 160, master of divinity; 48, master of religious education; 11, master of church music; 28, certificate in theology; 10, certificate in religious education; seven, certificate in church music; 27, special students; 43, doctorate of ministry, and one, a doctorate in sacred theology.

The seminary this fall has also reinstituted its master's degree in church music and elected Dr. Robert L. Cate, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Aiken, S.C., as an associate professor of Old Testament studies.

A seminary spokesman said the advanced music program had been greatly expanded with the hiring last year of Max Lyall, a specialist in piano and voice, as an assistant professor in the division.

Singles Plan Gaines Talk On Monday

A talk on "The Fertile Void," by Jack Gaines will highlight the week's activities for the Marin Jewish Community Center singles group at 7:30 p.m. Monday at 200 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

Gaines, of the Essalon Institute, will discuss para-psychology. There is a fee of $1 for members and $1.50 for nonmenters.

"Chassidic Approach to Jewish Mysticism" will be discussed at 8 p.m. Wednesday. There is a $2 donation requested. Further information may be obtained from calling the center.

FIRST SOUTHERN BAPTIST CHURCH

The sancturay of the First Southern Baptist Church at Vallejo and D Streets, Petaluma, was constructed in 1956. It now houses a congregation of 340 members. The detached educational wing at the rear is a two story building with 18 classrooms and two assembly rooms. It was constructed in 1967.

BALLOON FLIES TO SAN JOSE

A balloon launched recently by Kevin Wallace of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church at South Novato Boulevard at Midway Drive, Novato, was returned from San Jose.

On the back of the note written by Kevin was this message: "This is a good idea. We are Christians and go to the Evergreen Valley Church. Keep up the good work." It was dated Oct. 24 and signed John, Dorothy and Patti Smith of 1102 Drexel Way, San Jose.

So far this is the farthest distance which one of the balloon notes has been returned to the church.

St. James Guild Slates Annual Bazaar

The St. James Ladies Guild will hold its seventh annual Christmas bazaar from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Herzog Hall at Payran Street at the Sonoma-Marin Fairgrounds, Petaluma.

Calico Christmas is the theme of this year's bazaar. It is a blend of all types of nostalgia featuring home-canned pickles and preserves, handmade quilts, calico wreaths, handsewn dolls and old fashioned stick horses.

A new feature will be a balloon launching pad where, weather permitting, a person's name can be launched into the winds. The person whose name travels the farthest and is returned will get a prize.

Granny's Treasure Chest, full of surprises and bargains for children, was designed for the small fry.

Refreshments will be available.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Malachi Martin: At Heart He's A Religious Optimist

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

Malachi Martin is at heart a religious optimist.

But the former Jesuit's vision of the future is not one to make religious people committed to the presentforms of organized rel gion at ease.

To fashion a way of explaining what he believes is happening spiritually in the world, Martin devised the metaphor of the castle. The castle is a way of speaking of the ideal, of "a vision in which all the material conditions of human living were invested by 'spirit' and thus perfected humanly."

According to Martin, there have been some half a dozen times in past history when the "castle vision" appeared and humanity tried to shape the vision into the ideal state.

These visions, according to Martin, came at such places as Mecca, with the rise of Islam, in Jerusalem, with the vision of Abraham, and, perhaps most strangely, in Peru, Ind., where Martin sees a kind of "linear spirit" that speaks for the American version od the ideal state.

For Martin, all these visions of the spirit of transcendence failed when people tried to make them concrete, as for example in the extension of the Islamic empire.

In one sense, the former adviser to Pope John XXIII says in his book, "The New Castle" (Dutton), these visions failed because they became wrapped up in exclusionary religions.

Now, however, and this is where Martin's optimism shines forth, there is a new castle vision, one that has already appeared to millions of people.

This vision, he says, is appearing "not in images and notwith concepts ... directly to (peoples) inner selves."

And he sees the present dislocations of society —such things as the Watergate affair —as a sign of the new vision.

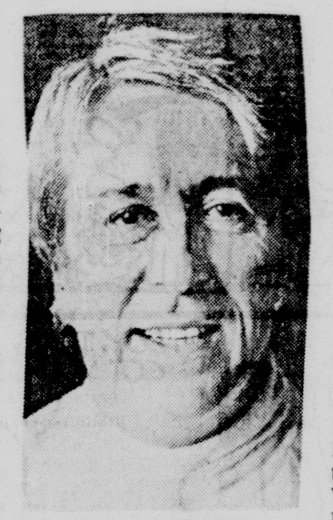
Martin, who still describes himself as a Roman Catholic even though he has left the Jesuits, says he cannot put the new vision into precise language, but in a wide-ranging interview did say "there is a new thing abroad among ordinary people, most who are not real church people.

"The church no longer embodies their ideals," adding that he sees in people "a new fellowship, a new commonality."

America is the only place, according to Martin, where the new vision has a chance to arise but it will not be just an American vision.

"The thrust of the American experiment," he added, "was to create an environment that didn't interfere with you. That is what is at issue now."

The result of this vision, which Martin believes is even now infecting people's lives, will mean that humanity will "arrive at a new understanding of humaness."



MALACHI MARTIN
A sign of new vision

Unlike some other churchmen who are criticizing the increased mechanization of life through technological advances, Martin warmly welcomes such advances.

"There will be greater and greater mechanization," he said, "but the spirit is catching up with it.

"What we can do, is to respond to spirit ... because free response to love is the only action typical of the human person."

Dedication Slated

Pews will be dedicated at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church at 9 Sherpherd Way, Tiburon. The church is 12 years old. The congregation had been using chairs.

MARIN ACTIVITIES

Unity To Have Anniversary

The 10th anniversary of the founding of the Unity in Marin Church will be Thursday, but the actual observance of the anniversary will be Nov. 17.

The church was founded by Candida Wright who is still the minister of the church.

Mrs. Wright served as secretary to Rev. Ethel Higgins of Unity Christ Church in San Francisco before she was ordained and then served as assistant minister. She wanted to establish her own church.

She discovered that there was no Unity Church in Marin. A small rustic hall in San Anselmo was rented. Unity-in-Marin was sanctioned by the parent body of Unity Village, Missouri. The church is affiliated with the Unity School of Christianity in Missouri and is a member of the Association of Unity Church.

Announcement of the opening of the church was made by the Unity School in the Daily Word, a monthly publication. An advertisement was placed in the Independent-Journal.

Approximately 150 persons attended that first service on Nov. 14, 1964.

An office was established in the Masonic Building in San Rafael where meditation was held at noon each day. Classes were conducted there as well as private counseling by Mrs. Wright.

Then three years after the church was established, the building in San Anselmo was sold. The church moved to its present location at 24 H Street, San Rafael.

The women of the church formed the Circle of Service which meets the first Wednesday of each month. They plan all social functions as well as events which provide the title which is sent to Unity Headquarters for a program called "Silent 70". It provides literature for prisoners and Unity literature in Braille for the blind.

At the Nov. 17 observance, special music by charter member and soloist, Elinor Johnson will be given. Mrs. Wright will speak on "The Length of Our Days," at the 11 a.m. service. Fellowship and refreshments will follow the service.

CANDIDA WRIGHT
Founder of Unity-in-Marin

JEWS FOR JESUS

Moishe Rosen, spokesman for the Jews for Jesus, will speak at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Aldersgate Methodist Church 220 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael. Rosen was minister of Hebrew-Christian congregations in Hollywood and New York City between 1956 and 1970. He left New York to start a ministry in San Francisco, and in 1973 he left there to devote his ministry to Jews for Jesus.

ORDINATION

The Church of the Open Door will ordain three men to the ministry in a special service at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Carpenter's Hall, 647 Lindaro Street, San Rafael. They are Mark A. Buckley, director of Bible studies and Christian communes in the Novato area; Steven R. Gollnick, Chaplain of the Juvenile hall in Martinez and Kenneth C. Sanders, director of Christian communes and Bible studies in various schools in Sonoma County.

ANNIVERSARY

The Baha'is of Marin County will gather Monday evening at the Edgewater Inn to celebrate the 157th anniversary of the birth of Baha'u'llah, the prophet-founder of the Baha'i faith.

Baha'is believe that Baha'u'llah, whose name means "The Glory of God", was a Divine educator. Born in Persia in 1863, he announced his world-unifying mission. He was stripped of his possessions, imprisioned, tortured and exiled. He died in the Holy Lane in 1892.

Baha'is now live in more than 300 countries and territories of the world.

FOUNDING

The 20th Anniversary of the founding of the Church of All Faiths in Corte Madera was observed recently at the same time as the pastor, Edward Wright, resigned.

The minister, wife, Grace and family will continue to live in the parsonage for some time.

The pot-luck dinner with a Thanksgiving theme, was followd by music and slides of church construction presented by charter members.

SALE

Quince and crabapple jelly and pancake topping made of apples with butter, cinnamon and sugar will be for sale after the morning service tomorrow at the Fellowship Hall of the Redwoods Presbyterian Church at 110 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur. The junior high school age members of the church have made the jelly and put it up in jars of many sizes and shapes. The pancake topping will be sold in cup and pint sizes. Proceeds will go to the junior high school spring retreat.

RICHARD M. KAMIENIECKI
New president

Peacock Unit Names President

Richard M. Kamieniecki of San Rafael, has been elected the president of the Peacock Gap Homeowners Association.

Kamieniecki, 39, was born and reared in Nashua, N.H. He attended the Bentley School of Finance and Accounting in Boston, and Bowling Green State University, Ohio. He is the owner of Centurian Associates Inc. of San Rafael.

He and his wife Elizabeth have a son, Matthew, 3, and a daughter Chesha, 1.

He is a member of the citizens advisory committee on redevelopment in San Rafael.

Other new officers are: Robert Winckler, vice president; Mary Carpou, secretary, and Charles Deschamp, treasurer.

Good Reason For Going On A Diet

A San Rafael welfare cheater has an excellent reason to lose 80 pounds.

Susie Sheppard, 34, who weighs 228 pounds, must serve six months behind bars because she received public aid although she held a job.

But because Mrs. Sheppard suffers high blood pressure, a chronic kidney ailment and arteriosclerosis, her doctor says her life would be in danger if she serves her time at Marin County Jail, where medical personnel aren't equipped to cope with her problems.

So Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best told Mrs. Sheppard she won't have to enter jail for one year.

If she can lose 80 pounds, her health problems will lessen and she can stay in Marin. But if her weight remains too high, she'll have to go to the California Institution for Women in Los Angeles County, where medical attention can be guaranteed, the judge said.

Mrs. Sheppard, the mother of five children from 2 to 12, pleaded guilty to welfare fraud and grand theft. Court records show she received about $19,000 in benefits starting in 1970, but wasn't entitled to them because she had a job.

She now attends the College of Marin and also works as a secretary there in the Center for Independent Studies. If she remains in Marin, Mrs. Sheppard can take part in the work furlough program, going to her job during the day and sleeping at county jail at night.

Mitchell Called In Wiretap Case

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Mitchell, a defendant in the Watergate conspiracy trial, was called to appear today as a witness for the federal government at a hearing involving wiretaps issued when he was attorney general.

Mitchell was to testify for the government on the legality of wiretaps used in a major narcotics case in 1971.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Nov. 9, the 313th day of 1974 with 52 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Jupiter and Venus.

American actress Marie Dressler, "Tugboat Annie," was born Nov. 9, 1873.

On this day in history:

In 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt set up the Civil Works Administration as an emergency to provide jobs for the unemployed.

In 1953, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that major league baseball did not come within the scope of federal antitrust laws.

In 1965, a massive power failure blacked out New York City and parts of five New England states for two to 13 hours.

In 1973, six Watergate defendants were sentenced to prison. E. Howard Hunt was given a term of 2½ — 8 years.

A thought for the day: American writer O. Henry said, "What a woman wants is what you're out of. She wants more of a thing when it is scarce."

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

If You Can't Win A Trick, Make Card Work For Living

If you can't win a trick with a card, at least make it work for its living. This may take careful preparation.

IN EAST SEAT

See if you can defeat the contract of four hearts. It can be done; in fact it was done at the bridge Olympics in Turin some years ago. Put yourself in the East seat for the purpose.

You win the first trick with the king of spades. That's easy. Your next step is to cash the ace of spades. What next?

Even if you couldn't see the South hand you would feel pretty sure that you had no diamond or club tricks coming to you. Where can you find two more tricks?

TRUMP TRICKS

You need two trump tricks to defeat the contract. South will naturally take two finesses to hold the loss down to one trump trick. What can you do about it?

The expert in Turin led a third spade from the East hand. Dummy won and returned a trump. South finessed with the ten, and West won with the queen.

Now West led his fourth spade, and East ruffed with the king of hearts. If South overruffed, West's nine of trumps would eventually win the setting trick. If South failed to overruff, East's king of hearts would take the setting trick then and there.

DAILY QUESTION

You are in third position, after two passes, holding:

♠ - A K 5
♥ - K 5
♦ - 9 8 4 3 2
♣ - 7 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You have enough strength for a third-hand bid, but not in the right places. A stretched bid should show a favorable opening lead, and you cannot encourage a lead in your long diamond suit.

Why Unleaded Gas

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you are thinking about buying one of the new 1975 model cars, it's important to know that most of these can use only unleaded gasoline. Why? It has to do with clean air and the catalytic converter, a device in most 1975 cars for reducing auto exhaust pollutants.

PREDICTION — Victor de Beck's vision of a beauty queen of the future appears in his watercolor "Miss Universe 2974." It is included in the Terra Linda Art Association's current show, "Gods, Icons, and Other Worlds."

ART REVIEW

New Terra Linda Art Display Imaginative, Of Broad Range

By ADA GARFINKEL

The Terra Linda Art Association's current theme — "Gods, Icons, and Other Worlds" — has inspired a show of imaginative art work within a broad range of ideas.

"Holy Banner" and "Battle With a Dragon," watercolors by Sergei Smirnoff, are strikingly beautiful religious paintings, full of vivid and compelling imagery. And Barbara Ross' "The Offering," with its tapestry-like hues, is a simple, but effective religious expression of a personal gift.

The world of fantasy is conjured up in Victor de Beck's watercolor, "Miss Universe 2974," and the ecstasy of love is envisioned in Mary Engstrom's small, primitive oil, "Between Heaven and Earth."

In the realm of other worlds are Joan Boosey's nubby-textured black and brown monoprint "Moon Crater," and Ann Bernauer's wax sgraffito drawing of a whirling orbit spinning in murky ozone. Esthermae Riley's "Mystic Spheres," a stained wood sculpture, hints of another place.

The realm of science is explored by Carol Zogg in "Single-Celled Algae," a painting of shimmering light reflections in greens and blues, and in Ann Bernauer's "New Culture," a view of life through a microscope.

"Pan of the Urn," a sand and oil painting by Jon Caver, and Jim Short's ink drawing "City of Time Past Remembered," both draw their inspiration from the world of antiquity. While Judy Samborski's heaven-reaching skyscraper — titled "Pyramid" — describes the world of today.

In "Dreams" — a pen-and-ink drawing, Deborah Sarantakis envisions the world as a strange blend of human, vegetable, and floral physiology. "Cat's Dream," a conte drawing by Claudia Fouse views it as a Halloween nightmare with visions of witches, dogs, and menacing beasts of prey.

The "best in show" award went to Claudia Fouse and merit awards to Nita Lobdell, Esthermae Riley, Jim Short, and Carol Zogg.

The exhibit will continue through Nov. 30, and may be seen Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Terra Linda Art Association Gallery is located at 4172 Redwood Highway.

Popping Bottles Cause Injuries

NEW YORK (UPI) — Family Health, a medical magazine for laymen, reports 125,000 persons a year require hospital treatment because of injury from exploding bottles.

What turns a seemingly harmless bottle of soda pop into a dangerous gas bomb? Shaking. Shaking a soda bottle increases the internal pressure. Also the lip or cap of the bottle may be defective. Some bottles are just weakened by use. Returnables are used an average of 16 times.

Maine Town May Not Lose Its Famed Citizen After All

CUSHING, Me. (CSM) — It looks as if the town of Cushing, Maine, is not going to lose its most famous citizen after all.

Andrew Wyeth, who was so inspired by the people and the landscape in the tiny hamlet of 522 that he produced 200 paintings there, recently considered leaving because the art museum opened in his honor created such a furor among the townspeople.

Called Olson House in honor and memory of Christina Olson, the subject of one of the artist's most famous paintings, "Christina's World," the museum came into existence in 1968 after Hollywood producer Joseph Levine bought the deceased woman's home and turned it into a museum for Mr. Wyeth's paintings.

But, as explained on a recent ABC "Reasoner Report," some of the people of Cushing are not overly sociable and resent the "influx of disrespectful tourists, the traffic congestion," and "the public relations aspect" in Levine's handling of the museum.

The conflict between the museum and the town grew so acute that the museum had to close for two summers. Wyeth, caught in the middle threatened to leave town, and Levine considered moving the museum along with him.

But this summer he decided to donate the museum and the land surrounding it to the state of Maine to administer, and now the Maine Legislature has formally agreed to accept the offer.

It seems as if those very qualities in Maine's life which most attracted Wyeth in the first place have won out in the end. And, it's understood, Wyeth is staying.

Mozart's Comic Opera Scheduled

The College of Marin Music Department will present an English version of Mozart's comic opera "Cosi Fan Tutte" in the college's Fine Arts Building theater at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 22 and 23.

Directing the production is Phyllis E. Myers. Her husband, John H. Myers will conduct. They are assisted by Anne McNaughton, stage director, and Ron Krempetz, technical director, both members of the college's drama department staff.

Taking the six roles in the opera are Carolyn Caton of San Rafael, Fiordiligi; Mali Henigman of San Francisco, Dorabella; Martha Hill of San Anselmo, Despina; Richard Goodman of Berkeley, Guglielmo; Larry Bedini of San Francisco, Ferrando, and Michael Harvey of Berkeley, Don Alfonso.

The leads are all members of the college's adult education program, in this instance the opera workshop.

The seven-member chorus, all student members of the workshop, are Sonaya Hebert, Cheryl Lancaster, Robert Martini, Anna Secrist, John Sellers, William Smith and Frank Stevents.

Tickets are $3 general admission and $1.25 for students.

Bridge Design Wins Award

The award was made by the U.S. Army Chief of Engineers.

Road Routing Discriminatory?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Justice Department official Friday said the Department of Transportation can be guilty of racial discrimination in approving routes for new highways or mass transit lines.

Assistant Attorney General J. Stanley Pottinger, head of the civil rights division, said nondiscrimination clauses in the 1964 Civil Rights Act apply to highway and transit routes as much as to any other federally aided program.

These routes, especially in urban areas, may displace disproportionate numbers of minority residents as a result of state or local routing decisions that the Transportation Department approves, Pottinger said.

Singer Assaulted

WESTBURY, N.Y. (UPI) — Connie Francis, whose recordings in the 1950's sold in the millions, said yesterday she was raped by an intruder who covered her with a mattress to muffle her cries, before fleeing with her mink coat and jewelry.

Rocky To Lead Off At Hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nelson Rockefeller, his brother Laurance and a number of persons who shared in $2 million worth of gifts from the vice presidential nominee will testify next week when Senate confirmation hearings resume, it was announced yesterday.

Rockefeller will be the first witness when the nationally televised hearings begin Wednesday. The questioning will focus on a derogatory book about Arthur Goldberg which Laurance Rockefeller financed in 1970 when Goldberg was challenging Nelson for the governorship of New York.

Also called to testify about the book were Laurance, who supplied $60,000; Goldberg; author Victor Lasky; publisher Neil McCaffrey of Arlington House and John A. Wells, a New York lawyer who reportedly arranged the financing.

Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., of the Senate Rules Committee announced he was calling the committee back to Washington a week before Congress reconvenes because of the controversy that has developed around Rockefeller's nomination.

Rockefeller asked to be the first witness and said he could explain the Goldberg book, the $2 million in gifts over the past 17 years and a number of loans made to friends and associates — issues which have threatened his confirmation.

One of the witnesses who will be questioned closely is Dr. William J. Ronan, the head of the New York-New Jersey Port Authority who received gifts from Rockefeller totaling $600,000.

Rockefeller also will be questioned about an Internal Revenue Service audit of his tax returns for the past seven years. He recently announced that he had agreed to pay $1 million in additional taxes and interest for the past five years after another audit.

Pianists Schedule Concert

Pianists Melvin Stecher and Norman Horowitz will present a recital at 8:15 p.m. next Thursday in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building, the second offering of the Marin Concert Association's 1974-75 series.

The two pianists have been performing as a team since 1951 in concerts across the U.S. as well as on international tours. Their musicianship prompted American composer Walter Piston to dedicate his "Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra" to them.

Admission to the program is by membership card only. A number of memberships remain open due to members moving from Marin. Further information can be obtained from Esther M. Dearth of Greenbrae, first vice president; secretary Jo Mulaskey of Fairfax, or Ann Wylie of Mill Valley, an association member.

Marin Symphony Concert Slated

Maestro Sandor Salgo of the Marin Symphony Orchestra will preview his ensemble's first concert at 11 a.m. Nov. 22 at the Meadow Club in Fairfax.

The event is open to the general public at no cost. It is being sponsored by the symphony association's auxiliary. A luncheon, costing $4.25, will follow Salgo's remarks.

The symphony will open its season at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 24 at Marin Veterans Memorial Building. Works by Haydn, Bartok and Rachmaninoff will be performed.

Cyprus To Allow Legal Abortions

NICOSIA (UPI) — Women raped by Turkish soldiers who invaded Cyprus last July will be allowed to have abortions, a government spokesman said yesterday.

He said the Cyprus House of Representatives has repealed an anti-abortion law to give give rape victims a chance to terminate their pregnancies legally.

An estimated 700 women who became pregnant as a result of rape are expected to take advantage of the measure, the spokesman said.

Didi Does Her Art On Doors And Walls

By FRANK FARRARA

Didi Harmon is an artist who doesn't need a canvas.

Any old room wall or hallway will do for the Tamalpais Valley artist who creates what she describes as "graphic allusions . . . imagery on windows, walls, floors, ceilings, or doors by way of paint, fabric, carpet, cork, foam, plexiglass or wood.

Mrs. Harmon, who operates Evrn Inc., "The Creative Agency of Environmental Arts," has even made it easier to find her home at 338 Durant Way, through her art.

The numbers 338 are in large red numerals across the doorway — and for Mrs. Harmon her art begins at home.

SHE HAS CHANGED the once routine surroundings into a series of scenes and settings including a master bedroom that has a full moon and trees painted on a burgundy wall.

"The red is exciting and the blue restful," she said in explaining the choice of the burgundy color.

In the conversation den, she pointed to walls covered with pieces of various wood. "I did it by pasting and gluing. It makes it warm and close," Mrsn Harmon said.

In the kitchen-family room, paintings of an elephant, giraffe, snakes, birds and grass adorn what formerly had been a plain white surface. "It was the hottest room in the house, so I used cool colors."

WITH A LARGE window, that brings the outside in, I put in some clouds give it a whimsical touch," she said.

One bathroom, a melange of art wor' was decorated "when I had my psychology class out for a party," Mrs. Harmon said. "Thrity-three people painted, and 15 had never painted before."

The Harmons had a problem in their three-story, five-level home because guests frequently would take the down staircase to exit when they should have taken the up staircase.

To straighten out the traffic confusion, Mrs. Harmon painted a large arrow showing the way to go out.

AT THE BOTTOM of the lower stairs, where there are many doors, all doors are painted a different color, and there is colored glass on the guest room, making it easy for the visitor to find in the maze of doors.

In the bedroom of Eric, 6, the wall is decorated with a colorful continuation of a Super-Bee and a carpet that has 13 games on it.

When 14-year-old Bethnee enters her room, she sees on the wall a rising sun and soft clouds and trees and grass that blend with the trees outside her window.

"It (the wall painting) was done with an old sock. It gives texture and makes a softer blend than latex paint. The grass is high gloss enamel by brush to give light and shine."

"THE ROOM IS small and this opens it up and makes it feel bigger," Mrs. Harmon said.

In the bedroom of 13-year-old Tara the scene includes a rainbow, white bird, a tree and blouds.

Mrs. Harmon explained that she worked "piecemeal" at graphic allusions for more than a year and in recent months full-time. "It is allusions, not illusions, because it alludes to something," she explained.

"What I can do is create an environmental change," she said. "I can paint it, nail it on the wall, glue it on the wall — and I can use all different types of materials."

"I PRICE BY the wall," she said. "An eight-by-10 wall would cost from $125 to $165 dependong on whether it is hard edge or soft edge, which costs more but is more creative. I can give a Monet-type wall or a Picasso-type."

Mrs. Harmon said she has worked from color photographs by Jerry French, a Marin photographer, and showed how she had transformed a barren hallway with five doors into a landscape scene.

"You can't even see the doors now," she said.

"When I go to see people, I talk to them awhile to get to know what interests they have, what work they do, what their children are into," she said. "After that, I have two books filled with graphics that have been developed, and from those they can get ideas."

"I CAN MATCH any color you want," she said. "The reason I'm doing it is I feel there is a definite need for people to have more color around them and a little more texture if they are to be happy. I feel art has moved into the home, right onto the wall."

When a scene is no longer pleasing, paint can be rolled over it, Mrs. Harmon said, and new decor added.

Mrs. Harmon, a native of Clinton, Miss., "near Jacksonville," said she was a nursing student, attended Mississippi College, the University of Mississippi and the University of Hawaii, and is "now in industrial environmental psychology . . . making my own program for Cornell

RED AND YELLOW LINES fan out across the wall of the bedroom of Eric Harmon, 6, whose mother, Didi Harmon, an artist in environmental design, has created a striking series of "graphic allusions" in the family home at 338 Durant Way, Tamalpais Valley. The lines, an extension of a helmeted "Super-Bee" which had adorned the wall of her son's room, continued the colorful pattern around the room. "There is a definite need for people to have more color around them," Mrs. Harmon believes. (Photo by Richard Smith)

Talking Machines Hold Keen Fascination For Marin Collector Marvin C. Stephens

By DOROTHY GARDINER

When Marvin C. (Steve) Stephens spotted an old floor model Victrola console in a Tiburon shop window seven years ago, it was fascination at first sight.

And when he bought the machine and 100 records for $35 it was the beginning of a hobby that has led to the investment of some $3,500 in 45 antique talking machines that Stephens says today are worth $8,000.

While the bulk of his collection is temporarily housed in a museum in Modesto where he worked and resided between 1970 and 1972, 10 of the machines stand on tables and in cabinets in his San Anselm home.

STEPHENS SAYS HE is now looking for a place in Marin to display the entire collection that includes machines made between 1899 and 1922.

A sandy-haired 30-year old who describes himself as a natural born collector, he began with coins some 20 years ago.

His coin collection was stolen in 1958 from his parents' Tiburon home, one year after the family moved to Marin from New York.

Stephens attended Redwood High School, the College of Marin and the University of California at Davis where he studied agricultural engineering. During these years he collected antique telephones and now collects cactus and hunts shops and garage sales for such antiques as storm lamps and clocks that decorate his comfortable home.

HIS TALKING MACHINES are arranged around and on top of a large modern stereo speaker in his living room. The old phonographs that he restores and tinkers with, he says, "are fun to listen to, but they don't compare with stereo."

Pointing to an old oak cabinet that also houses model H O gauge trains that he's been making for the past year, he showed one of the smallest talking machine ever made — a Gem, manufactured in 1909 by Thomas Alva Edison's National Phonograph Company.

A NAMEPLATE FROM a Victor III made by the Victor Talking Machine Company in 1902 adorns the wall in the bedroom of Howard C. (Steve) Stephens in San Anselmo. Stephens is the owner of a collection of 45 antique talking machines and phonographs.

This machine, that resembles a toy sewing machine, sold for $10 when new, he says. Stephens found it in Iowa for $55. Today it's valued at $350.

SIXTY-FIVE YEARS ago, he says, machines made by Edison's company sold from $7.50 to $125. The rival Victor Talking Machine Company's products went for $10 to $100.

The first phonograph — a cylinder covered with tinfoil and turned with a hand crank — had been invented in 1878 by Edison, Stephens explained. This model that cost $18 when invented today is worth $1,000. (A friend, he said, recently found an original Edison model for $100 in a Paris flea market.

Edison's discovery of the incandescent lamp in 1879 interrupted his work with the phonograph for 10 years, he said.

When the inventor returned to his talking machine, his company started making commercial coin-operated machines that were placed in amusement parlors where the public paid to listen with ear tubes. At first machines were just leased and never sold, he added.

EDISON'S COMPANY specialized in cylinder type models while the rival Victor Company manufactured disk machines that played standard 78 revolution per minute records.

The cylinder models, he said, had an attachment that allowed the listener to make his own recording. Records, made from a metallic wax compound, could be shaved down for re-recording.

Early day talking machines were "unsophisticated but very well made," according to Stephens. "Machanically, they hold up very well, and were made from beautiful woods and cast iron."

"When you open up an old machine," he added, "you can see what's happening. If something goes wrong with a modern stereo you usually can't see it."

STEPHENS HAS restored most of the machines in his collection, using lathes to make both needed metal and wood parts.

Up until about 1913, he said, talking machines were built with outside horns. At first the horns, usually made from tin, brass or woods, measured about 14 inches. Later the horns were made larger.

The first internal horn machine, called a Victrola, was made by the Victor Talking Machine Company in 1906, he said. This model was the "first luxury machine" made to look more like furniture than a machine and sold for $200.

But for years afterwards, machines with the old fashioned outside horns continued to reproduce better sound, he said.

LATER EDISON'S rival, the National Phonograph Company, began making Amberolas, cylinder type machines with internal horns and the Columbia Gramophone Company began producing Grafonolas.

Over the years the term phonograph began to be applied to all the early models, he said, while the true Phonograph was originally an Edison product where record grooves were cut "up and down like a roller coaster." While the standard 78 rpm used by Edison's competitors were records whose grooves had been "cut back and forth or laterally."

The ancestor of today's sophisticated stereo systems was Thomas Edison's cylinder type machine.

EARLY DAY MODELS were driven by a spring motor and regulated by a governor placed in a box at the bottom of the apparatus.

The motor drove a mandrel, or cone shpaed spindle, that was connected by a leather belt, he said. The cylinder or recording was slipped over the mandrel.

The two-inch cylinder, at first made from a metallic wax compound, usually played for two minutes. Later playing time doubled, he said.

The last of the cylinder type machines were manufactured in 1915, he said.

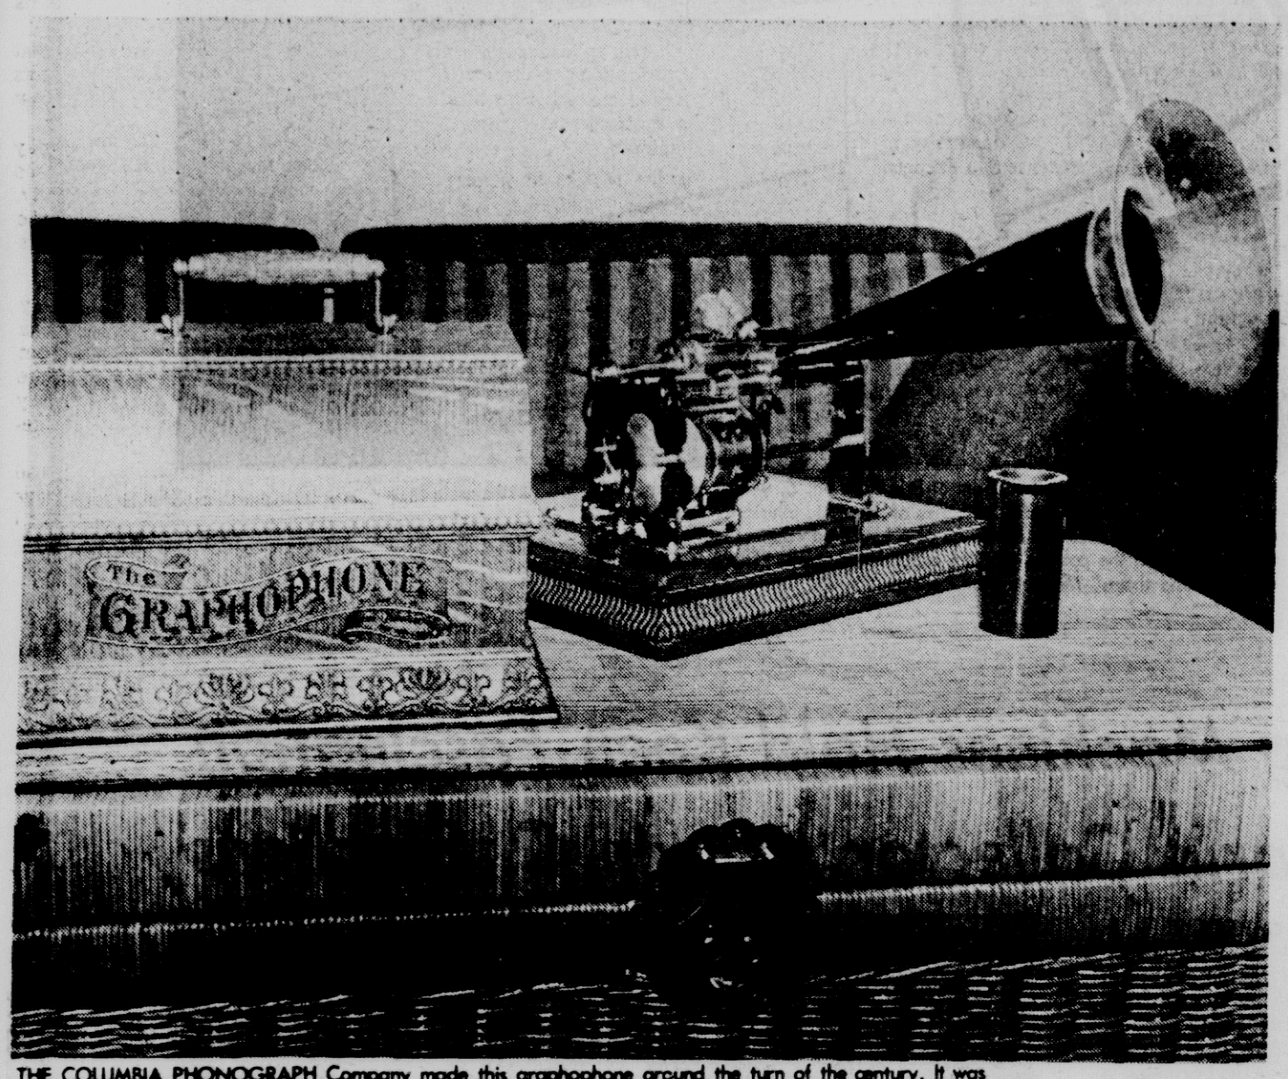
A DECADE LATER the Victor Company for the first time used electricity to make a recording. Four years later, in 1929, Edisons's National Phonograph Company went out of business and the Victor Company merged with the Radio Corporation of America.

Nine years later the Columbia Gramophone Company became part of Columbia Broadcasting System.

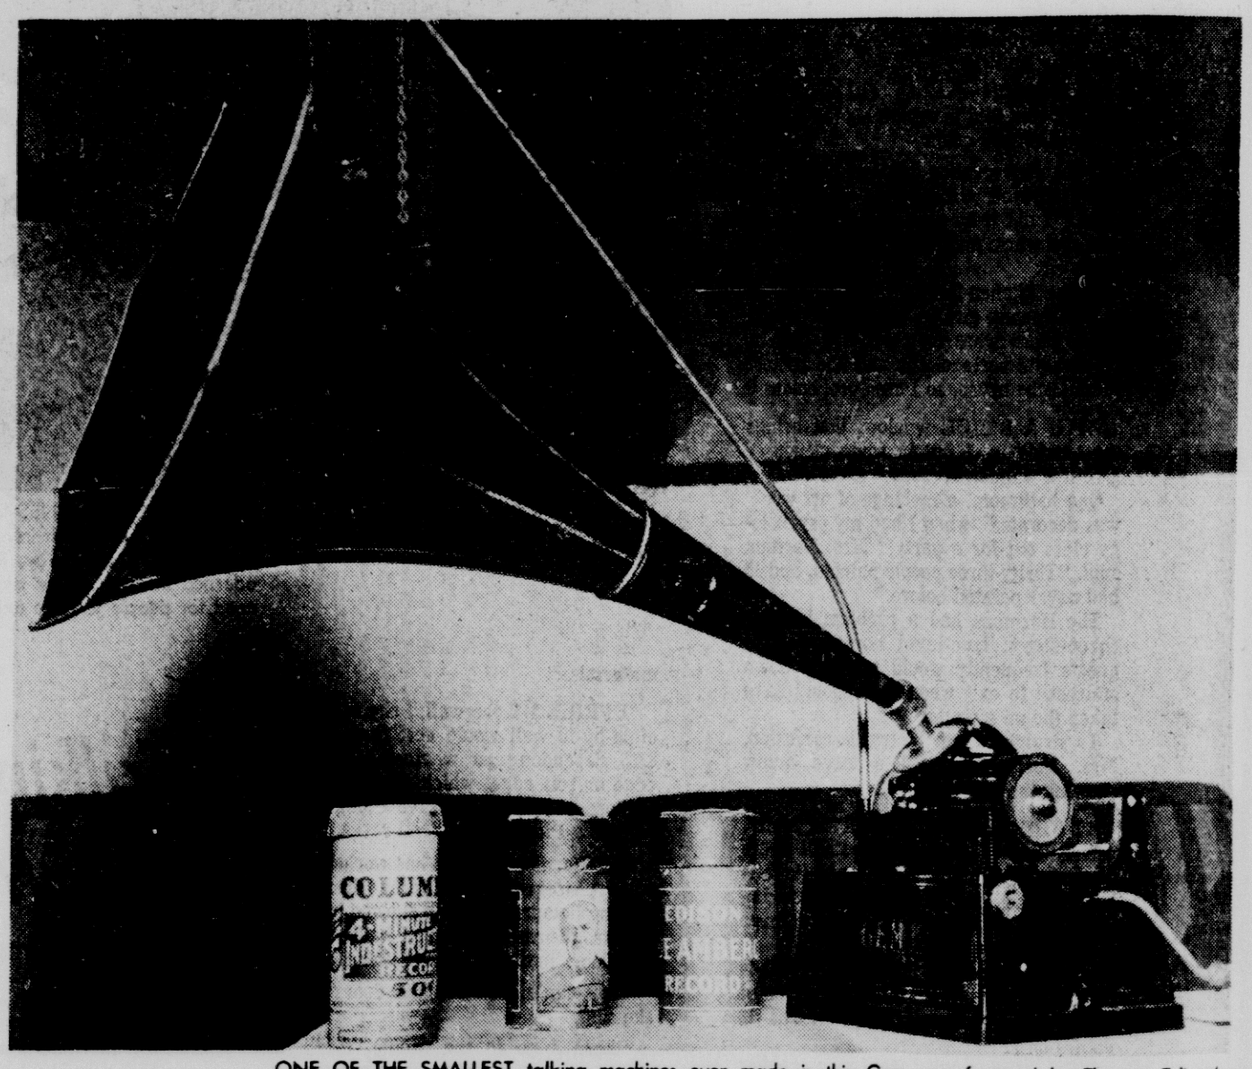
With the steady evolution of talking machines into today's sophisticated electronic powered stereo systems, Stephens says, only two things remain the same — records and turntables.

Possibly in the near future the Marin public will have the opportunity to view Stephen's collection and see what pre-electronic talking machines were all about.

VICTROLAS, SUCH AS the one Steve Stephens is starting, played 78 revolution per minute records. The record on the machine and those on the hamper, to the left, date back to the turn of the century. Note the difference in the sizes of the outside horns on the Victrola, foreground, and the Edison machine, rear. In the beginning, horns measured about 14 inches and in later years were made larger.



THE COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH Company made this graphophone around the turn of the century. It was a cylinder type machine, the same as those manufactured by Edison's company. Columbia Gramophone Co., as it was later known, merged in the 1930s with the Columbia Broadcasting System. The rival Victor Talking Machine Company, in 1929, became part of the Radio Corporation of America.



ONE OF THE SMALLEST talking machines ever made is this Gem manufactured by Thomas Edison's National Phonograph Company in 1909. It sold for $10 when new, according to Stephens, and today is valued at $350. Edison machines played cylinder type records such as those pictured in their cases, left. The rival Victor Company made disk machines that played standard 78 RPM records. The Gem is a prize piece in the Steve Stephens collection.

THE ANIMALS AND BIRDS that Cynthia Scollon draws and paints cover the complete spectrum of wildlife and reflect her heart-felt interest in conservation. The sampling across the top of this page include an ostrich (both charcoal and watercolor), cheetah (charcoal), llama (pastel,) koala bear with cub (charcoal) and elk (charcoal). In Marin her work can be seen at the Raccoon Tree Gallery, Mill Valley, the Genesis Gallery, Mill Valley, and the Sandcastle Gallery, Point Reyes Station.

An Artist Pays Tribute To Animals

MARIN LIVING

By MARTHA MAXWELL

In going from fashion illustrations for top New York stores to wildlife drawings, Cynthia Scollon has added a new twist to the story of the small town girl who goes to the big city. She left the big city for the Marin hills.

Asked why she came to California, the native of upstate New York laughed and said, "It was cheaper to get to California than to go back to New York from Pennsylvania, where I was working at the time."

THERE WAS A newspaper strike on in New York and freelance fashion illustrators weren't needed. Waiting out the strike, Cynthia worked as a cocktail waitress in New Hope, Pa., enjoying the arts, crafts, and little theater activity of Bucks County.

When it came time to return to New York, she began adding up the costs of the deposits for a new apartment, the fees for re-establishing phone and electric service, the expense of additional furnishings, and suddenly, driving to her parents' home in California represented considerably less of an investment than a train ticket to New York.

"Like all New Yorkers, I loved San Francisco," Cynthia said, "even before I'd been there."

HER FIRST VISIT was on Christmas, 1959, to see her parents who had just moved here from New York state. The time of day and the light conspired to produce a vision of gray fog, Chinese red bridge and purple mountain for the artist's first view of Marin. That vision was still before her eyes in Pennsylvania five years later.

The feeling for Marin which developed out of that colorful impression remains strong today.

Cynthia settled in Sausalito, then moved to Mill Valley three years ago. The town where "that mountain" is a familiar presence in one's daily life is now permanently home for Cynthia and the place to work on her wildlife drawings.

ASK MOST WILDLIFE artists how they got started and you hear stories of a childhood spent observing and sketching animals, filled by a single-minded desire to paint wild animals.

Drawing animals was the most distant thing from Cynthia Scollon's mind as she grew up on a small town outside of Buffalo, N.Y. She knew she was going to be a fashion illustrator. Friends played with dolls; Cynthia designed haut couture clothes for hers.

"It's my tribute to the animals themselves," says Cynthia Scollon of her work, "and a way of getting through to people about the value of animals. Animals have dignity; if people begin to see that, they can begin to look at animals as precious."

Sent to Syracuse University by her parents, she rebelled against the bobby-sox, sorority-ritual conformity of a state university campus in the 1950s. Even Cynthia's parents were convinced by the end of her freshman year that Syracuse was not the place for her, and acquiesced in her insistence on New York City and the Parsons School of Design.

THE FRUSTRATIONS OF Syracuse melted away. With her goal in sight Cynthia buckled down to hard work both at Parsons and at supporting herself.

She remembers the relief upon finding herself in a school where people noticed the work she did and were oblivious to the clothes she wore. In addition to the Parsons School of Design, Cynthia studied at the Art Students' League of New York. She began to sell fashion illustrations on a regular basis.

The art diretor for De Pinna on Fifth Avenue began sending jobs her way and eventually Cynthia's drawings appeared regularly in department and specialty store advertisements in the New York papers.

LIKE A STAGE-STRUCK, would-be actress, Cynthia worked at an amazing variety of jobs to support her drive towards fashion illustrating. Running through a list that includes information lady for Greyhound Bus Lines, Hertz Rent-a-Car girl, designer of children's coats, Cynthia drops in that she was girl Friday for Irving Berlin and assistant to the casting director for the "Naked City" television series.

If the listener says, "Wow! What was that like?", expecting an array of insider-type stories, he or she suddenly realizes that when you're Cynthia Scollon the jobs to support your drawing are relevant only to that one end. Whatever glamor, excitement or boredom comes with the job is very secondary to the main thing, doing the drawing that is in your blood.

At that time in her life it never occurred to Cynthia that animals were something she could draw.

ONE CLASS AT Parsons had met at the Central Park Zoo. The zoo became one of Cynthia's favorite places, she loved the animals, fed them, got to know a couple of the keepers, but she never did more than just complete the class assignments.

"Animals were to relate to, not things to draw," Cynthia said in describing those experiences.

One Christmas, however, she drew a portrait of her mother's cat as a gift. Then friends would ask for portraits of pets from time to time. It wasn't until she had been in California for a couple of years that Cynthia realized not only that she could draw animals but that drawing animals was something she wanted to do.

IT WAS STILL several months before she acted on that realization. She had arranged her life so that she could do nothing but paint for a couple of months.

"The paintings sold, but they were awful," Cynthia says of this venture. "I'm a draftsman, not a painter."

It's at that point fashion illustration and wildlife drawing are more closely related than one would suspect.

Cynthia attributes her success with animal drawing to her training at Parsons. The techniques learned there in the interest of fashion serve well for subjects as diverse as koala bears and skunks. Parsons taught a sense of elegance, a look, a feel that is very much a part of Cynthia's margays, cheetahs and owls.

IN 1969 CYNTHIA did her first wildlife drawing. Since then her animals have gathered an increasing number of admirers.

Currently her work can be seen at Genesis in Mill Valley, the Sandcastle at Point Reyes, the Gallery Faire in Mendocino, as well as the Raccoon Tree Gallery in Old Brown's Store in downtown Mill Valley.

She has had one-man shows at the Tides in Sausalito and at University of California Medical Center in San Francisco.

In December, 1972, her work was part of a two man show with Ray Shry-Ock to benefit the Marin Humane Society.

A show of Cynthia's new works is currently in progress at the Raccoon Tree Gallery through December. The show opened Nov. 1 with an invitational preview to benefit the Animal Medical Care Foundation of Marin. The foundation helps with the cost of veterinary care for those who otherwise could not pay for care for their pets and provides care for injured wildlife found in Marin.

CYNTHIA'S FEELING for animals governs not only her work, but its sale as well. She is delighted when she finds that someone has purchased one of her works because of a sense of kinship with the animal.

Opportunities to sell or to display her work through organizations or shops oriented to hunters and hunting have been turned down as contradicting Cynthia's attitude toward animals.

Cynthia's long list of jobs to support her drawing continues to the present day.

Eating money for her and her two cats comes from her work at Capricorn, a gourmet kitchen utensil shop in Mill Valley. Her artistic bent is seen in the window displays, her interest in animals in any one of a series of animal protection or conservation petitions that she and her sister, Janet Weaver, keep out on the counter.

SHE SHARES A house with two other women in Mill Valley, but is eager to find a place of her own as combined studio-living space. In such a place her work can sit out, she can live with it, waking up to it, letting it grow and develop through each day. In this way more time can be devoted to her drawing and to its improvement.

She knows she has improved since that first drawing five years ago, but wants her drawings to get better. And that comes with work.

"Some days I do bad stuff," she readily admits, but many days it's good, the drawing comes together with the dignity, the elgance Cynthia wants, plus the glimpse of animal character that animals lovers delight in.

OF HER WORK Cynthia says, "It's my tribute to the animals themselves and a way of getting through to people about the value of animals. Animals have dignity; if people begin to see that they can begin to look at animals as precious."

Of herself, today, Cynthia says, "I had to spend 10 years to get here, but I have found something I can do of value, that I really like . . . How lucky can you get?"

CYNTHIA SCOLLON, once a fashion illustrator for leading New York City stores, is now a Marinite and an artist specializing in wildlife drawings. She works on her animal depictions in the Mill Valley house she shares with two other women.

KTIM's Weatherman Knows Marin As A Native Son

By JOAN LISETOR

San Rafael meteorologist Michael Pechner predicted last month some rain and low temperatures for this weekend.

Pechner said his confidence in the prediction was "lower than normal" because of incomplete computer data compiled from past weather records.

He is confident, however, of the prediction he has made for Thanksgiving — some morning fog, maybe a few clouds but no rain or travel problems.

The Thanksgiving prediction is easier to make, he said, because interest is focused on the day, and past records are more complete.

PECHNER, 27, IS a native of San Rafael. He moved to Novato as a child, and it was there in February of 1957 that he was walking to school when snow began to fall.

Why was it snowing?

Why was snow so rare in Marin County?

The inquiring child could not get answers to his questions, so he began reading about the weather.

His interest in weather grew, as did an interest in radio. Following graduation from Novato High School he enrolled at Santa Rosa Junior College to study with Harry Geise, who he calls "the dean of radio and television meteorologists." He followed Geise to Sonoma State College in 1967.

GEISE, WHO WAS the weather forecaster on Marin's KTIM, was called to New York in 1967 by Columbia Broadcasting System to set up a national weather center, and Pechner took over his shows. He has been doing a live weather summary and forecast ever since on KTIM at 12:10 p.m. daily. The show, according to Pechner, is the second longest continuous running daily weathercast on radio in California.

Pechner also does weathercasts for radio station KXRX in San Jose and the Associated Press audio network and he is an assistant to Leon Hunsaker, KPIX-TV meteorologist.

Pechner has daily weather records for each area of Marin County dating back to 1964. He is occasionally called as an expert witness by the Marin County and San Francisco district attorney offices to testify in cases where weather has been a factor.

"IF IT RAINED at the time a crime was alleged to have been committed fingerprints may have been washed off," he said. "And sometimes whether or not there was moonlight is a factor in a case."

Pechner calls every day at 4 p.m. to various areas in Marin to people who have regulation weather bureau thermometers, to get the high and low temperatures for their localities.

Pechner claims 85 to 90 per cent accuracy in his short range forecasts for Marin County because of his familiarity with the area.

"MARIN IS A difficult area in which to forecast weather, especially during the winter," he said. "Weather moves from west to east, and there is no one to tell us what is happening out there over the Pacific except for a few ships and once in awhile a good satellite picture. The systems get into Marin before we know about them."

But with the use of weather observations taken at weather stations and raw data on clouds, conditions, temperatures, wind and barometer readings and some University . . . the only one that offers it.

SHE SAID SHE has "been in art most of her life" and studied with Mary Hull in Mississippi.

While her husband, Gary, an airline pilot-flight engineer, was in the Navy, she started exhibiting collages including shows "up and down the (San Francisco) peninsula."

The Harmons moved to Marin 18 months ago after living on the peninsula seven-and-a-half years.

Aside from her home Mrs. Harmon has decorated "six or seven other homes . . . in Jackson, Miss., Tacoma, Wash., Mill Valley, Sausalito, Strawberry . . . San Mateo . . ."

"IF A PERSON wants to do the job himself, I give him counsel," she said. "I am working alone but I have five people I can call upon and they can do all types of work."

One of her most recent jobs is to design the decorations for the San Francisco Yacht Club commodore's gala. "I also do portables for apartments, up to a whole wall."

Mrs. Harmon said eventually she would like to confine her activity to consulting, designing and directing, but the other week she was in her work clothes applying a red plastic paint in sweeping design over a high, empty white wall in a Tamalpais Valley home.

OCCASIONALLY SHE has "happenings," where she presents a slide show of graphic allusions and music by the "OK Savannah" and explains the process.

"Good design," says Didi Harmon, "is one to which no more can be added and at the same time one from which nothing can be subtracted without causing an emptiness or feeling of incompleteness."

"Graphic allusions are not only for the home but are perfect for the office, business work area, the reception room and the conference rooms, plus restaurants and stores," she said.

Mrs. Harmon said she also has been working at the Mill Valley Middle School, decorating with various colors to "see how color affects the working environment."

MRS. HARMON believes that "art is everywhere," and the "component values are texture, design, movement, emotion, rhythm, space, light and dark."

The tools of art are "brush, paper, canvas, Masonite, board, paints, paper, blue, plastics, etc. ad infinitum."

Good design, she said, is "one to which no more can be added and at the same time one from which nothing can be subtracted without causing an emptiness or feeling of incompleteness."

Rhythm, balance, proportion, emphasis and simplicity "are not academic man-made rules, but rules related to the forces of the universe and are useful in solving the designers problems. One must feel these forces but not display them too obviously. One must have room for poetic license.

"Only imperfections and the unexpected make art what it is."

SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

Nature's Fall Plan Thrills The Seeing

By ELIZABETH TERWILLIGER

Colors of foliage greeting the eye against blue sky give one a thrill — Nature's fall plan in action.

Long, upward reaching, spindly branches of Lombardy Poplar, whose green shiny leaves are turning to gold, are like shafts of sunlight piercing a massive cloud-banked sunset. And as the Lombardy Poplar loses its leaves, and only the reaching fingers are left to reveal its unique shape, one thinks of the arms of ballet dancers extended in an upward circular frieze at the end of a beautiful symphony.

In the oak woodland, beyond Fairfax's Deer Park school, magnificent specimens of Valley Oak, whose huge trunks and limbs give one a feeling of being but a brief visitor on this earth, are starting to send soft beige colored round lobed leaves floating gently downward. The remaining rich, dark green leaves cling tenaciously and are reluctant to change, but they, too, will follow.

Tan-colored oak galls are now in full view on branches and represent Mother Nature's rounded insect condominiums designed by her unsurpassed architect. Pick up a gall from the ground and feel it's shape and smoothness.

Several huge, oak trunks are coated with velvet textured greenmoss. Press your palm gently against this.

Walk around the tree and run your fingers along the vertical grooves of the bark, meanwhile looking carefully that you not break any fibers of a spider's house-supports.

Listen for the tapping of the Acorn Woodpecker's bill. Look up and see if you can spot him steadily hammering away while he leans back on his sharp pointed tail. You can't see his feet, but two toes are pointed forward and two backward for support. When he flies look for the white windows at his elbows and listen for his call of "Jacob, Jacob, Jacob."

If ever you get to hold one in your hand, his beautiful yellow throat will be a delight for you to see.

Vivid in vermillion and garnet are the leaves of Poison Oak, whether its form be bush or vine. The ground beneath, covered with fall leaves, is like a Persian carpet of deep reds and browns. Seed-eating birds are busy gathering the exposed clusters of flakey tan coated seeds which earlier were like bunches of seed pearls hidden by shiny green: "Leaves of three, let them be!"

Woodbine, a vine, which grows on many houses, garages, buildings and walls is the same vivid color right now, but its leaf is a pattern of five, like your hand. It is not poisonous.

On a shady bank, the tightly curled leaf of the Gold Back Fern, whose green side is all encircled like the clenched fingers of one's palm, shines out like a small bright light amidst the dry brown Maiden Hair Ferns.

Apartments of cobwebs, tightly woven, are scattered amidst fallen leaves and dry grasses whose seeds have long been scattered — leaving behind empty hulls like miniature corn husks. Even Rattlesnake Grass has lost its lower rattls, but its grace in the hanging of the remaining rattles is like a golden bronze design of miniature down pointed ovals.

Look for huge, rough brown Shelf Fungi, resembling chocolate fudge as you pour it into a flat pan, nestled in clefts of old Bay trees, and see the orange powder they have seemingly blown for quite a distance around. With the back of your hand feel the cool moist underside, and observe its color before you touch it, and after you press against it.

These Shelf Fungi are where the elves sit to watch the fairies dance!

And around the trunk of the huge old Bay trees, row on row of tiny holes made by the Yellow-Bellied Sapsucker are signs that here was a feasting area. As the sap oozes out, along may come an insect for some refreshment, too. Then, when Mr. Sapsucker comes back to check his borings, he gets to have a hamburger with his milkshake. Isn't he lucky?

WITH FALL, the leaves of the Lombardy Poplar turn from green to gold, and then drop. But the tree still keeps its unique shape, thanks to its branches.

Michael Pechner Keeps Tabs On Fickle Weather

"gut feelings" he makes consistently accurate predictions. The data is transferred to a weather map and analyzed to tell how weather systems are moving, how weak or intense they are, how long they will last and whether they are hot or cold fronts, he said.

The system for making long range weather forecasts was developed during World War II, Pechner explained.

"GENERAL 'HAP' Arnold said he couldn't fight a war without weather forecasts, and the Army commissioned the California Institute of Technology to come up with a method of long range forecasting," Pechner said.

"Thousands of past daily weather maps were analyzed, and those that looked alike were separated. What was found was that, like other earthly processes, weather had order."

Weather patterns last for six days, Pechner said, but that does not mean that the weather will be the same for six days. The next new pattern, which begins Monday, may include a variety of weather, but according to Pechner's own research, the highest probabilities for rainfall are on the first, second and sixth days of the pattern, and the least probabilities are the third and fifth days.

REFINING HIS theories further, he said, the first day of a new weather pattern is the most likely to be rainy and the third is the least.

When discussing weather Pechner never uses the term "chance of rain" and finds confusing the National Weather Service forecasts, which predict the percentage chance of rain.

"If I think it is going to rain, I say so. If people hear there is a "possibility' of rain they are more inclined to take a coat, than if they hear there is a 'chance,' " he said.

PECHNER ALSO has a weather forecasting service, which is free to charitable organizations. Prices for the service to commercial groups ranges from $75 to $100 depending on the difficulty of the forecast and how far in advance of the date the forecast is requested. His fee for private parties or weddings is $25 for short range forecasts in Marin County.

For skiers Pechner predicts an early and good ski season this year. He believes a cooling trend is taking place because pollution is blocking the sun's rays.

Pechner bristles at people who think that weather forecasters "control Mother Nature."

"WHETHER THEY pat me on the back and say, 'Thanks for the nice day' or get mad at me because of the weather, either way it makes me mad," he said.

And when he makes a wrong prediction, "I just want to dig a hole and hide," he said.

"Marin is a difficult area in which to forecast weather, especially during the winter," says Michael Pechner. "There is no one to tell us what is happening out there over the Pacific except for a few ships."

MICHAEL PECHNER broadcasts his meteorology show daily at 12:10 p.m. on San Rafael's KTIM-AM radio. Pechner began his weather forecast and summary on the Marin station in 1967. It is, he says, the second longest continuous running daily weathercast on radio in California.

IN SEARCH OF THE AMERICAN DREAM: The Science Of Politics

(Editor's Note: This is the seventh of 18 articles exploring the theme, "In Search of the American Dream." This article discusses the preoccupation with politics and constitutional government during the post-revolutionary days of 1787-1801. The author is a professor of American history at Cornell University.)

"The divine science of politics is the science of social happiness," declared John Adams in January of 1776. "And the blessings of society depend entirely on the constitutions of government." He voiced what was almost an obsession among the Founding Fathers and all Americans with "the science of politics."

Domestic travelers as well as foreign visitors to the young United States uniformly noticed the national obsession with politics. "They are all politicians," commented an Englishwoman after a trip through Connecticut.

There was much to be rectified in the political organization of the new nation in order to make law and justice prevail, to avert mob rule, and "to render unnecessary an appeal to the people," as Jefferson put it, "or in other words a rebellion, on every infraction of their rights."

Writing in 1781, Jefferson recalled that Virginia's Constitution had been written in 1776 "when we were new and unexperienced in the science of government."

DESPITE THEIR inexperience, however, from the onset of Revolution the most astute among our Founders had insisted that the good society required a science of politics embodied in sound constitutions. As John Adams said in January, 1776: "The divine science of politics is the science of social happiness, and the blessings of society depend entirely on the constitutions of government."

In 1780 he avowed that "The science of government is my duty to study, more than all other sciences."

Knowledge of legislation and administration and negotiation took first priority for him.

ADAMS' CONTEMPORARIES increasingly came to share this belief, especially in the years after 1786, when the need for a central government stronger than the Confederation became apparent.

Their faith had roots deeply embedded in the constitution-writing habit which started within the states and culminated in Philadelphia at the Grand Convention of 1787. Written constitutions quickly came to be seen as blueprints for the well-ordered polity and guarantors of the good society.

By 1787 Adams was ready to hazard a conjecture that virtue should be properly regarded as an "effect of the well-ordered constitution, rather than the cause." By the time his presidency gave way to Jefferson's, constitutionalism had been securely established as the foundation of the American governmental edifice.

AMERICANS OF THE post-Revolutionary period found themselves preoccupied with politics and constitutional government, and all the related subleties. This fathering of early American government leaders is entitled "Learning the Science of Politics," an apt title for the times as well, and is made available by the Wadsworth Atheneum, Hartford, for use in conjunction with the "In Search of the American Dream" series.

JEFFERSON, IN HIS first inaugural address in March, 1801, assumed that since the controversial election just passed had been "announced according to the rules of the constitution, all will, of course, arrange themselves under the will of the law, and unite in common efforts for the common good."

Talking endlessly about a science of politics, however, was easier than actually discovering or implementing such a science.

During the war years, 1776-1783, there had been heavy reliance upon government by committee, both in the Continental Congress and in the localities; so that many worried, by 1779, whether the country would "shortly be overrun by committees." Under the Articles of Confederation the balance of power tipped a little too much toward the legislative bodies.

Hence the authors of the Federal Constitution in 1787 — feeling an urgent need for more "energy" in public affairs, for getting things done — sought to strengthen the executive branch and correspondingly modify some recent powers of the legislative branch through certain restraints. They also hoped thereby to achieve a better equilibrium and they rationalized that equilibrium in terms of a necessary separation of powers.

Their sense of a proper system of checks and balances among the agents of the people was incorporated in the Constitution.

Still remaining was the question of exactly who would govern the governors, especially now that the Founders had discovered just how elusive a quality Virtue could be.

THEIR DILEMMA is best posed, perhaps, in this manner: what is the proper balance between freedom and order in a republican society where men are imperfect and often cannot control their passions?

They had a number of answers, or solutions, and we should note the major ones carefully.

First, the Founders believed in explicit restraints and hoped to avoid ambiguity wherever possible; the limits of power had to be defined. As one student wrote, "the constitution should be the avowed act of the people at large. It should be the first fundamental law of the State, and should prescribe the limits of all delegated power."

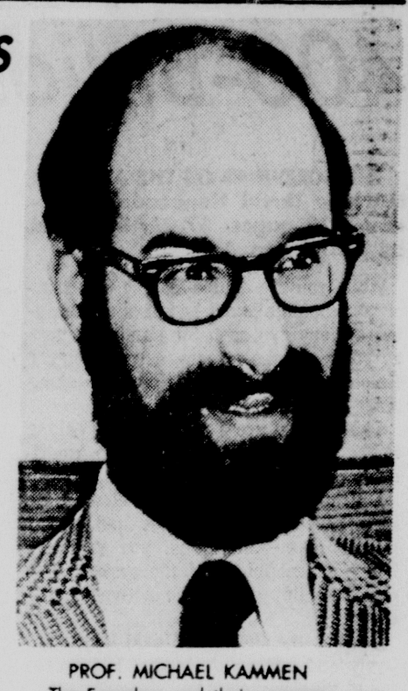
SECOND, THEY intended by the separation of powers not only "that the legislative, executive, and judiciary departments, ought to be forever separate and distinct from each other," but also that they would achieve a separation of offices, i.e., abolish the pernicious colonial practice of plural office-holding.

Third, they thereby meant to have a government not of men but of laws, as Adams asserted in 1787.

Fourth, they envisioned a political society of such vast geographic extent that by encompassing "a greater variety of parties and interest," in Madison's words, "you make it less probable that a majority of the whole will have a common motive to invade the rights of other citizens."

BY THE END of the 1780s, the Founders had come to realize, with John Adams, that "it is the insatiability of human passions that is the foundation of all government"; and that the science of politics had, as Hamilton said, now "received great improvement."

Their realism did not dampen their enthusiasm, however, and they continually reaffirmed a strong faith in the necessity and value of republican government. Adams, the most cynical, did so in 1790 and often thereafter.



PROF. MICHAEL KAMMEN
The Founders and their answers

IN DECEMBER, 1791, in an important essay on "Public Opinion" in the National Gazette, James Madison wrote: "Public opinion sets bounds to every government and is the real sovereign in every free one."

Both the Federalists in power as well as the Republican opposition, in which Madison played a key organizational role, promptly recognized the need to have wide public support for their policies. They therefore early established newspapers as ideological media.

Thus, in 1795, when the Republicans were hoping to defeat John Jay's treaty settling territorial and maritime disputes with England, a Virginia politician wrote to a New Yorker that "a change in the public sentiment now so universally manifested against the treaty, is the great desideratum of our opponents . . . To this object all their efforts will be pointed, and to frustrate them we have concluded an address to the people of the United States to be printed and dispersed in handbills."

"A greater variety of parties and interest," believed James Madison, would "make it less probable that a majority of the whole will have a common motive to invade the rights of other citizens."

Jefferson, who was more optimistic, insisted in 1801 that "this government (is) the world's best hope," and he never ceased to cherish that belief.

THE DECADE OF the 1790s was not, however, without its political problems and governmental crises, among them problems unforeseen by the sagacious students of public life who sat in Philadelphia throughout the summer of 1787. They had not fully anticipated the emergence of political parties and the divisiveness that parties could cause. Nor had they imagined the extent to which a Federalist-dominated judiciary might hand down court decisions along consistently partisan lines.

By 1800, therefore, their science of politics was deeply unsettled by the question of whether judges should be responsive to or independent of the will of the people.

They had not imagined, either, that popular clubs — grass roots organizations of political life — could become controversial, as they did in 1793-94. Nor had they foreseen that so soon in the history of the new republic there would be a steady shift from Liberty to Stability as the most desired of national needs.

IN PART THE issues of the 1790s, in both domestic and foreign policy, were sparked by genuine disagreements among leaders and populace alike over how best to secure the ultimate goals for which the American Revolution had been fought. And in part these issues were exacerbated by economic self-interest.

Thus the Southerners, who before 1776 had been the strongest Anglophiles, now tended to be Francophiles, while the New Englanders now tended to be Anglophiles.

Contemporaries had their explanations, of course, many of them hinging upon commercial concerns. But the important point for us is that the emergence of all these issues during the 1790s required a very major addition to the Founders' science of politics: recognition and legitimization for good and for ill, of public opinion as a potent force in national affairs.

SO, TOO, MADISON expressed to Jefferson in February, 1798, his belief that "the public opinion alone can now save us from the rash measures of our hot-headed executive (John Adams)."

The idea of newness, of being unprecedented, also had an important place in the pantheon of early American thought. As Jefferson informed an English friend in March, 1801, "the great extent of our republic is new (i.e., unprecedented). Its sparse habitation is new. The mighty wave of public opinion which has rolled over it is new."

SOME MADE A fetish of their newness, and others even found a tradition in it: a paradoxical American tradition-of-the-new. The young nation's messianic motto, for example, placed on the obverse of the Great Seal, was adopted from Vergil's Eclogues: "Novus Ordo Seclorum" — a new order of the ages is born.

Thinking about such matters induced in some a certain introspective self-consciousness, and raised intriguing questions about the national identity. By the time of Jefferson's presidency, a surprising degree of consensus had been reached concerning the fundamentals of the new and divine science of politics. But the quest for America's character and destiny was quite another matter — and an open-ended quest, at that.

While you are double-locking the doors of your home against burglars and keeping a wary eye open for pursesnatchers as you walk the streets, a much bigger rip-off with you as the victim is taking place — legally.

That is, you are a victim if you belong to the 85 per cent that makes up America's middle and lower working classes.

On the other hand, if you belong to an elite 15 per cent of upper and upper-middle class Americans, you are very likely a beneficiary of the system. And quite possibly one of the active exploiters.

That is the thesis of David Hapgood's lively and interesting book, "The Screwing of the Average Man."

Who are the perpetrators of what Hapgood calls "Catch 85" by which a minority has succeeded in shifting a disproportionate share of society's financial burdens onto the shoulders of those less able to afford it?

Well, there are the legislators and bureaucrats who write and enforce the laws unevenly, to the detriment of the average man and the advantage of the wealthy and the influential. There are the professionals — some bankers, doctors, lawyers, insurance men, etc., — who have their own ways and reasons for catering most to those who need their expertise the least. There are certain businesses that seem to regard the average man as fair game for their own enrichment. All the while, staying well within the bounds of the elastic laws they often helped to write. One expert, says Hapgood, has fixed the costs of these legalized swindles at 400 billion dollars a year.

And what are some of these rip-offs?

Hapgood cites the federal income tax in which the average man is not only shut off from deductions and loopholes set up for the wealthy, but even at a disadvantage when it comes to cheating. His meagre wages are all there in black and white, upon the W-2 Form that cannot be escaped. But the Internal Revenue Service has a much tougher job tracking down the income of the well-to-do, most of which comes from sources other than the sweat-of-the-brow, and therefore is less rigidly recorded.

There are the huge property tax exemptions granted "non-profit" groups and institutions, for which the unexempted must compensate.

There's the bank that keeps your checking account money without paying you interest, invests it for a profit, and then charges you for the checks you write.

There's the government that offers its most lucrative treasury bills only in denominations the ordinary wage-earner cannot afford.

There are the federal funds — your money — left interest free in big banks.

There's the "sucker" role reserved for the small, inexperienced investor in the stock market "slaughter of the innocents."

There's the insurance industry set up — as with straight life vs. term life policies — more to profit tthe companies than to serve the needs of the customers. And with policies written beyond the comprehension of most agents, let alone the layman.

And there are the lawyers who have so complicated trans action that should be simple until now it is necessary for you to hire an attorney to interpret the fine print written by other attorneys. And he'll charge you a fee set up by the lawyers' own "guild," not established by the free market premise. The probate process is a prime example.

Education, hospitalization, pensions, automobiles and their repair all receive the critical attention of Hapgood.

Covered, too, are the subsidies that flow from government to the unneedy, sometimes in the form of direct payments, more often in the form of excused taxes or free services. "Socialism for the rich," Hapgood calls it.

The author's favorite example of this "screwing of the average man" is the closing procedure that confronts you when you buy a home. You find among those costs a fee for a search by the title company to make certain your ownership will be unencumbered. And you'll find yourself also confronted with another charge, often by that same title company and required for your loan, for insurance against error in that title search. "In effect, then," writes Hapgood, "the expert makes the buyer pay for his work and pay again, in advance, for protection in the event the expert botched the job."

Hapgood has more to say about title insurance costs, claiming insurors charging an average of $129 per transaction pay out but 2.5 per cent of that income in claims.

Those, and many, many more examples of procedures fully legalized in which the average man seems to start out with a very short and very dirty end of the stick are described by Hapgood in a breezy, witty style. But despite his light tone, one detects an underlying anger. And one soon comes to share this resentment.

What can those of us in the "Catch 85" category do to end this exploitation?

Hapgood is not too hopeful. But he does urge us to no longer surrender meekly to the system. We can shop more carefully. We can start reading the fine print for ourselves. We can support groups like the Ralph Nader forces that work in our behalf. We can seek out and patronize those experts who do feel a public responsibility. We can vote for those rare public officials who serve the citizenry and not the special interests. And we can become, to a limited extent, our own experts and sometimes avoid the clutches of the exploiters.

Perhaps most effective of all, we can simply become aware of rip-offs that now go unnoticed. A reading of Hapgood's excellent book is a splendid initial step in that direction. Certainly Hapgood sometimes overstates his case and exaggerates the problems. But there is more than a grain of truth in his basic premise that the system has been rigged, and rigged outrageously.

THE TITLE OF "the strongest teeth in the world" goes to John Massis of Gand, Belgium, shown in his feat of April 4, 1974, of pulling two Long Island Railroad passenger cars weighing 60 tons along the tracks with a bit in his teeth. The photo is from the new 1975 edition of Norris and Ross McWhiter's "Guinness Book of World Records" (Sterling, $6.95). The annual is again an amazing compendium of largests, smallests, fastests, strongests and mosts. You learn that Plennie L. Wingo, a Texan, still holds the "walking backwards" record with his Fort Worth, Tex., to Istanbul, Turkey 8,000-mile demonstration of reverse pedestrianism of 1932, but that Greg Rudduc, 11, of San Geronimo Valley, Marin, is the new holder of the paper airplane sailing title with a 1,126-yard flight on May 31, 1973. But along with the stunts and trivia, the Guiness book is also packed with solid reference data, and with the sports statistics essential for the settlement of those arguments that are an integral part of American male conversation. The range of information is simply incredible.

ON STEREO SCENE: The Busy Beatle

By BRUCE MEYER

If George Harrison has not been the most prolific of the Beatles since the break-up, he has certainly been the most consistent.

Everything Harrison has done — from the Bangladesh Concert to his own widely spaced solo albums — has been done carefully and well, with an eye to real quality.

Now George has become the first of the Fab Four to set up his own record company — Dark Horse Records — and, predictably, he has done it carefully and well.

The first release from Dark Horse is an album from a new group called Splinter. The album — "The Place I Love" (Dark Horse SP-22001) — is one of the best debuts of the year.

Splinter is a duo from Newcastle, England, organized along the lines of Stealer's Wheel; that is, the "group" is just the two of them, with studio musicians filling things out on their records.

Splinter consists of Bobby Purvis, who does most of the writing and sings harmonies, and Bill Elliott, who sings the lead.

George Harrison met Purvis and Elliott while working on a film project and hired them to do some music for it. Impressed with their work, he decided to release one of their songs as a single — and that idea grew into the album.

"The Place I Love" took a year to record, during which time Purvis and Elliott commuted between Harrison's studio near London and Newcastle, where Bobby worked as an upholsterer and Bill made daily rounds as a mail carrier.

It is a very nearly perfect album.

Purvis is a fine writer, combining imaginative lyrics with solid melodies — very much reminiscent of some of the Beatles' best work during their "middle" period. Elliott's voice is pure and well controlled. And Harrison's production is nothing short of superb.

George mustered a hatful of the best session men in Britain for this album: Billy Preston, Klaus Voorman, Jim Keltner and others. Using a variety of pseudonyms (Hari Georgeson, Jai Raj Harisein, P. Roducer), Harrison himself played several instruments, with Alvin Lee sitting in on guitar on a couple of tracks.

There is a crispness, a tightness, to "The Place I Love" that is sustained from the first note to the last. Such a sound is rarely matched in any but the best jazz recordings, but this is definitely rock, not jazz.

All in all, an impressive start for both Splinter and Dark Horse — and there's plenty more to come. A second Splinter album is already mapped out and Purvis and Elliott say they have 130 more songs ready to go.

CAT STEVENS is donating proceeds from his upcoming live album to UNICEF. . .A New Year's TV special, to include the Beach Boys, the Doobie Bros., Chicago and Olivia Newton-John, is being put together in Los Angeles.

Is your inner self someone you don't want to know?

It's not surprising. Many people would have you believe that there's somebody else in there. Lord knows who it might be, so why take the chance, right?

We don't think people are quite so schizophrenic. We don't believe that inside every young, Montgomery Street executive pounds a heart longing to go to the mountains of Tibet, or that inside every woman with a home and family lies the dormant soul of a Broadway stripper. We think it's mostly you in there. It may be a you that's somewhat altered by the demands of everyday life. But it's you, all the same.

At Awareness Center, our goal is to teach you to do what you do, better than you're doing it. Maybe you've heard of programs similar to ours. Have you ever wondered who goes to them? At Awareness Center, you'll find people pretty much like yourself. Maybe you'll even find you.

Sache's Band Has Record

The danceable music of Bill Sache and Orchestra is available on Rupert Records.

Sache, a resident of San Anselmo, leads the orchestra in the Penthouse of the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco.

Included on the new album are the big band sounds, Dixieland, waltz, cha cha and rock. Side one begins with the lively "That's A Plenty," a perennial Dixieland classic, punctuated by clarinet and trombone solos leading to an upbeat drum section in the ending. "Live for Life" features a delicate conversation between the trumpet and flute, demonstrating Sache's lyrical trumpet style in a muted setting. His Latin trumpet style is showcased in "Es Tu Es Cha Cha." The liveliest point of the record is a medley of "Hello Dolly," "Mame" and "Cabaret" in a New Orleans style musical setting.

Side two features big band arrangements of "I Left My Heart in San Francisco;" the James Brown hit, "I Feel Good," which has a funky rock sound; and for a swinging finale, "Proud Mary."

The Maltese Falcon Gets A New Rival

SOMEBODY'S SISTER by Derek Marlowe; Viking, 160 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

At last, a San Francisco private eye novel that rates with "The Maltese Falcon."

Ironically, "Somebody's Sister," which should become a classic in its genre, is the work of an Englishman — Derek Marlowe, whose previous yarns include "A Dandy in Aspic."

While Marlowe has written a hard, tough tale, his private detective, Walter Brackett, is a different type of cat from Sam Spade. English-born, past his prime, having lost both his wife and his partner, Brackett has fallen into decline. His practice has become almost non-existent.

But the visit of a teen-age girl, and her subsequent death on the Golden Gate Bridge, plunge Brackett into a fast-paced, exciting series of events and a chance for a comeback. Marlowe uses his San Francisco background and color expertly. And his character depictions are superb.

The denouement that comes in the closing pages may be just a bit difficult to swallow, but Marlowe can easily be forgiven that, and some minor geographical errors, in return for the splendid entertainment he provides. His lean, clean prose is reminiscent of the very best of the who-dun-it masters including Hammett himself. Let us hope that the movie-makers don't mess this one up, for the opportunities it provides them are immense.

BOOKS AND RECORDS

On Looking Masculine Without Being A Slob

MAN AT HIS BEST by Russell L. Rhodes; Doubleday, 369 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Good grooming and personal beautification were once almost exclusively female considerations. The average male just slouched through life with perhaps a dash of after-shave lotion upon his face and a squirt of anti-perspirant under his arms.

No longer is this so. The manufacture and sale of male "cosmetics" have suddenly become big business. Men are applying gooes, oils, dyes, fragrances, etc., to their persons as freely and as assidulously as do the women.

One by-product of the movement is certain to be books upon the subject of grooming written specifically for the male, to join the shelves of such volumes already available to the women. Russell L. Rhodes, an advertising agency man specializing in grooming and health preparations, has become one of the first off the mark with his "Man at His Best", subtitled enticingly: "How to be More Youthful, Virile, Healthy and Handsome."

While his book is concerned largely with making the most of one's appearance, it goes beyond that into the related fields of fitness and health. Whereas Rhodes speaks from personal experience and expertise when he discusses cosmetic considerations, he must necessarily borrow from other professions when he delves into the medical aspects of man's well-being. Generally, he seems to have chosen conservatively and with commonsense, avoiding the fad diets, the overly-strenuous exercises, the controversial theories.

but there are other books by better qualified writers available on male fitness to guide you along a sensible path to good health. Rhodes' strongpoint is his knowledge of male cosmetics and their proper use.

Here his text is relatively, but not completely, free of the narcissism that makes distasteful so many television commercials for cosmetics, both for men and women. Quite often he provides sound advice that is truly helpful to his readers. We discovered, for example, that we had been going about the seemingly simple task of manicuring the fingernails all wrong these many years. One learns that there is really a sound reason for using special foot powders, not regular talcum, upon the feet. And Rhodes' advice upon both ahir and skin care is a source of helpful, practical tips for males of all ages. The hairbrush for example, is ruled out.

Rhodes also provides some inside instruction on how to shop for male cosmetics in an era of bewildering proliferation of products, many of them of dubious value and excessive cost.

"The more help you give it, the longer your body will be able to keep living and looking the way you want it to," Rhodes summarizes. And adds: "The earlier you start, the better."

Rhodes' book can be used to plot a practical health and appearance program that avoids silly, excessive vanity, while lifting you out of the slob category that many confuse with masculinity.

THE NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

It's that time of the year when gift books seek the attention of reviewers — and Christmas shoppers. These are outsized, often lavishly illustrated tomes, devoted to specialized subjects.

Three new, rather moderately-sized (for gift books) recent additions:

"Wildflowers of Western America," 270 pages, $17.95, from Alfred A. Knopf, is the work of the Bay Area husband-and-wife team of Dr. Robert T. and Margaret C. Orr, and offers drawings of floral anatomy, detailed descriptions of hundreds of plant species, nearly 300 spectacular color photographs, a section on edible and medically useful wildflowers and a glossary of appropriate botanical terms. The two biologists have done themselves proud with a book that those appreciative of our botanical bounty will treasure.

"The Book of Owls," 251 pages, $12.50, also published by Knopf, is the product of Lewis Wayne Walker, a Carl Akeley protege, and covers in detail and with scientific authenticity, a bird that many find one of the most fascinating of God's creatures. While the book is replete with black and white pictures of the photogenic birds, this is a serious, not a cute, treatment of the owl and its place in nature's grand scheme. And an especially nicely designed book.

"With Their Islands Around Them," 216 pages, $8.95, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, was written by Kenneth Brower, son of famed conservationist David Brower, and is an introduction to the exotic islands of Micronesia, particularly through the eyes of two environment minded men who have left their strong imprints upon the Palau archipelago with its rich store of natural life. Illustrations consist of some insect sketches.

DESPITE THEIR deserved reputation for nutrition, and their added attraction of being more economical than other meats, the variety meats still encounter a stubborn resistance among fastidious American diners.

Jana Allen, a San Francisco Chronicle food editor, and Margaret Gin, a cooking teacher and writer of Chinese ancestry, have collaborated in producing "Innards and Other Variety Meats," an imaginative softcover book that should dispel some of that prejudice. The publisher is 101 Productions of San Francisco.

A BABY SAW-WHET
From "The Book of Owls"

Liver has earned a sometimes grudging acceptance in this country, thanks to the publicizing of its nutritive benefits and to a growing realization that, properly prepared, it is a taste treat as well. But in their wide-ranging selection of recipes, Miss Allen and Mrs. Gin also tell you how to put to good use the other variety meats such as heart, tripe, kidney, tongue, brains, giblets, heads, feet, tails, even blood and fries. It may tax the cook's persuasive powers to coax husband and children into making the taste test. But once they do, one large skirmish in the battle against inflated food costs likely will be won.

FOR FANS of C. S. Forester's saga of Capt. Horatio Hornblower, there's a "complete and indispensable guide" — "The Hornblower Companion." Pinnacle Books has reprinted it in paperback at $1.95, complete with maps, charts and drawings by Samuel H. Bryant.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

JESSAMY COURT by Anne Maybury; Random House, 309 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The daughter of a late, great ballerina, is in a London hospital, victim of an emotional collapse caused by some undetermined traumatic experience. The young woman's friend, Rachel Fleming, decides to uncover the reason for Stephanie's withdrawal from life, and to do so she must go to Jessamy Court, a villa in the wild Dorset country.

There Rachel finds herself caught up between two strange men, and also imperiled by a witchcraft that permeates Jessamy Court and its countryside.

Miss Maybury, a veteran author of best-selling Gothic fiction, is an accomplished writer who creates both atmosphere and suspense with skill, and who gives us characters that are interesting and intriguing. "Jessamy Court" is another in a long list of successes that have included "Midnight Dancers" and "The Minerva Stone."

VANESSA by Kay Martin; Putnam, 256 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

A young librarian from a small Ohio college accepts a job in rural England to work in an old mansion with a curious, bloody history for a scholar intent upon debunking its ghostly reputation. With such a setting and situation, Miss Martin would seem to have the ingredients of a good contemporary Gothic novel, especially when she adds a rather sinister occultist to her cast. But, considering her experience (this is her 72nd book), Miss Martin's writing seems to be lacking in professional polish. A simplistic narrative style cripples and finally kills interest in her story.

Mexico's Riviera Is Place Of Contrasts, From Acapulco To Still Sleepy Villages

By RICHARD J. PIETSCHMANN

More of Mexico's 1,000-mile west coast, which has been hopefully dubbed "Mexican Riviera," opens up to tourists every season.

If it's a Mexican beach you're after, perhaps you can decide which one you want from these descriptions:

ACAPULCO. This was "the" beach on Mexico's west coast and it still is to many who value the tropics combined with high-rise comfort and unending night life. The bay is still beautiful and swimmable, but hotel pools seem to get all the attention now.

ZIHUATANEJO. This small, perfect bay is next stop north of Acapulco. On the road from Acapulco you'll pass several nice beach areas, but this is the one. A few small hotels, perfect and uncrowded tropical beaches with green palms reaching out over the water, a bay so clear you can see bottom 30 feet down.

PLAYA AZUL. Here is one for the adventurous beach searcher. It's not far north of Zihuatanejo, but the coast road isn't in, so Playa Azul is reachable from the interior. Urapan is your jumping-off point, about 150 miles inland from Playa Azul. Bus, car, or charter plane can bring you the rest of the way in.

MANZANILLO. This small port city (the harbor was built by the U.S. Navy) with a population of 20,000 lies right in the middle of what has been called the "undiscovered coast." That means beaches. And that's why Manzanillo is the one to watch. It could become the biggest and best beach resort area in all of Mexico. Locally, the beaches south of town are considered inferior, but this is only a relative judgment.

BARRA DE NAVIDAD. About 35 miles north of Manzanillo lies this tiny "comer" of a beach. No airport, but fairly direct road from both Manzanillo and from Guadalajara.

Sleepy, undeveloped Manzanillo seems like Coney Island compared to Barra de Navidad. But the beaches are good.

PUERTO VALLARTA. Not much need be said, except that reports of overkill are grossly exaggerated. This is still a small (12,000 population) town, carrying on much as it did before the Burtons arrived. There have been concessions to tourism, but mostly outside town where the good beaches are.

South are a series of small beaches, the best ones now fronted by hotels, until the small, perfect Mismaloya Bay, down from the hillside location where "Night of the Iguana" was shot. A fine beach, not crowded, with a decent restaurant.

MAZATLAN. Last major beach area north could be the best for beach buffs who want comfort combined with reasonable prices. Mazatlan, practically astride the Tropic of Cancer at the mouth of the famed-for-fishing Sea of Cortez, is without doubt the least expensive developed beach resort in Mexico.

Mazatlan has lots of supporters, not only for its beaches. A small, bustling port city, it seems less interested in tourists and tourist dollars than most beach areas. And, of course, it's closer to the U.S. than any of the other Mexican west coast beaches (there are a few trailer parks and plenty of drive-down traffic from the border about 750 miles north.)

The Grist Mill Joseph Chapman Built

SOLVANG — Located in the shadow of Old Mission Santa Ines and but a short distance from the Danish-American village of Solvang in the Santa Ynez Valley, 40 miles north of Santa Barbara, is one of California's most significant but little known state historical landmarks.

It is the Mission's Old Grist Mill, once situated on mission land but now a part of a ranch owned by Thorvald and Carl Rasmussen, long-time residents of Solvang which was founded in 1911 as a Danish colony.

THE GRIST MILL was dedicated as a state landmark Sept. 9, 1950, and the bronze plaque unveiled by a direct descendant of Joseph (Jose) Chapman, the Yankee builder, was revealed to the public almost to the hour of that day 100 years before when President Millard Fillmore signed a document making California the 31st state to enter the union of the United States.

The bronze plaque succinctly describes the grist mill's origin:

"Built in 1820 by Joseph Chapman, Bostonian deserter from Pirate Bouchard who burned Ortega Adobe, Rancho de Refugio, Chapman arrested, sentenced to firing squad but paroled to Mission Santa Ines. As master workman, built this New England type grist mill and duplicate at Mission San Gabriel. Married Guadalupe Ortega at Mission Santa Ines, founded important California family. Marker placed by California Centennial Commission in cooperation with Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126, N.D.G.W.

IN LATER YEARS, Chapman and his family moved from the Los Angeles area to Santa Barbara where he built an adobe home near West Beach between Chapala and Bath streets. He died at the age of 56 on Jan. 3, 1849 in Santa Barbara and was buried in the Old Mission Santa Barbara cemetery with Father Rubio officiating.

The location of his grave is unknown.

London Restaurants Survive The Michelin

By KIRBY ATTERBURY

I just did a fast TWA weekend in London — so fast that I never did get off the San Francisco time schedule. Happy to report that the hotels were warm and cozy, restaurants bustling and pubs roaring at their usual level.

The great controversy over the new Michelin Guide to British and Irish restaurants and hotels was just beginning. Michelin had not bothered to "do" the British Isles since the early 1930s, and I'm sure the culinary elite wish they hadn't bothered to renew their activity. Only 25 restaurants rated one star and nobody earned a lofty two or three star rating.

A curious choice for one star rating that I haven't had an opportunity to visit is Chinese, Lee Ho Fook on Gerrard Street in the Soho district. I don't believe Michelin's Guide to France honors any Chinese cuisine to that extent.

THE OLD FAVORITE hotels such as the Savoy, the Ritz and Claridges were given faint praise for their kitchens, but no stars. The only hotel that came out well was the Connaught.

I was amused to see that Wiltons, our favorite restaurant, was not even mentioned because the management refused to fill out a questionnaire that is required.

Some current suggestions for dining and drinking that may not necessarily meet with approval from Michelin follow:

IF YOU EVER yearn to give a cocktail party on a battle cruiser, HMS Belfast is moored in the Thames and accommodations may be engaged for entertaining your friends in war-like style. Suggest you contact the British Tourist Office for details.

Father Thames (phone: 402-4725) is the first new vessel built in this century to ply the River Thames. There is a luncheon cruise, dinner and dance cruise and a special late night bash on Friday and Saturday only. That late night party must be a hummer. It is also available for private charter parties. The quality of the food was excellent, but the staff could take some lessons from our TWA stewardesses in operating their console of ovens for best results. This is, however, a highly recommended expedition.

Walton's, on Walton Street near Sloan, is now in high repute among the local experts. Four courses required and the price is in the higher bracket. International cuisine in trendy surroundings.

BLYTHE SPIRIT, Blythe Road, is one of the recent cellar restaurants exploiting an early 1930s decor or lack of same according to your taste. Excellent quality from the kitchen at tolerable prices, served by the younger set.

The Savoy is unperturbed by its lack of stars and still presents nostalgia unlimited in their main dining room. Great orchestra for pre-World War II dancing that is finding teen-age devotees now. Excellent dinner at fair prices for the scene.

Medieval feasts have spread from Irish castles to London, primarily for the benefit of North American visitors. Buxom serving maids, energetic musicians and jugglers, lusty kings and queens set a jolly pace for your wood plate experience. Every Sunday night the Kensington Hilton puts on a laudable show in this department.

A quick roundup of pubs for dining:

THE BLUE POSTS on Bennett Street seems to be doing as well as ever for the appetite. Shepherds Tavern on Shepherd Market keeps its kitchen at a tasty pitch, and the Anchor Tavern continues to attract discriminating diners.

For fine dining Carrier's earned one star and takes high honors. The Caprice has been completely refurbished and seemed to be doing a thriving, happy business when we stopped by.

Simpsons in the Strand earned a Michelin star and does indeed present some of the finest roasts available in Britain. Rules is preferred by many old-timers, although it didn't pick up a star on this go around. Stone's Chop House is still the favorite of most American news men. An antiquarians delight it is.

THE GOOD VINTAGE Ports that are available from the better restaurants and hotels are getting younger as the demand increases, but London is still your best chance to taste these treasures by the glass. Any interest you display in these niceties will be richly rewarded by better service from your knowledgeable captain or waiter.

Happy dining experiences can be yours in London, and the torpedoes of Michelin are not likely to bother the British, nor you.

Bustling Brooklyn Rates The Attention Of Every Visitor To The Big Apple

Jennie Jerome (Winston Churchill's mother) and Mae West were born there. Lola Montez, S.F.B. Morse, and Currier & Ives are buried there. Walt Whitman wrote there. Babe Ruth was a Dodger coach there.

And Mayor Abraham D. Beame eats cheesecake there.

Where? In bountiful, beautiful, bustling Brooklyn — where else? Home of the country's most famous tree, the state's oldest house and the world's largest container crane!

Most populous of "the Big Apple's" five borough (over two and a half million), Brooklyn is also one of the richest in visitor attractions, according to the N.Y. Convention and Visitors Bureau. Among the highlights:

BROOKLYN MUSEUM. An Egyptology collection that Henry Tanner called "one of the world's finest." An outdoor sculpture garden that is the most important repository of New York City's priceless building ornaments. A Community Gallery that spotlights such areas as contemporary Afro-American arts. Outstanding special exhibits that elicit international acclaim (like the Pearlman collection, the Van Gogh show, the Japanese prints, and the Nefertiti-Akhenaton artifacts).

And don't overlook the delightful gift shop, which one critic called "one of the best shopping centers in this country."

BROOKLYN BOTANIC GARDEN. Behind the museum is a 50-acre wonderland filled with fabulous flora! The Japanese Garden with its charming teahouse (stand on the decks and watch the goldfish and ducks swim by). The beautiful formal gardens (each season brings new delights). The Fragrance Garden for the blind (you're welcome, too). A bonsai display that's been called "the finest bonsai collection east of the Mississippi — possibly in America."

All this and — hold your hat! — more cherry trees than in Washington, D.C.

PROSPECT PARK. Brooklyn's chief playground, Prospect Park is a 526-acre expanse next to the Botanic Garden. Stop by the zoo and say hello to Goldie the lioness and her new cub ("Sonny"). Rent a boat at the stunning, recently renovated Boathouse of 1907. Or stroll through the Vale of Cashmere, the Rose Garden, the Quaker Cemetery, or the Long Meadow.

And don't miss the spectacular Grand Army Plaza at the north entrance.

BROOKLYN ACADEMY of Music. A 1906 temple of the performing arts (theater, dance, music, film) no culture enthusiast can afford to miss. "Candide," "Scapino" and "The Begger's Opera" — all of which have packed Manhattan theaters — first played here. The Royal Shakespeare Co. played only here. The Paul Taylor Dance Co., Pennsylvania Ballet, Merce Cummingham Dance Co., Jamaican Dance Co. and American Film Institute — all call BAM home.

And the theaters themselves are great fun: the vast, brick-walled Lepercq Space; the cozy, rustic Chelsea Theater; the big and formal Opera House; and the dignified Music Hall. All tied together by a sweeping, chandeliered lobby, where the box offices are. (For further information on Brooklyn's burgeoning cultural affairs, contact: Brooklyn Arts and Cultural Association — 783-4469.)

HISTORIC NEIGHBORHOODS. Bay Ridge, Bedford-Stuyvesant, Boerum Hill, Carroll Gardens, Clinton Hill, Cobble Hill, Crown Heights, Flatbush, Ft. Greene, Gravesend, Park Slope, the Heights, Williamsburg — each one is heavy with history, packed with pride. The Heights is, of course, a long-established, justly-celebrated area of gracious houses — and the view from the Esplanade of New York harbor, the Brooklyn and Verrazano-Narrows Bridges, and the Manhattan skyline is breathtaking. But brownstone renewal flourishes in ALL the neighborhoods, and open-house tours abound.

Some of the best bus excursions of Brooklyn are run by native son Louis Singer (875-9084, call 6 to 9 p.m. only). He'll show you townhouses, mansions and farm houses (inside & out); battlegrounds and graveyards; exotic stores and nosherias; handsome churches and synagogues. You'll have lunch in a fascinating spot, like the 1891 Montauk Club. (If you want to set out on your own, pick up a free "N.Y.C. Landmarks" guide at the Visitors Bureau — plus free directions.)

BED-STUDY. One of the nation's most concentrated communities (almost a half-million citizens live in the area's 653 square blocks), Bedford-Stuyvesant is an inspiring study in urban renewal, pace-setting cultural programs, downright hard work at the asphalt-roots level.

Businesses have been launched (the fabrics, clothing, jewelry, graphics, etc., of "The Design Works" have drawn international raves), brownstones have been renovated, malls installed, and the dynamic Billie Holiday Theater opened. Sights include Weeksville (the oldest black community in the state: 1827) and an 80-year-old magnolia tree.

Bet-Stuy deserves your attention and will reward your interest. For details, call: Ruth Mitchell, Bed-Stuy Restoration Corp., 636-1100.

CONEY ISLAND and Aquarium. The Boardwalk! The Beach! The Cyclone roller coaster! Hot dogs at Nathan's! Ice skating at the Abe Stark Rink!

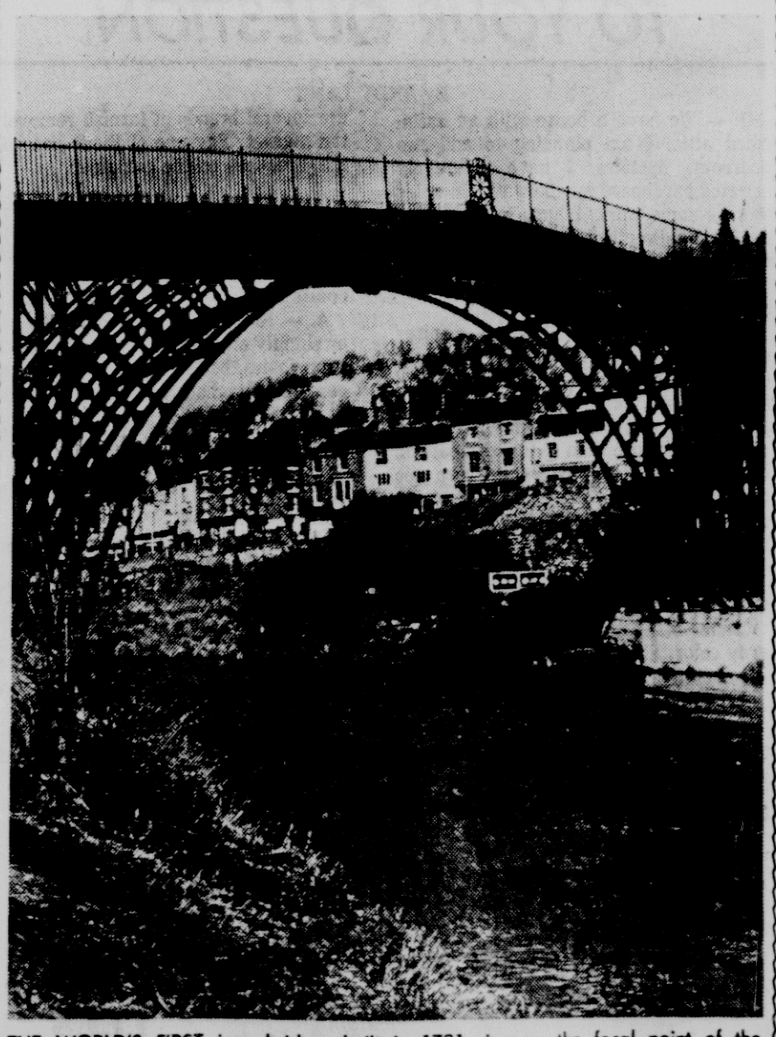
And, at the Aquarium, the only white beluga whales in U.S. captivity. Catch one of the frequent water "shows," featuring (in addition to leaping belugas) dolphins, sea lions, seals and other aquastars.

WHERE BROOKLYN shops. Abraham & Straus and Korvette's (on Fulton Street, a short walk from spacious, historic Borough Hall Square) are two of the world's largest and most famous department stores. Macy's, on Flatbush Avenue, is another huge, most complete store. For antique shops and specialty boutiques (copper and brass, furniture, exotic foods and plants, needlecraft, pottery, paintings, Lebanese and Syrian goods — even occult supplies), check out Atlantic Avenue, Coney Island Avenue and Nostrand Avenue.

WHERE BROOKLYN eats. Gage & Tollner's, on Fulton Street near Borough Hall, with its 1892 decor (gas lamps, pier-glass mirrors, velour walls) gracious service, and impeccable, cooked-to-order steaks, chops and seafood (always ask for the fresh specialities) is worth a trip from anywhere. Ditto Nathan's (Coney Island and other locations) for the world's best hot dogs and superb delicatessen delights (don't miss the beer and clam bar).

The Brewery (modeled after a pre-Prohibition brewery) and Horne & Hardart's (self-service restaurant) are also near Borough Hall, and there are scores of ethnic restaurants along Atlantic Avenue and Montague Street in the Heights. As for Mayor Beame's favorite cheesecake (in competition, it was voted "the best in New York City"), find it at the legendary Junior's, near the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

THE BIRTHPLACE OF INDUSTRY



THE WORLD'S FIRST iron bridge, built in 1781, is now the focal point of the Ironbrook Gorge Museum at Coalbrookdale in western England where Abraham Darby's discovery of the process for smelting iron from coke made from coal triggered the Industrial Revolution. The museum, though still incomplete, covers a six-mile square area devoted to early industrial processes and equipment.

Some Help From An Expert On Finishing Of Woods

HOMES PAGE

By VIVIAN BROWN

Economy-minded men and women are taking over many home-improvement chores.

But some materials and techniques may be unfamiliar to them — less expensive plywood or composition board, the use of a spray gun on kitchen cabinets, wood bleaching.

Some plywoods require special finishes, maintains Robert Scharff in the "Complete Book of Wood Finishing." Reissued, the updated book covers about anything a person might want to do in finishing, with wood or wood substitutes.

FIR PLYWOOD requires a good sealer and without it a first coat of paint or stain may penetrate unevenly, resulting in an overconspicuous grain, he points out. But that may be prevented by using one of the resin plywood sealers.

Properly applied, it should soften the darker markings and deepen the lighter surfaces, providing the material with a soft, lustrous look with the grainy parts pleasantly subdued.

A light natural finish may be achieved by sanding the wood with fine sandpaper. A penetrating plywood sealer helps harden the softer wood fibers for sanding.

To avoid "wavy, dip and hollow effects" use a sanding block that is large enough to bridge the largest softwood area.

AFTER THE SURFACE has been thoroughly dusted, apply a thin coat of white shellac reduced to a two-pound cut or use another coat of resin plywood sealer. After it is dry, sandpaper it again and apply either a satin-finish lacquer or a gloss varnish.

If a flat finish is preferred, use a flat or dull varnish, dry thoroughly and use steel wool before finishing with white wax. Enamel may be applied directly over the sealer, but for best results it should be sanded first.

Among the directions for a variety of finishes of hardboard plywood, there are those for particleboard, one of the newest of the man-made wood paneling products which requires a special finishing process.

OF PARTICULAR interest to home-fashion-conscious women are directions for bleaching wood, which might give some of the white or pale-look wood effects to floors or paneling. Chemicals used in the home-made bleach recipes may be purchased at the drugstore, Scharff advises.

In describing the use of spray guns the point is made that there is a proper technique for the kind of work that must be done with it.

The speed of stroking is about the same as brushing, but many beginners use "a stiffly held wrist to arc the stroke" which may cause poor distribution with too much material at the center of each stroke. Advice with good illustrations includes spraying edges, inside corners, table legs, round surfaces and the proper way to tilt the gun to avoid gumming it. A series of illustrations provides step-by-step details for spraying a table.

A CHART OF "common spraying problems" advises how to avoid sags or runs, streaks, "orange peel surfaces," excessive spray fog and so on.

Fillers, sealers, varnishes and shellacs are covered in detail, and a chapter on novelty and decorative finishes covers many unusual finishes. Some professional paint tricks include crumbling with a wad of material, marbelizing, veining, spattering, tortoise shell, frosting, distressing, pickling, polychroming and achieving mottled effects.

A shortcut is offered for gesso, a plasterlike heavy paint that may be found on old picture frames and mirrors.

How to stencil and flock walls are other interesting techniques offered in the book and there is advice on painting tole, the metal used for decorative trays, lamps and other objects.

The advice on finishing and refinishing hardwood and softwood floors provides many useful tips.

Too Little Or Too Much, Humidity Can Cause You Problems

By ANDY LANG

Every time I write about the problems that occur when there is too much humidity in the house, I get a batch of mail reminding me of the even worse troubles resulting from too little humidity.

And when the subject matter is lack of sufficient humidity, the letter writers want to know why I didn't discuss their troubles with excessive moisture.

All right, then, let's look at both sides of the coin this time.

WHEN THERE IS too much humidity in the house, windows, and sometimes walls, sweat profusely. This condensation takes place when warm, moist air hits cooler surfaces.

Besides windows and walls, condensation occurs on things like cold water pipes and bathroom tanks.

When there is too little humidity, the air steals moisture from everything it touches. Objects affected include furniture, pictures, parts of the building, floors and veneers.

IN EACH CASE, there is one major factor not mentioned yet. When a house holds too much moisture, it can move through the walls and get under the paint film on the exterior wall.

The blistering and peeling that takes place on exterior surfaces often has nothing to do with outside causes, but is merely the result of moisture that has no way to escape from the house except through the walls.

When there isn't enough moisture in a house, a health hazard exists.

PEOPLE ARE MORE susceptible to respiratory infections when low humidity dries the mucous membranes lining the nasal passages. In addition, in areas where winter heat is required, the furnace will have to work harder than usual when the inside air is extra dry — if you are to be comfortable.

Counteracting too much moisture demands finding a way of letting the warm, moist air escape or using a dehumidifier to trap it. Vents and fans are used for getting rid of the moisture-laden air, but often merely opening a window now and then is sufficient.

When there is too little water vapor in the air, using a humidifier is the best way of adding that vapor.

There are various kinds of humidifiers on the market. If you decide to get one, take along all the written information you can to enable the dealer to help you make a proper choice.

Plan Storage And Avoid Frustration

Camping gear, or that paraphernalia for golf, hunting and fishing, can all be stowed in a single storage unit, if it's designed with a little care.

One way to determine shelf spacing in tall, open storage for items of many sizes and shapes is first to "act" it out on the floor.

DEFINE THE perimeter first with actual boards or with lines on wrapping paper or newspaper to form a template.

Then arrange the gear within this box, starting with the heavier and bigger items near the bottom, aligned the way they'll rest in the unit after it's upright.

Lighter and smaller items will be easily put away on the upper shelves. Shelf locations can be adjusted for both appearance and to minimize the number needed.

AFTER TOP, bottom and two sides are fastened together, the vertical divider pieces generally can go in place ahead of the shelves.

Western pine and hemlock are ideal shelving species.

To vary the appearance, doors can be installed readily at the front of one or two sections or drawers set in. They'll be useful for protecting small tools and sports gear, behind lock and key if need be.

CHRISTMAS ISN'T SO FAR AWAY

IT'S TRUE THAT we haven't even celebrated Thanksgiving Day as yet. Nevertheless, it's not too early to start thinking about Christmas decorations. And especially if you plan to build your own outdoor display, with the help of a plan devised by experts. The Nativity Scene above is a traditional favorite that captures the true spirit of the holiday. It's life-size, and thus a major project — a good undertaking for a group such as a church or lodge. Send $6 to Easi-Bild Pattern Co., Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., and ask for Life-Size Nativity Scene 410. And for the Santa, sleigh and eight deer below, also life-size, send $11.50 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and request Pattern C-17. Or for just the Red-Nosed Reindeer, send $3.25 for Pattern 554. Either project should contribute to the joy of the Christmas observance at your home, church, school or some other public building.

A Family Room Must Be Warm, Comfortable And Versatile

Family rooms that look like afterthoughts furnished with collections of cast-off furniture from other parts of the house seldom carry their weight. They just don't provide the full variety of living amenities possible.

Drawing up a list of all possible activities a new or remodeled family room should encompass will give you an excellent guideline for the built-ins and furnishings that will help provide this versatility.

One family added a room that is formal enough to graciously accommodate the overflow when entertaining, yet remains casually comfortable for family fun — and with a minimum of maintenance.

MANY FAMILY rooms are located adjacent to the kitchen, and this one has the pass-through for serving lunches, bridge parties or other entertaining. Folding wood shutters screen off the kitchen at other times.

Ceiling beams, solid board wall paneling and wood flooring with braided rugs add to the relaxed, warm feeling of the room.

The one-by-six-inch tongue-and-groove paneling was finished with a white wipe-off stain which lightens the room while accenting the beautiful grain pattern and tones of the wood.

A FAMILY ROOM is a good location for a piano or organ, both for practicing and entertaining. This room has space for a piano along the wall between the kitchen pass-through and louvered wood doors leading to the den.

The adjacent wall has a fireplace of used brick, with a raised hearth, in the center. Wood paneling covers the wall above the hearth.

Cabinets built in on both sides of the fireplace are topped with five shelves of one-by-12-inch western pine extending up to a 10-inch soffit along the ceiling.

Books lend the comfortable touch that only they can achieve. And family heirlooms on mantle and wall provide yet another homey touch.

Anyone for reading? A chess game? Or some music? This is the place.

THE CLEAN, HONEST design and furnishing of this family room give it the versatility necessary for sheltering both casual gatherings and more formal entertaining. Tongue-and-groove western wood boards cover the walls. Built-in bookshelves of one-by-12-inch boards have cabinets below. And wood louver doors lead to the den. A brick fireplace also makes its contribution to the warm decor.

HERE'S THE ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION

By ANDY LANG

Q. — We have a house with an unfinished attic. I am planning to add two bedrooms upstairs. I have tentatively selected hardboard for the walls. In order to save some work, I hope to attach the hardboard directly to the studs. Can this be done or do I have to nail furring strips to the studs first and then attach the hardboard to the furring strips?

A. — It can be done, but it requires extra care to be certain the studs are exactly in line, otherwise you won't get a straight wall. Make constant use of a plumb line and a level. Also, the studs must be no more than 16 inches apart on center; that is, 16 inches between the center of one stud and the center of the next. And the hardboard you select must be at least one-quarter-inch thick.

Q. — Many years ago I won four sterling silver trophies in contract bridge tournaments. All of them are now a dirty gray color. I assume this is tarnish. Will it come off with steel wool?

A. — Don't use steel wool per se. There are several brands of tarnish remover on the market. Buy one of them and follow the directions on the container.

Q. — The backs of our kitchen chairs are worn and need replacing. I understand the backs can be bought separately. Do they come in sizes that fit all chairs?

A. — No. You can get a size the same or slightly smaller or slightly larger than your chairs, but you must be certain they can be attached properly. Most such chairs have wooden framing inside the covering. It is important that the attachment braces of the chair match the positions of the wood inside the new backs.

NEW FROM PARK IN '75

THE INNOVATIVE George W. Park Seed Co. out of Greenwood, S.C., will be introducing five new flowers for 1975 gardens. Included will be the Chrysanthemum Super Jet, top left, which produces large clusters of three-inch flowers on nice cutting stems in rich autumnal colors. Plants are about 18 inches high, quite vigorous and produce 90 per cent double flowers. Above, the Canna Lucifer has a rich, deep, glossy foliage that makes it a handsome plant even when it is not blooming. The bi-colored flowers are described as spectacular. Flower heads bear 18 to 20 trusses or flowers, Orient red with bright yellow edges. It stands two feet tall. The Dianthus Cherry Drop at upper right, will give you cherry-colored flowers an inch and three-quarters across, with gay fringes. Plants measure 12 inches across. And it is especially heralded for its heat-withstanding capabilities. Recommended as an edging for the border, or for patio planters. At lower left is the Salvia Lavender Love, with long, full-flowered spikes of a rich light lavender held erect on strong 18-inch plants with a deep green foliage. Park says it starts blooming just eight weeks after planting. One suggestion is that it be used with white or pink Impatiens for a semi-shade border. And at lower right, the last of the newcomers, the Petunia Checkers. It has bright red flowers two and a half inches wide, accented with a white throat. Plants are compact and 10 inches high. The closely-held mass of flowers creates a checkerboard effect.

Mix Bulbs, Annuals In Landscape

Take a mass of spring bulbs and a handful of annuals; then add a special dash of imagination and you will turn into the master artist of your neighborhood. You can let your creativity run wild and originate "designer quality" plantings in your own landscape.

There is no more spectacular type of spring plantings than bulbs — unless it is bulbs and annuals mixed together.

PICTURE A massed group of stately King Alfred Daffodils standing high above a cover crop of deep blue pansies — like kings surrounded by delicate beauties. Or take a stand of tulips and add fairy primroses or primulas to the planting for breathtaking beauty.

Aside from the beauty, there is a very practical reason for planting a bulb cover. When the bulbs die back, their foliage is left to ripen off. A cover of annuals will continue to bloom and draw attention from the bulb foliage.

This is a little gardening trick that will make the spring season just a little more beautiful.

When combining spring bulbs and annuals, there are endless possibilities.

ALYSSUM MAKES an enchanting carpet for any of the spring bulbs. Hyacinths may be planted with violas and grape hyacinths. For unusual combinations, try combining freesias with forget-me-nots, or plant creeping thyme under daffodils for a spicy accent.

With the infinite combinations that are possible, you can mix and match all you want. Every gardener can create his own unique masterpiece — even you!

Let your garden be the stage and and select bulbs and annuals as your cast of players, then sit back with family and friends and enjoy a spring season of fine performances.

When Autumn Leaves Are Falling Is Time To Begin Compost Pile

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Autumn leaves are falling — or have fallen.

So now is the time to start a compost pile if we have not already got one, or to add to the one already under way. Just get out the rake and get busy. Your materials ready and waiting.

With a compost heap we grow our own soil conditioner.

The humus made by bacteria working in decaying vegetable matter can open up heavy clay soil and give body to light sandy soil. If layers of manure and plant food are part of it, we are also enriching the soil when we mix it in.

EVERY GARDEN, even the small one, can find room for a compost pile. Choose an out-of-the-way shady corner. For looks and convenience a bin or container of some sort, with a space open for servicing, are suggested.

On a big place a pit, if preferred, will do, piling the heap pyramid fashion.

You can buy a bin of mesh wire with stakes, and set it up quickly with an opening for getting at the contents. If your local garden center does not have these, you can order them from most garden catalogs. Or you can make a container of planks nailed to corner posts leaving openings between the planks to let in air.

Cement blocks will do, also, or snow fencing.

WHATEVER YOUR "design" your heap needs circulation of air, an occasional forking over, dampness to decay the contents, watering during dry spells, and a concave top at all times to catch rain and snow.

A SIMPLE BIN for your compost pile can be easily and simply constructed of mesh wire with a few stakes to hold it in place. It provides for the needed air circulation while keeping the compost neatly in place.

It is a grand way to dispose thriftily of those fallen leaves and garden wastes. So make yourself do a real cleanup job this fall, and dont' burn those leaves!

What can go on a compost pile? Grass clippings, weeds that have not gone to seed, bean and tomato vines, other spent vegetable plants, and annuals plants from the flower borders, sods if you are digging up a new plot or a section of the lawn, clippings that are not twiggy, corn stalks if cut into short pieces, wood ashes from the fireplace, sawdust, peanut hulls, coffee grounds, carrot tops, potato peelings, outer cabbage leaves, eggshells.

Avoid adding any vegetable matter that is infected with fungus. Crabgasss and other weeds that have gone to seed should be destroyed.

IF YOU HAVE a lot of oak leaves, you might make a separate compost heap for acid-loving plants. To this heap add pine needles and acid sawdust.

If your soil is light, mix in topsoil and peat as you build your heap. If it is heavy clay, mix in sand now and then.

It takes time before decomposition has turned the material into good black humus. Some gardeners keep three piles going — one ready to use, one on the way, and one just starting or currently added to.

THERE IS considerable difference of opinion over the length of time. I have found some of it at the bottom of the pile or the oldest end ready the next spring. Some say it takes two seasons.

If you have a shredder, you can process materials and use them almost immediatley. There are also pellets you can buy that when dissolved, speed up decomposition. A product called Agrico will help. Earthworms will do their thing, and if you find you don't have them, you can locate advertisements in garden magazines and buy some.

LAYERS OF vegetable matter, four to six inches thick, can be alternated with scatterings of dry manure and plant food and layers of soil or sods with the soil on them. Some people add ground limestone at intervals and peat moss.

The idea is to rotate materials — vegetation earth, wood ashes if you have them, and other stuff. You can be very precise and technical about all this, but I am inclined to add as convenient, just keeping a certain amount of rotation and leaving the top concave after each addition. Some people even cover the heap with tarpaulin or boards, but I never have. Covering it would further decay and hold dampness.

Stirring it every few months with a spading fork to let in air will speed it up, too. Whem you find on inspection that you can use some of it at the bottom or at the oldest end of the pile, sift it through a quarter-inch mesh screen before working it into the garden or the vegetable plot.

In the process of clearing up the garden this fall, you can get a head start on spring work by spading the vegetable plot. If your plot is on a slope, leave the soil in the rough to check erosion. If you want to raise "green manure" and it is not too late to start it sow a cover crop such as annual ryegrass, and next spring dig it in a few weeks before planting time.

Berries — Bright And Beautiful

Berries add a special glow to late fall gardens. And with Thanksgiving just around the corner and the holiday season on its way, you will want your landscape to look its brightest and best.

Bright, shiny berries will not only set your garden aglow, but they will also convey a cheerful and warm welcome to family and friends. Either in the yard or cut and used as decorations for mantles and tables indoors, those showy sprays of fruits will add that special cozy touch for the gala days ahead.

You not only have choices of sizes and shapes of shrubs bearing bountiful clusters of radiant berries, but thanks to the array of varieties, you can be assured of the finest colors anyone could ask for.

THE TOP FAVORITES among Marin gardeners include Pyracantha, Nandina, Cotoneaster and California Holly..

Pyracantha is one of the all-time favorites of gardeners throughout the state. A very versatile plant, the firethorn shrubs range in size from three to almost 20 feet high. Glossy green leaves set off masses of bright orange or shining red to deep scarlet berries.

Cotoneaster is another outstanding choice. Available in sizes from four inches to about 18 feet tall, there are varieties to fill almost any landscape need.

OUR NATIVE berry-laden beauty is the California Holly.

Also called California Toyon or Christmas Berry, it is a dense shrub or small tree. Its dark shiny green leaves highlight deep red berries from mid-autumn to early winter.

Because it is a native, California Holly is adaptable to most soils. It is also a good choice for planting on a bank for erosion control.

For a finer textured shrub suitable for Oriental garden motifs or for planting around modern homes, Nandina or Heavenly Bamboo is just the thing. Its new foliage emerges as a bronzy red color and turns a delicate shade of green.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔One of the brightest bedding plants for the winter months is the Calendula. Bright yellow, cream, orange, gold and persimmon flowers open during the coolest weather.

✔Fuchsias may be at the end of their blooming season, but should not be pruned until after the danger of winter frost has passed.

✔Dahlias may be lifted as tops dry off. Hose off mud or dirt, dry the tubers in the sun and store them in a cool dry place. You can divide them next spring before replanting.

✔Fall is the time to remove and discard old rose bushes that no longer perform properly. This will make room for the new varieties when bareroot plainting season rolls around in a couple of months.

Surgery Advised For Ailing Trees

Horticulturist Clarence Lewis urges removal of broken, dead or diseased branches from your trees.

On very young trees, leave branches that are well-spaced vertically and radially on the trunk to develop as the scaffold main lateral branches. These should be at least six inches apart and form wide angles where they join the trunk and none should be directly opposite or directly below another.

Remove drooping branches and those growing vertically up through the tree crown. Where branches are crossed, leave the best one. When removing a branch or shoot, make a parallel cut as close to the parent branch as possible with a sharp pruning saw.

Avoid bruising or tearing the bark.

Resistance Faces Women Producers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joanna Lee is an accomplished screen writer, an Emmy winner for "The Waltons."

Like all screen writers, she would like to have more control over execution of her scripts, and that means becoming a producer or director.

Trouble is, she's a woman.

"I understand the resistance to putting women in decision-making positions," she says.

"This is a consciousness that has been previously established, and it takes time to change people's notions."

Unwilling to wait for that change, she went to Greece with a small crew to make her own film that might show studio bosses what she can do.

"A Pocket Filled with Dreams" is the movie, filmed 18 months ago with $150,000 of her own money and loans from friends.

She played the leading role herself, that of the divorced mother taking her 4-year-old to visit his expatriate father. The film is being processed, and she plans to show it in studios soon.

Joanna Lee is typical of a new generation of women seeking to end the long male domination of Hollywood production. She is doing it the hard way, by making her own movies. Others are working within the establishment, trying to advance to more important jobs.

Film and television companies have been run by men through most of their history. Except for actresses, the only women in production were script clerks, wardrobe and makeup women.

"The industry is wide open to women now," is the optimistic word from Tichi Wilkerson Miles, publisher of the Hollywood Reporter and founder of an information and discussion group, Women in film.

"If a woman wants to make a move upward in the business, this is the best time. We now have four women vice presidents in the movie companies," he says.

The vice presidents are Rhonda Gomez at 20th Century-Fox; Neusa Hyams, Warner Bros.; Rosalind Heller, Columbia, and Monique Jamas, Universal. All came up through the ranks.

Other women are not so certain much progress has been made. Giovanna Nigro, who has worked as a director in documentaries, says, "There is still a great resistance to women in production. Even though I have product to show, I can't get anyone to look at what I can do."

More women are appearing, at least, at the studios.

At the Disney Studios there's a woman guard at the gate. On the set of the TV series "Rhoda" there's a woman assistant director calling for quiet. Women are operating cameras and controlling panels at the television studios.

"About the only category we haven't filled with women is plumber," says Robert Hagel, who runs the big Burbank Studios. "And if Jane Withers is available, we might hire her."

One factor producing jobs for women on the west Coast has been the threat of government action against the studios and the unions for discrimination.

"Hollywood is catching up," says Julisa Philips, who won an Oscar for co-producing "The Sting."

"When I came out here three years ago, I thought Hollywood was seven years behind New York. I had come out of the advertising world, where women have long played important roles.

"Now the film industry is hiring many more women, and I don't find an enormous resistance to the trend. It's not too difficult for a woman to become a producer. You need some cash, a bit of business acumen and lines into publishing and young screen writers so you can find a property like "The Sting,' as we did."

Jobs are also increasing for women screen writers. The writers guild of America reports that 463 of its 3,000 members are women, a 3 per cent rise in the past two years.

But directing remains a man's world. The Directors Guild of America has only 169 women among its 4,100 members. That's an increase over previous years, but most of the additions serve in television or as assistant directors on films.

"It's part of the guild's program to encourage training and hiring of women," says Joseph C. Youngerman, national executive secretary. "But we can only encourage; we don't do the hiring."

Ida Lupino and Elaine May are almost alone among successful women directors.

"Directing is the last barrier for women in films," says Nessa Hyams, vice president in charge of West Coast production at Warners. "I don't know why that should be so. Perhaps there is the feeling that a woman can't command a movie yet, that she might say 'Action!' and the guys on the crew would just look at her.

"But I think that's going to change."

The American Film Institute, which has been accused of favoring males in its film maker training program, has announced that it will train women as directors.

Funded by the Rockefeller Foundation, the program will enlist 12 women to study techniques of direction. Among the 12 are Julia Phillips, the finest woman producer to win an Oscar; Joanna Lee; Giovanna Nigro; Miss Hyams, and actresses Kathleen Nolan.

Television Movies Becoming Signal Of New Kind Of Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the beginning no one gave it much of a chance.

Studios didn't want to be bothered.

Stars avoided it.

Nobody liked it but the audience. That was the birth of the television movie.

"I don't think any of us envisioned it becoming a new kind of television," said Aaron Spelling, who produced in 1969 the first Movie on the Week for ABC. He has done 52 more since.

The TV movie has indeed become a new kind of television.

At its best, it is thought-provoking, diverse, offering in-depth character study. At its worst, it is cliche-ridden and melodramatic.

Even in its earliest days, some remarkable films emerged: "My Sweet Charlie," "Silent Night Longely Night," "Duel," "Brian's Song" and "Tribes."

But it has been in the past year that this maturing art form has come of age with such films as "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," "The Execution of Private Slovik," and "A Case of Rape."

"I think it's the future of television," said Herbert S. Schlosser, president of NBC. Brandon Stoddard, vice president of the Movie of the Week for ABC, said, "We're just at the beginning of a form that's tremendously exciting."

Producer Chuck Fries said, "I think we're going to have bigger and more expensive movies made for TV. The really big stars will come if you make it attractive enough for them." Fries is turning out more than half-a-dozen TV movies this season.

Between them, the three networks air about 100 original movies a year. They range from the 90-minute films that appear twice a week on ABC and once weekly on NBC to the two and three-hour movies on CBS to such open-ended pictures as the six-hour "QB VII."

Universal Studios made the first TV movie, "Fame is the Name of the Game," for NBC in 1966, and launched not only the TV movie but a long-running series, "The Name of the Game." From the start, the TV movie and the series pilot have been linked.

Three years later ABC plunged into the movie business in a big way.

The network proposed to air one 90-minute film weekly, with each film costing a little over half the $750,000 price tag for the NBC two-hour movies.

Barry Diller, then an ABC programming executive and now chairman of Paramount Pictures, gave Spelling $450,000 to make a film called "The Ballad of Andy Crocker."

A strong point of the TV movie is that it can hit an important social issue while it is still on everyone's mind. Like "A Case of Rape" last year and this season's "The Gun," which traces the ownership of a pistol and shows how it affects each person's life.

As with any new dramatic form, the TV movie built its own star structure. Spelling recalled, "We had tremendous difficulty getting stars to do them in the early days."

'Kojac' Musical Director Is Signed To Do 'Airport 1975'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — John Cacavas has been signed to compose, arrange and conduct an original score for "Airport 1975," starring Charlton Heston. It will be a holiday season release. Cacavas is composer and music director of the "Kojac" TV series.

The life story of Satchel Paige, one of the greatest baseball pitchers of all time, will be a two-hour television special on CBS from Carson-Paramount Productions. The company recently was formed by Johnny Carson and Paramount Pictures. Paige will assist on the script and productions.

"The Life of Jesus," a six-part series will be filmed on Mideast locations for NBC television airing early in 1976.. The six one-hour episodes will be presented without commercial interruption.

Candice Bergen has been signed to co-star with Sean Connery and Brian Keith in "The Wind and the Lion."

BURTON AS CHURCHILL — Richard Burton will star as Winston Churchill in "The Gathering Storm," the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" special based on the first volume of the late prime minister's World War II memoirs.

Actor Burton Will Portray Churchill In Special On War

EDITOR'S NOTE — Bulldog-jowled, hair slicked back, he resembles Winston Churchill. But it's Richard Burton, made up as the British statesman for a coming television drama. Burton considers the role among the big challenges of his career.

By ED BLANHE

LONDON (AP) — The first time Richard Burton met Winston Churchill, the great man wanted to use the actor's dressing room toilet.

"I was playing Hamlet at the Old Vic," Burton recalls. "He came backstage during one of the intervals and said, 'My Lord Hamlet,' bowed and asked: 'May I use your lavatory?'"

Churchill, Britain's wartime Prime Minister and one of the great statesmen of this century, dominates Burton's life now.

The ebullient Welsh actor plays him in "The Gathering Storm," a 90-minute television special covering Churchill's rise to power at the start of World War II.

It will be aired by NBC-TV in the United States on Nov. 29, and at about the same time here to mark the 100th Anniversary of Churchill's birth.

A $720,000 co-production by the British Broadcasting Corp. and the American Hallmark Co. for the latter's "Hall of Fame" series, the special was shot at Churchill's country home, Chartwell, and such other British locations as 10 Downing Street, the residence of British prime ministers.

The Churchill role is one Burton considers among the big challenges of his 25-year career. He confesses it has given him some nervous shivers.

"I don't want to do a music hall impersonation of the man," he said in an interview.

"That would be buffoonery. You can't impersonate a man so famous and well-known to everyone as he was.

"The only thing is to try and represent him."

Burton, temporarily gray-haired for the part, has dubbed Churchill's famous voice on film four times, his best-known effort for television being "Winston Churchill: The Valiant Years," an ABC-TV series aired in the U.S. from 1960 to 1963.

But "The Gathering Storm" is the first time the actor actually has appeared on screen as the bulldog-jowled Briton who led his country through World War II.

Made up for the part, Burton bears a close resemblance to the man. His hair is slicked back to resemble Churchill's near-baldness.

TELEVISION NOTES

Smothers Brothers Show Back On Air

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Smothers Brothers Show," new one-hour variety-music program, will join the NBC roster Jan. 13, taking over the 8-9 p.m. Monday slot from the canceled "Born Free." The 8-8 p.m. spot Thursdays will be taken over Dec. 19 by "The Mac Davis Show," replacing the canceled "Sierra." Singer composer Davis had a series on the network this past summer.

"CBS Sports Spectacular" will bow in a new, expanded format Sunday, Jan. 5 with Pat Summerall, the network's executive sports commentator, as host.

"Another World" will become network television's first one-hour daily serial-drama beginning Jan. 6. The program currently is seen 3-3:30 p.m. Air time will be 3 to 4 in the expanded form. The series began May 4, 1964.

Robert Trout, in radio and television as commentator for more than 40 years, joined ABC News for both radio and video duty at home and abroad. He had been with CBS most of his career.

"The Year Without Santa Claus" will be a Christmas season special on ABC, airing 8-9 p.m. Dec. 10. It will be done in Animagic, the process that combines stop-motion photography and animation.

FILMS

the ratings, yet are rarely asked to star in a theatrical film. Elizabeth Montgomery, star of "Bewitched" and "A Case of Rape," is a superstar; Elizabeth Taylor, who flopped in a TV movie, is not.

The people who pack them in at the living room bijou are Miss Montgomery, Karen Valentine, Cloris Leachman, Barbara Eden, Connie Stevens, Martin Sheen, Lloyd Bridges, Hal Holbrook and Darren McGavin.

Producer Quinn Martin, biggest independent producer in television, said he has seen the movies change.

"If you couldn't say what the show was about in two lines, they wouldn't buy it," he said. "The attitude's different now . . .

"I've got a movie coming up called 'Terror on the 5:22.' It's about ripping off a train, and it's in a melodramatic frame.

"In the old days I'd have had to have a subplot — if you don't get to Croton on time somebody's going to have a baby. They don't ask for the melodramatic gimmicks any more."

On Location

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Warner Bros. will film "Seven Men at Daybreak," a factual World War II story of the assassination of Nazi Reinhard Heyrich, on location in Czechoslovakia.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RAQUEL WELCH, star of "The Wild Party"*

Do you ever get fed up with being a sex queen and want to change your image?—H. C., Hollywood, Fla.

● When people teased me (and some still do) I was resentful, especially if it was done with a sneer. I was embarrassed the first time I saw myself on the screen. But not any more. I'm used to it, and I feel there's a need for what I project. People think every sex symbol wants to change her style. There's no stigma in being a sex queen. I've gotten lots of range out of it. I'm interested in new roles—but I don't really want to lose my image.

FOR PRESIDENT FORD

I was quite impressed to hear that you weigh within six pounds of your college football playing weight. Has your waist size changed much?—T. F. Morgan, Sacramento, Calif.

● My waist size has gone from 32 to 38. While my weight has stayed close to my playing weight, my body structure has slipped a bit.

FOR KURT VONNEGUT, JR.,
author of "Breakfast of Champions" and other novels

What thing in your life most influenced your unique style of writing?—Ken Fasman, New City, N.Y.

● There have been millions of influences, of course, but the biggest ones were my parents and my brother and sister, all of whom spoke English beautifully and were marvelous at making jokes. My humor is Indiana humor, and I was taught by newspapermen to keep my sentences terribly simple.

FOR MORTY GUNTY, actor and comic*

Has your recent major surgery had any effect on your work? —R. H., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● It's made me appreciate work all the more! (I almost died when 90 percent of my stomach was removed.) The biggest adjustment is to eat small amounts often, and to stop while I'm still hungry. If I don't, I'll get sick. I don't drink, because I can now get drunk on one drink. I must eat every two hours, even during the night. I've also had my spleen removed.

FOR CONGRESSWOMAN BELLA ABZUG (D-N.Y.)*

Why do you always wear a hat?—Yvonne Wilcox, East Lansing, Mich.

● I began wearing hats as a young lawyer because it helped establish my professional identity. Before that, whenever I was at a meeting, someone would ask me to get coffee—they assumed I was a secretary. Nothing wrong with being a secretary—but I had other plans. Wearing hats became an asset when I ran for Congress the first time and did street campaigning. People asked, "Which one is Bella?" And the reply was, "The one with the hat."

FOR LORETTA SWIT of "M*A*S*H"*

What effect has the popularity of "M*A*S*H" had on your private life?"—J. S., Utica, N.Y.

● I find I'm known wherever I go. Consequently I go to fewer and fewer places. I can't handle the crowds and attention. I do appreciate it, but I can't cope with it.

FOR REX REED, movie critic*

Some people say that the lack of good movie roles for women is a political conspiracy by male chauvinists. Do you agree?—John Townsend, Austin, Texas

● No, it's a commercial conspiracy, not a political conspiracy. The film industry is now run by ten people. They're all men, and these men are not in business to lose money. So they're going to keep doing copies of things that have been successful.

FOR SEN. HOWARD H. BAKER, JR. (R-Tenn.)*

Why were the American people not given the freedom to vote for or against prayer in schools?—Mrs. Joan Mansfield, Hertford, N.C.

● As sponsor of proposed legislation to reaffirm the right of voluntary prayer, I share your concern. Overwhelming support for voluntary prayer has been expressed in state referendums and resolutions in state legislatures. Several days of hearings on this issue were conducted last year, but as yet no conclusive action has been taken.

FOR DELLA REESE

How does your daughter feel about your being a celebrity? —F. G., Stockton, Calif.

● She doesn't! She thinks of me as just her mother. There's no such thing as a "celebrity." We're merely human beings with different jobs. "Dumpsey," who's 15, flips over The Jackson Five. But she has no professional interest in singing —she wants to be a lawyer.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

The old-style circus in a tent seems to be a vanishing breed. Why? And why are there fewer and fewer animal acts each year?—A. Gibson, Hamilton, Ohio

● According to George Hamid, who owns the Steel Pier in Atlantic City as well as the Hamid-Morton Circus, the tent-style circus is fading out for two reasons: economics and transportation problems. It's far cheaper and there are fewer headaches in moving personnel for an arena-type presentation than there are in moving a tent with all its equipment and accessories. As for animals, the Endangered Species Act is primarily responsible. Every year, new restrictions are imposed upon circus owners, making it more and more difficult for them to acquire and train animals. This applies to domestic animals, such as dogs, as well as to the exotic lions and tigers. In Hamid's view, it's not the animals who are endangered—it's the American circus.

By Jonathan Livingston Seagull's Creator:

In a Pilot's Brush With Death— The Meaning of Life

Jill Krementz

On that day, Richard Bach made a proud landing—and heard an accusing voice within.

By Richard Bach

Author of "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" and the new book, "A Gift of Wings" (Delacorte, $8.95).

It was supposed to have been a simple inside loop, out off the airways, way up high, just for fun. With the wind shredding itself in a great thundering hundred-mile cry through the flying wires, I lifted the biplane's nose through a steep climb, through straight up, through an inverted climb . . . then stalled there, hanging from the seat belt upside down over thirty-two hundred feet of clear and empty air. The control stick went dead in my glove, the airplane wallowed lazily this way and that, and fell flat, like a giant slow-motion pancake, out of the sky. Dust and hay from the cockpit floor poured up past my goggles and the wind changed from clean thunder to a strange loud buffeting hum, a thirty-foot bumblebee in agony.

The nose made no particular effort to point down, the engine stopped in zero G, and for the first time in my life I was pilot of an airplane that was falling . . . just as if it had been dericked off the ground and cut loose.

I was annoyed at first, then apprehensive at the way the controls didn't respond, then I was quite suddenly afraid. Thoughts flicked through me like tracers: This thing is out of control there's altitude to bail out but my airplane will be killed this is the lousiest loop I am the worst pilot what's this falling, airplanes don't fall like this c'mon get that nose down. . . .

"The biplane fell down from the sky, wallowing, buffeting. What am I doing here, the voice screamed. It took a second to answer. I'm living."

Through it all, the observer behind my eyes watched with interest, not caring whether I lived or died. Another part of me was scared to panic, and cried this is not fun I don't like this at all WHAT AM I DOING HERE?

What Am I Doing Here? The question has fired itself, I'll bet, at every pilot who ever lived. When John Montgomery set himself to cut his glider loose from the balloon that carried it aloft, he must have thought, What am I doing here? When Wilbur Wright knew that he couldn't get the wings level before the Flyer hit the ground; when the test pilots discovered that the Eaglerock Bullet or the Salmson Sky-Car, after fifteen turns of a spin, would not recover; when the mail pilots, lost above a sea of fog, heard the engine die on the last of its fuel—they all heard that question from the terrified voice within them, though they may not have taken time to answer.

"Any pilot who says he's never been scared," goes the saying, "is either stupid or a liar." There are exceptions, perhaps, but not many.

For me it was spins, as I learned to fly. Bob Keech would sit calmly over there in the right seat of the Luscombe and say, "Give me a three-turn spin to the right." I'd hate him for it and go tense as steel and dread the moments ahead and bring the stick full back and force right rudder, my face dead as old soap. I'd hang on, eyes squinted to count the turns, recover at last. I'd think in pain as I leveled, I know what he's going to say. He's going to say, Now give me three turns left. And Keech would sit over there, arms folded, and say, "Now give me three turns left."

Yet that hour would fly past and we'd come skimming into the pattern and land and I'd barely set foot on the ground when my fear was forgotten and I was desperate to fly again.

What Am I Doing Here? The student on cross-country hears the question while he searches the checkpoint thirty seconds overdue. Many other pilots hear it when the weather around them turns from good to not-so-good, or when the engine misses a beat or the oil temperature turns a shade too high and the oil pressure a shade too low.

It is one thing to lean back in office chairs and talk about how great it is to fly, it is another thing entirely when you are up in the air and the engine blows up and the windshield goes liquid gold in oil and the only place to land is that little tiny oat field down there, along the crest of the hill, with a fence at the end.

When it happened to me, there was a continuous dialogue all the way down to the ground, or, more precisely, there were two monologues. One part of me is intent on turning to final approach, holding airspeed just so, shutting off magnetos and fuel, judging the glide, steepening the bank because we are too high. . . . The other part is gabbling in fright. "See? You're scared, aren't you? Big deal, you've flown all these airplanes and you think you like to fly but now you're afraid! First you were scared the engine was on fire, now you're scared you'll miss the field, aren't you? YOU'RE A COWARD, YOU'RE ALL BLUFF AND TALK AND YOU'RE NOT HAPPY NOW AND YOU WISH YOU WERE ON THE GROUND AND YOU ARE AFRAID!"

That day we made the landing in fairly fine style, propeller stopped, oil streaking the airplane in the strange beauty of liquids blown by the wind, and I was a proud peacock to set it down without a scratch. But even as I congratulated myself on the landing, I remembered that accusing voice telling me how scared I had been, and was distressed to admit that it had been right. Afraid or not, though, here was the

On November 10, 1775 A Few Good Men Got Together

...and the Marine Corps was born.

Now, every November 10th, we celebrate. But it is more than a birthday party.

It is a time at which we remember all our valorous comrades who fought . . . on the angry beaches of Iwo Jima ...in the now peaceful woods of the French Argonne ...in the frozen mountains of Korea...and the sweltering valleys of Vietnam.

We remember carrying the banners forward, and hating the fight, and the noise . . . and pressing the enemy until it was quiet again.

We respect those memories this day. And every day.

By the way we look. The way we march. The way we train our men:

With no compromises. No shortcuts. No promises, but one:

We deliver United States Marines.

Every man as good as the one before him.

That is where we stand.

If there are a few good men ready to stand with us...we're open tomorrow morning. November 11. Early.

TRY THIS NEW PIPE "FREE" FOR 30 DAYS!

So different that it's patented by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT patent number 3267941

This top grade Mediterranean briar incorporates a sensational invention that contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking. It completely eliminates breaking-in. Tars, sludge, bite, and bitterness never reach your mouth. You get cleaner, cooler, tastier, moisture-free thoroughly enjoyable smoking. You can try it before you buy it.

E. A. Carey

It's the first pipe in the world that's guaranteed to give unadulterated pleasure to smokers.

Give it 30 days—

No cigarette, no cigar, nor any other pipe can give you the full rich flavor, aroma, deep down satisfaction, enjoyment, and peace of mind that you get from a Carey Pipe.

You may be a pipe smoker with a rack full of pipes and still searching for the ideal smoke, or perhaps you would like to switch to a pipe to cut down on cigarettes or expensive cigars.

The Carey Pipe may look like any ordinary pipe, but it's a lot different! In fact, there's nothing like it in the whole world. The Carey Pipe is made of the finest aged Mediterranean briar — but, its big secret lies in the exclusive patented "MAGIC INCH," cleverly concealed in a bite proof nylon stem.

It's Not a Filter

The "Magic Inch" is not a filter that gets soggy and loaded with foul smelling goo. A soggy, foul smelling filter transmits its stale foul odor into each successive puff of smoke, creating more problems than it solves.

It's Not a Trap

The "Magic Inch" is not a trap collecting moisture that gurgles with every draw. It is not a trap that must be cleaned after every smoke.

It's Almost Magic

Not my magic but NATURE'S OWN MAGIC. Warm winds pick up moisture by evaporation from the oceans, lakes, rivers, and streams, lift it high into the atmosphere where the cooler upper air squeezes it into drops of water that fall back to earth in its most perfect state of purity. Just as the colder upper air of the atmosphere causes rain, the cool air entering the "Magic Inch" chamber through the special louvers of the patented Carey stem, causes immediate condensation of the moisture in the smoke where it drops to the bottom of the chamber, is absorbed by the natural fiber sleeve of the "Magic Inch," and in turn, is evaporated into the outside air. No accumulation ever remains to form sludge or slugs of bitter tasting goo. The "Magic Inch" also mixes purifying oxygen with the smoke from the tobacco, in perfectly controlled proportions, cooling the smoke, eliminating all tongue bite, and creating MELLOWNESS, MILDNESS, and SWEETNESS that was never before enjoyed in pipe smoking.

Today, over one hundred and fifty thousand pipe smokers smoke Carey Pipes almost exclusively. They all got started by accepting my most unusual offer to test a Carey Pipe for 30 days, without any risk on their part whatsoever.

They were all granted the same option which is yours also. After 30 days, if you agree that the Carey Pipe is the best smoke of your life, you may keep it; if you don't agree, whack it with a hammer and return the broken pieces to me. The trial has cost you nothing! How many businesses are that sure of their product?

What Am I Doing Here is not supposed to have an answer. The voice that asks is hoping we'll reply without thinking, "I shouldn't be here at all. It is a mistake for man to fly and if I get out of this alive I will never be so foolish as to fly again." The voice is content only when we do nothing at all, when we are completely and wholly idle. It is the voice of paradox, of self-preservation carried to the point of death.

The way to make time pass slowly is to stay absolutely bored. Bored, minutes are months, days take years to pass. The way for us to live the longest possible life is to sit ourselves in a blank gray room, waiting for nothing, through the years. Yet there's the ideal that the voice asks us to choose—to stay in this body, this room, for as long as we can.

Jill Krementz

What Am I Doing Here has another answer, however, one we aren't supposed to find . . . I Am Living.

Remember, as a child, the challenge of the high board at the swimming pool? There came the time, after days of looking up at that board, when you finally climbed the cold wet steps to the high platform. From there it looked higher than ever, the water looked a thousand feet down. Perhaps you heard it then, What am I doing here? Why did I climb up here? I want to go back where it's safe. But there were only two ways down: the steps to defeat or a dive to victory. No other choice. Stay on the board as long as you wish, but soon or late you must choose.

You stood on the edge, shivering in the hot sun, deathly afraid. At last you leaned too far forward, it was too late to retreat, and you dived off the edge. Remember that? Remember the joy that fired you back to surface so that you broke clear like a porpoise, streaming water, shouting YEEHOO! The high board was conquered in that instant, and you spent the rest of the day climbing steps and diving down, for fun.

Climbing a thousand high boards, we live. In a thousand dives, demolishing fear, we turn into human beings.

That's the charm, that's the siren song of flight: Flight is your chance, pilot, to destroy fears on a grand scale, in a high and beautiful country. The answer to every fear, be it of high board or of three-turn spin, is knowing. I know how to hold my body as I leave the board, so the water will not hurt me. I know how the wing stalls and the rudder forces it to spin. I know that the world is going to blur like a runaway green propeller and the controls will fight against my hand. I know the opposite rudder pedal will be hard to push for the recovery, but I know I can push it, and the spin will stop at once. Before too long, knowing, I climb high and do spins for fun.

It is only the unknown that is fearful. As clouds lower about us, for instance, we are unafraid if there's a runway in sight to land upon. We fear low ceilings only when the unknown lies below . . . fields or hills or treetops to come down in, when we have never once landed on field or hill or tree. But if we have landed in fields for years, if we know what to look for and how to control our airplane throughout, then landing in grass is no more frightening than landing on a mile of concrete.

Every pilot first conquered the fears of a narrow envelope of flight. We first knew our airplane and ourselves well enough only to fly around the pattern on sunny days. Then we knew more and flew into the practice area; then out into the world, then into cloud and rain, over seas and deserts—all without fear, all because we know and control the airplane and ourselves. We grew toward becoming human, and we fear only when we lose control.

We learned to avoid when we could not control, which is to say that we began to overcome stupidity. Don't Fly Through Thunderstorms is an axiom most pilots accept without testing. Never Trust Your Life To An Engine is a less heeded one, most often ignored by those who have never heard an engine stop in flight. Those pilots who fly without parachutes on black-night cross-countries and over seas of fog have no idea of where they might land if the engine quits, and without knowing haven't a prayer of controlling the crash.

It is a terrible empty feeling to have a guaranteed certified approved modern engine snap its crankshaft or swallow a valve or run out of gas when the tank gauge reads FULL. The feeling is all the worse when one can't see to land, worse yet when one can't bail out, and reaches ultimate despair when one finds he is a trapped and helpless passenger in his own airplane.

Certainly there are hundreds of pi-

suddenly found out that her mother was a movie star, she became quite upset because the other children teased her at school. So I told her to find out what their fathers and mothers did and then tease them right back. I told them every occupation is important and is nothing to be ashamed of.

FW: Were you strict with them?

SHIRLEY: Yes, I was. They had their allowances and worked summers to make pocket money.

FW: What would you say is your biggest problem today?

SHIRLEY: I don't know if I can call it a problem, but I seem to be a born volunteer. I volunteer for simply everything. Sometimes this gets me into trouble, like when I volunteered to go to Prague on behalf of multiple sclerosis. I got there in time for the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia, but I got out all right. [Shirley led a motorcade from Prague to the Austrian border.]

FW: Do you see a lot of your former Hollywood friends?

SHIRLEY: I don't have many Hollywood friends. I knew a lot of people when I was a child, but most of them have gone to the Great Beyond. Anyway, I was so young, I wasn't close to many people.

FW: When you travel, do most people still recognize you?

SHIRLEY: Some do. But then—well, not long ago I posed with the President of the General Assembly. When we finished, he said to me, "Thank you very much, Miss MacLaine."

FW: Is that the only time you have been taken for Shirley MacLaine?

SHIRLEY: Nope. I tried for years to get into Red China. I didn't think I would have a hard time because I was one of three people who signed a petition asking for China's admission to the United Nations and sent it to President Nixon.

FW: What happened to it?

SHIRLEY: When I mentioned it to Henry Kissinger, he said, "Shhh, don't talk about it." I didn't know he was preparing for China's entry into the U.N. Anyway, an answer to my application to get into Red China never came, but I heard Shirley MacLaine got a letter inviting her to come to China. I am sure the letter was meant for me. They got their Shirleys confused.

FW: Who is the most fascinating person you've ever met?

SHIRLEY: I think Golda Meir is the most fascinating woman, and Sadat the man with the most charisma. Now, that's said like a true diplomat, isn't it?

FW: Do you get much satisfaction out of doing so many different things?

SHIRLEY: I've always been interested in people and projects. Maybe I should have been a reporter. But I don't go looking for work. When there is a need and I can do something about it, I am happy to do it. I am also happy to say that I've made no enemies that I know of. The only people who won't talk to me are the Albanians. But then, they won't talk to anyone else either.

FW: Where are your children now?

SHIRLEY: Linda Susan is 26 and is doing the third rewrite on a novel that I haven't read yet. Lori's in a college in another state and is a music major. Charles is 22 and is majoring in political science. He wants to become an international lawyer specializing in sea law, which is marvelous since his father is so involved in it. [Shirley's husband, Charles Black, is a specialist in marine-resources development.]

FW: Do you look at your old films?

SHIRLEY: That's the question I am asked most frequently, and the answer is no, because I wouldn't enjoy them. I was there when they were made, I know what's happening, and I am not nostalgic. I can't wait to find out what's happening tomorrow. I live with the future. I love the past, but I don't live in it, and I consider myself lucky. Except for a few stumbling blocks, I've had a good life. FW

How You Can Win Contests!

Discover 14 Secrets to Winning . . . and Cash In On Exciting Vacations — Luxury Cars — Money and Thousands of Other Fabulous Prizes to Be Given Away This Year

If you dream of having enough extra cash to spend any way you would like. If you have longed for a few of the luxuries in life before you are too old to enjoy them. If you receive a special thrill when you are named a winner. Then continue to read and learn how to make your dreams come true.

To be a winner, the first thing you must do is forget about being lucky.

Pure luck has very little to do with winning contests.

If you follow any kind of sports activity closely, you know the best prepared team wins. They don't leave anything to chance.

The same systematic approach can help you win contests. If you prepare—if you have the proper tools—if you know how to make the law of averages work for you . . . you will soon be winning such valuable prizes as color television sets—tape recorders — radios — appliances. Even cash and vacations to exotic places.

Why am I so confident you can win—and win big?

Because I am doing it. I know the thrill of winning. I know what it takes to be a contest winner. I know if you are determined you can win too.

But learning how to win didn't come easy.

Until a few years ago, my wife and I were like the average person. We would occasionally enter a contest that caught our attention . . . with always the same results. Nothing. You may have experienced this same thing.

All my efforts left me frustrated. I knew I had to do something different to win. I decided to find out how I could improve my chances of winning. I started by interviewing the people who knew what it was all about. Contest judges.

I spent hours in writing letters and talking to judges. I studied carefully their advice and the techniques they suggested. With their help—and my own trial and error —I developed 14 simple—but effective rules—for entering and winning contests.

During the next three months my wife and I won valuable prizes in ten national contests . . . an average of winning one prize every 10 days.

Believe me, this is not luck.

To prove what I am saying is true, here are just a few of the letters I received announcing my winnings:

- —You will be happy to know that your entry has been selected as one of the winners in the Purina Dog Chow $150,000 Triple Treasure Sweepstake Spectacular.
- —Your entry has been selected as a winner in the Armour "Win a Wish from the Wizard" Sweepstakes.
- —Congratulations! Your name has been drawn as one of the . . . winners in the Awake "Free Groceries for Life" Sweepstakes.
- —Congratulations . . . you are a winner in the "007 Colgate-Palmolive Sweepstakes." Please allow six weeks for delivery of your RCA Tape Recorder.
- —Your Polaroid camera is being forwarded to you as a winner in the Libby's Fine Foods Contest.
- —Congratulations on your cash prize. The Minute Maid Company is forwarding a check to you before the holiday season.

My name is Haywood Kelly. My wife and I have won thousands of dollars in valuable prizes. You can be a big winner too—it's easy when you use the 14 simple steps I have discovered.

Without contests and a systematical way of winning, these prizes were only a dream . . . but now a dream come true.

Now you can make your dreams come true and experience the thrill of winning. You can master in a few hours what it took me two full years to discover.

The secret of winning.

I have written down every successful technique I have used. Every proven secret I have learned. And have included each of them in a book I have written, entitled "How to Win Contests."

Even though this book could mean hundreds, perhaps thousands of dollars to you in valuable prizes, it is priced at only $3.00. Remember, winning contests is not luck. It is SYSTEMATICAL PREPARATION.

I will show you how to prepare.

I will teach you the fourteen rules you must follow to be successful.

I will teach you the "golden rule" of winning.

I will show you how to be selective and enter only the contests that provide the best chance to win.

I will tell you how to use the rules of the contest to your advantage.

I will give you the formula for a winning strategy.

I will show you how to beat the law of averages by entering more than once. The trick is in the timing of your entry.

I will show you how to keep posted on current contests so you won't accidentally miss out on the best opportunities to win.

I will show you a secret trick to make sure your entries aren't overlooked.

I will teach you how to use logic to take the "chance" out of winning.

I will show you how to hit the jackpot time and time again.

At first you will find your winnings hard to believe. Even your friends won't believe it—they will think you struck it rich.

So, forget about being lucky. Don't take as long as I did to find out what it takes to be a systematic winner.

Give in to that impulse. There's nothing to lose.

I'm not asking you to believe what I have said. Just try it. I guarantee you will be a winner. It's as simple as that.

Guaranteed Winner

To prove there is more to winning than luck—you have this 100% no risk guarantee. Order my book "How to Win Contests." If you don't like it when it arrives, return it for an immediate refund. No questions asked. Or, keep it and enter several contests using my 14 successful rules. If in one year's time you have not won at least two national contests, return the book. You still get your $3.00 back.

3 Reports—Free

A new contest comes out almost every day that you can enter—and win. The best are included in a monthly report called the "How to News." If you order my book right now, you will receive free, a three month trial subscription direct from the publisher.

2. Add red cabbage, vinegar, salt and allspice; toss together. 3. Slash frankfurters halfway through and arrange with apple slices on top of cabbage mixture. Heat to boiling. Cover and simmer about 15 minutes, until apples are tender and frankfurters are heated through. Uncover and boil rapidly a minute or two to reduce liquid, if necessary. Serve with mashed potatoes. Makes 4 servings

FROSTED CARROT CAKE

2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons wheat germ
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups vegetable oil
3 jars (4½-oz. size) strained carrots
½ cup chopped walnuts
Cream Cheese Frosting, recipe below

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Grease 15½x10½-inch pan. 2. In large bowl, beat eggs at medium speed of electric mixer. Add flour, wheat germ, sugar, cinnamon, baking soda, salt, oil and carrots. Beat at low speed to combine, then at high speed until well-mixed.

Laszlo

Don't tell the kids that Frosted Carrot Cake is good for them. All they need to know is that it tastes good!

3. Stir in walnuts. Spread batter smoothly in pan. Bake 30-35 minutes, until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. 4. Cool completely on wire rack. When cool frost with Cream Cheese Frosting. Cut into 3x1½-inch bars.
Makes about 3 dozen

CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

1 pkg. (3 ozs.) cream cheese, room temperature
4 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
1¾ cups confectioners' sugar
¼ teaspoon pure vanilla extract

1. In small bowl, combine ingredients. Beat at low speed to mix, then at high speed to blend smoothly.
Makes about 1½ cups

Those Horrid Age Spots

"I was so embarrassed, I served lunch with my gloves on."

"Then I found Esoterica. The medicated cream that works below the skin's surface, in the pigment-forming cells, to help lighten and fade age spots and other darkened skin discolorations on hands and face.

In a matter of weeks, my skin looked clearer."

Esoterica® Helps Fade Embarrassing Age Spots.

Relieve Pain And Itch Too.

Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

When inflammation, infection and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.

You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H. Preparation H® also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

WHEN YOU ORDER BY MAIL from companies that advertise in Family Weekly, allow up to four weeks for delivery. Sometimes unintentional delays occur. If they do, write: Lynn Headley, Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022.

CAN YOU QUIT SMOKING? READ THE EVIDENCE

Bantron No. 1 in Sales! In Clinical Tests it worked for 4 out of 5!

In the past twenty years thousands of people all over the world have stopped smoking with the aid of Bantron®. In actual clinical tests among smokers who wanted to quit, more than 4 out of 5 did so easily and pleasantly with its help. Meanwhile less effective smoking deterrents have disappeared from the drug store. If you have been disappointed by one of these, do not let this keep you from trying Bantron. Bantron's long record of success is your assurance that it can help you. Bantron is not habit forming and does not affect the taste in any way. It works by acting as a substitute for the nicotine in your system. Get it at any drug store without a prescription.

Little-Known Ways You Can Influence People

The First Danbury Mint Christmas Bell

- Limited edition available only until November 30, 1974, and only directly from The Danbury Mint. Not available in stores.
- Each fine silver covered bell is hallmarked and registered.
- Guaranteed delivery for Christmas, attractive gift package.
- A prized first edition and a uniquely beautiful Christmas gift.
- Priced at only $35.00

The First Danbury Mint Christmas Bell is issued in strictly limited edition only for orders postmarked by November 30, 1974. After that date it can be acquired only from original owners who are willing to part with it.

The 1974 Christmas Bell is based on an enduring work of art. The angel that sits majestically atop the bell was inspired by the famous Bernini angel in St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome. This adaptation of a great work of art by a master sculptor makes the bell truly distinctive.

As a gift, for yourself or someone else who is special, it is a unique first edition that could well be the beginning of a most interesting and rewarding tradition.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you want someone to do you a big favor, get him to do you a small one first.

2. One of the best ways to get someone to change his mind about something is not to talk to him about it at all.

3. The best way to get people to do what you want is to soften them up with a humorous approach—tickling their risibilities with jokes or witticisms to put them in a receptive mood.

4. The best way to convince someone of your good points is to let somebody else mention them.

5. The most difficult person to influence is the individual with low self-esteem.

ANSWERS

1. True—as shown by Stanford University studies which have demonstrated that complying with a small request makes a person much more prone to comply with a larger one later. This principle, as one leading investigator observed, is extremely useful in persuasion.

2. True. If a person has made up his mind about something, trying to talk him out of it—no matter how persuasive you are—is likely to arouse resentment and provoke argument. Psychological studies show that the best way to operate is to marshal your most persuasive facts but instead of directing them at the person you want to convince, arrange for him to overhear them. Example: Excuse yourself while you "make a phone call," during which you wax as eloquent as you can with your most convincing arguments, favoring the point you wish to put across and permitting the other party to "overhear" your conversation. Research has shown that "persuasions counter to the attitude held by a person were more effective when 'overheard' than when the same persuasion was made directly to the subject."

3. False—at least where young people are concerned—according to a series of studies at Ohio State University, where humor was found to be a very risky and unreliable ingredient when used in connection with persuasion. Results of tests showed that "in general, humor did not increase, and sometimes decreased, the persuasive effect of the message."

4. True. University studies have shown that another person will be far more impressed with your good points if they are presented by a third party rather than by yourself. However, if the person you wish to impress is likely to hear negative things about you, it's far better if he hears about them directly from you.

5. False. Studies show that he is the easiest to influence. As Profs. John R. Wenburg and William W. Wilmot observe in their definitive treatise, "The Personal Communication Process," "the low-esteem person . . . is easier to persuade because he has little confidence in his own personal opinions."

"I think that fear is something to be conquered in a fair fight, not ignored or swept under a rug of illusions. . . ."

lots who fly without fear through black nights and over miles of fog, but their peace comes not from knowing and control, it comes from blind faith in the crate of metal parts that is an engine. Their fear is not overcome, it has simply been masked by the sound of that power plant. When that sound fails in flight, I give you fear, stronger than ever.

I've been called Daredevil for flying passengers from wide clear hayfields, Chicken for refusing to fly them from a narrow runway facing hills and trees. Wild Crazy Irresponsible for picking up handkerchiefs with a wingtip, Overcautious for deciding not to fly at night without a parachute. But still I think that fear is something to be conquered in a fair fight, not ignored or swept under a rug of illusions that engines never fail. Fear, fear—you are a demanding enemy.

The biplane fell down from the sky, wallowing, buffeting. What am I doing here, the voice screamed. It took a second to answer. I'm living. And I bail out if we're not flying by the time we reach two thousand feet. At two thousand feet I'll pull the seat belt release and fall free, clear the airplane, and pull the ripcord. A shame to lose it because I can't fly a simple loop. I'll never live it down.

Slowly, like a big floating safe, the nose of the biplane eased downward. The terrible throbbing buffet began barely to fade, and the airstream to smooth. Maybe. . . .

We roared through two thousand feet pointing straight down, under control again, and the engine blazed once, coughed, and burst back into action. Oh boy, the voice said. You nearly had it that time and you were scared as a rat. Scared to death. This flying business is not for you, is it?

We climbed back to three thousand feet, put the nose down till the wind shredded itself in a great thundering hundred-mile cry through the flying wires, and this time with a good positive pullup we flew a fine loop, the biplane and I. Then another, and another.

What are we doing here? Overcoming the fear of death, of course. Why are we in the air? We're practicing, you might say, what it is to be alive.

AN IMPORTANT NOTICE TO AMERICANS AND ART COLLECTORS

FREEDOM OF WORSHIP

FREEDOM FROM FEAR

FREEDOM FROM WANT

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

THE HAMILTON MINT PROUDLY PRESENTS

NORMAN ROCKWELL'S FOUR FREEDOMS

Actual size of Ingot is 1¾" x 2¼"

A Memorable New Limited Edition of Pure 1000 Grain Silver Ingots
The Largest and Heaviest Ever Struck by The Hamilton Mint

ALL ORDERS MUST BE POSTMARKED BY NOVEMBER 30, 1974

NORMAN ROCKWELL, by far America's greatest and best loved artist, has for fifty years brought joy to millions of Americans young and old.

Now, by exclusive permission of The Saturday Evening Post, The Hamilton Mint is extremely proud to issue, and thus preserve, forever, in stunningly beautiful silver ingots, the greatest of all his works, "The Four Freedoms."

Rockwell created the original masterpieces during World War II in a burst of patriotic fervor. They depict those great values held very dearly in the hearts of all Americans. And they are just as truly inspiring now as they were then.

The Hamilton Mint believes that in these troubled times, our nation sorely needs to rededicate itself to these great beliefs: Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Worship, Freedom from Fear and Freedom from Want. So with great pride, we present this magnificent collection.

Mr. Rockwell Talks About His "Four Freedoms"

"When Roosevelt and Churchill issued their famous Atlantic Charter, with its Four Freedoms proclamation, I tried to read it . . . but I hadn't been able to get beyond the first paragraph. The language was so noble. Then one night . . . I thought, that's it! I'll illustrate the Four Freedoms using my Vermont neighbors as models. I'll express the ideas in simple, everyday scenes . . . in terms everybody can understand."

Norman Rockwell depicted these great beliefs with his own inimitable and unique brand of genius. Freedom of Speech is portrayed by a man unafraid of reprisal as he speaks his mind at a town meeting . . . Freedom of Worship shows all people free to worship according to their own dictates . . . Freedom from Want is depicted by a family sharing their Thanksgiving meal together and Freedom from Fear is shown tenderly by a mother and father as they snuggle their children safely in bed for the night. Rockwell himself says "The Four Freedoms was the best idea I ever had."

Quotations from "My Adventures As An Illustrator" by Norman Rockwell

A Strictly Limited First Edition

This First Edition will be of special interest to knowledgeable collectors because they represent Rockwell's greatest work and traditionally, first editions have always been the most valued. To insure the integrity of this edition, ingots will be struck to fill orders postmarked by November 30, 1974. Once those orders are filled, no more first edition ingots will ever be minted.

An Exclusive Treasury in .999 Fine Silver of Rockwell Masterpieces

The original Rockwell paintings shown at right, are of epic proportions. And so will be the ingots. Each beautifully sculptured ingot will measure 1¾" x 2¼" and will contain 1000 grains of .999 fine silver, the purest and finest silver available. These will contain more than twice the silver of our standard ingot. Each will be struck in high bas-relief with a satiny image and antique finish to clearly show every detail of the great art.

Your Valuable Personal Serial Number

Your First Edition Collection will be minted expressly for you and each ingot will be inscribed with your personal matching serial number along with The Hamilton Mint Hallmark. In addition, you will receive a certificate of authenticity to certify the limited edition status and precious metal content of each ingot.

Significant Investment Potential

We feel that many limited edition silver mintings are good investments but none do we feel has the potential of this particular Rockwell collection. And this comes at a time when leading economists are predicting that silver and gold will continue to become more valuable in the years ahead. Collectors have already realized bonanzas. For example, a 1970 Christmas Ingot was issued for $12.00 and now brings $195.00. A 1972 Thanksgiving Ingot containing 1 oz. of silver originally sold for $4.50 and now brings about $25.00. So please act promptly to share in the excitement of owning this magnificent collection.

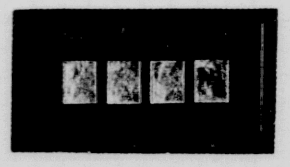
Guaranteed Price Protection

Subscribers to The Four Freedoms are guaranteed the original purchase price, no matter how high the price of silver may escalate. You will receive your first ingot soon after your application is accepted and the three additional ingots at monthly intervals thereafter. The Hamilton Mint will not accept any orders postmarked after November 30, 1974, any orders received after that will regretfully be returned.

Deluxe Edition of 24 KT. Gold on .999 Fine Silver

This special edition is the ultimate in beauty and combines the Pure Silver ingots with a layer of 24 KT. Gold to further enhance the potential value of this edition. Each ingot will also be individually hallmarked and serially numbered.

Special Display Frame



As a subscriber to The Four Freedoms Ingot Collection you will receive, at no additional cost, an easel-backed display case custom designed to hold your complete collection. This versatile display case of finely stained wood with a fine walnut finish, will proudly sit on a desk or shelf, or hang on wall.

EVEL'S RIVAL
A first for women

While Evel Knievel was busy preparing himself to be shot by missile across the Snake River Canyon in Idaho for $6 million, a more modest jump was being organized by British secretary Mary Connors. She was preparing herself to be the first person fired from a cannon across the Avon River. The drop may not have been as dramatic as Evel's, but Mary's derring-do was admirable enough. And unlike Evel, she made it! After her first voyage, Mary, a part-time stunt girl, repeated it once a day during a week-long fair.

Is a fish just a fish? Listen to one of the world's most expert fishermen: "Now and then I hear some bass man say the largemouth will outfight a big trout or steelhead. That's a lot of pure malarkey! A big bass just doesn't fight like a trout of equal size. He's too smart for that. A bass doesn't come blasting out, crazy-wild, like a steelhead or coho salmon or a big rainbow trout. No, indeed. He'll show you some of that power in the first couple of lunges. From then on he's got one of those mean eyes peeled for the nearest stump, brush, pad or something else he can wrap the line around and bust free. A bass has a personality. He's a real character. Nobody I know goes out and gets a big bass anytime he happens to want to." From "Catch More Bass," by Stan Fagerstrom. Copies of this oversized paperback are available from the author at Box 27, Silver Lake, Wash. 98645. Price is $7.95.

INGRID BERGMAN
How "Bell" tolled success

QUOTE (about the scene that made Ingrid Bergman a star forever): "The most important film in the making of a star is the one that follows the first big hit. If the second picture disappoints, the star-building process is aborted, the star-to-be becomes a flash-in-the-pan and has to start virtually from scratch. But if it is possible to follow one great success with another, the career is well and truly launched. Ingrid Bergman's crucial time came after 'Casablanca.' In her case, a fortunate set of circumstances fell into place to provide her with that second smash hit. It was Ernest Hemingway's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls.' . . . When Gary Cooper grabbed her in 'For Whom the Bell Tolls,' when they went into that sleeping bag together, something powerful happened in darkened auditoriums the world over." From Garson Kanin's "Hollywood" (Viking Press, $8.95). UNQUOTE.

BIRTHDAYS (all Scorpio): Sunday—Richard Burton 49. Monday—Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., 52; Jonathan Winters 49; Pat O'Brien 75. Tuesday—Princess Grace of Monaco 45. Thursday—Aaron Copland 74; Brian Keith 53; Mamie Eisenhower 78; Prince Charles 26; King Hussein of Jordan 39. Friday—Petula Clark 42; W. ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

MY WIFE'S HANDBAG

"It's in my handbag," says my wife,
Referring to a stamp, a knife,
A ticket, a receipt, a quarter,
A key—and I've the job of sorter.
I poke around, I shake, I shift,
I closely look at what I lift.
Each hand's a sieve or else a cup. . . .
At last, defeated, I give up.
Although it doesn't happen often,
My disappointment it may soften
If when my wife gives me a breather
And searches—she can't find it either.
